NEW LAW COVERS 77 SPECIES

Plants, Animals Gain Protection

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Beginning next Thursday, 77 Michigan plants and animals teetering on the brink of extinction will be fully protected under a landmark Michigan law. A list of mollusks, fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds, mammals and plants whose existence is "threatened" or "endangered" has received final state administrative approval. Included in the list are animals like the Eastern box turtle, and Eastern timber wolf, fish like the blue pike and river herring, birds like the barn owl and red-shouldered hawk and 16 plants including the American chestnut. People who kill or harm any of the listed animals or plants will face fines up to $1,000, or as long as 90 days in jail. A 1974 law required the list and provided for programs to improve the natural habitat of threatened animals and plants. It closely parallels a federal law, and expands a much shorter list drawn up in 1972. "This is the first time that positive habitat improvement incentive has been written into the law, and the DNR is assured of federal grants to carry out the program," says Department of Natural Resources Rules Officer George Brusco. Some $70,000 in expected federal funds this fiscal year is earmarked mostly for research, education and habitat improvement efforts for the Kirtland's warbler. The tiny bird's world population nests near Grayling. The DNR also must contribute $35,000 to the program under the federal formula. The list of animals and plants was drawn up by committees of scientists and citizens. It includes those considered "endangered," or in danger of extinction, and those that are "threatened" with becoming endangered in the near future.

Many animals have become scarce as their habitats have been erased by man, by draining wetlands, or developing communities on open space and wilderness areas. Animals once abundant, like bald eagles, osprey, pine martens and prairie chickens, are now rare because of such action, wildlife experts say.

Plane Crash Kills 2

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration investigators are probing a twin-engine plane crash that killed two men only moments after they took off from Muskegon County Airport.

The plane went down in a ball of fire a few feet from a south side Muskegon house Friday afternoon, hurling flaming debris into the dwelling and throwing the plane's cockpit 25 feet from the fuselage.

The two men inside the craft were burned beyond recognition. After checking dental records, State Police identified the victims as Dr. Homer Cornell, of the Muskegon suburb of Norton Shores; and 35-year-old David Thomas, of Muskegon.

Police said Cornell, a gynecologist in his mid-50s, was piloting the plane when it dived into the backyard of a house owned by Dr. R. M. Jenson, also a gynecologist.

Dr. Jenson, who was alone in his south-side home when the plane hit, escaped injury.

"I heard a thud and a crackling noise ... that must have been my windows giving way," said Dr. Jenson. "I turned around and saw fire shooting up the outside of the house."

Witnesses said they heard an explosion moments after the plane took off and saw the craft burst into flames before it plummeted into Dr. Jenson's yard. Police said the plane hit a tree, its cockpit was torn loose and thrown 25 feet from the fuselage. Pieces of flaming debris were hurled into the house, but the building escaped major damage.

Officers said Dr. Cornell had not filed a flight plan, and his destination was not known. The airplane was owned by the Muskegon Flying Club.

For Him, 90 Days In Jail Will Be 'Merry Christmas'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A 56-year-old man who has lived in the stairwells and corridors of a city building for two years has been sent to jail for 90 days so he won't be alone for Christmas. "That's the only way he's going to get a merry Christmas," County Judge Ralph Gorenstein said Friday as he sentenced Eddie Lowman on a disorderly conduct charge. Lowman was evicted on Thanksgiving Day from the city's Safety Building, headquarters for municipal and county courts and the sheriff's department. Authorities said he was able to sleep in the building because thorough patrols were rare.

Lowman apparently subsisted on sandwiches provided by janitors and by rummaging through garbage cans in the building or on the nearby Civic Center Plaza.

He was charged after he told the judge he would not move out of the building voluntarily.

Deputies said the gray-haired, sad-eyed man has told them he has given up on life. He also has told police that he has a son and daughter but does not want to burden them with his troubles.

"He's very docile and doesn't hurt anybody," said David Lushewitz, one of the deputies who arrested him. "He just sits there and wastes away. If he sees a deputy, he hops up and gets on the elevator."

Lushewitz and another deputy arrested Lowman on a sixth-floor stairwell after warning him several times he could not sleep there.

He had a dollar bill and some napkins in his pocket, but no shoes. The first night in jail, he chose to sleep on the floor of his cell instead of on a mattress.

"We feel sorry for the old guy," Lushewitz said. "In his shape, he is not going to make it much longer."

Winning Numbers

DETROIT (AP) — The winning numbers in Friday's weekly Bureau of the State Lottery Michigan are: three-nine (39) and seven-four-zero (740). The three-digit number in the two-week holiday bonus game is five-zero-one (501).

Boom Idi For King Of Scots

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Radio Uganda claims there is a movement afoot to make President Idi Amin the "king of Scotland."

The broadcast, monitored today, said Amin had been informed by "friends in Scotland" that they consider him their king.

Radio Uganda said Amin told a group of Scottish visitors that when Scotland became independent from Britain, he would attend the celebrations with pipers from Uganda.

State's Tax Bite Rated Twenty-Fifth In Nation

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan residents pay an average $116.65 in state and local taxes for every $1,000 they earn, according to a recent Census Bureau report.

The report ranks the Michigan tax burden 25th among the nation's states.

Gov. William Milliken said Friday the report, combined with an earlier survey, "should help put to rest the myth that Michigan is a high-tax state."

In the Census Bureau report, Michigan was in a virtual tie with Pennsylvania ($116.75) and Delaware ($116.55), but was well below the national average of $122.84 for all 50 states.

A test by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations last June showed Michigan leading the nation in tax-revenue equity, a standard by which the fairness of the tax burden on citizens is measured.

The Census Bureau report, "Governmental Finances in 1974-75," ranked New York with the heaviest tax burden of $166.53 per $1,000 of personal income, followed by Vermont ($154.58), California ($145.91), Hawaii ($144.45), Massachusetts ($142) and Minnesota ($140.44).

HOME AGAIN: "Bippy", 10-year-old cat of Mrs. Cecilia Schreiber, 333 Ridgeway, St. Joseph, recently returned home after being away since July. Mrs. Schreiber said cat was given to Robert Dunbar family, Sodus, in early July because of illness in Schreiber family. Bippy disappeared from Dunbar home shortly after going there. Cat turned up at Schreiber home Nov. 17. Mrs. Schreiber believes Bippy ran away from Dunbars and found way back to original home — about 14 miles away. Bippy was hungry and dehydrated when he arrived, but has recovered. Mrs. Schreiber said, "I wouldn't think of letting him go again." Mrs. Schreiber's granddaughters, Kathleen (left), 5, and Marie, 3, are shown with Bippy. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Schram, 2216 Mount Curve, St. Joseph. (Staff photo)

Quake Deaths May Hit 5,000

By ISMAIL KOVACI Associated Press Writer

MURADIYE, Turkey (AP) — Survivors picked up bodies from the courtyards of mosques and village streets in earthquake-ravaged eastern Turkey today and buried them. Officials said the death toll from the quake could exceed 5,000.

A total of 3,636 bodies were reported counted thus far in the devastated towns of Muradiye, Caldiran, Ercis and Diadin near Turkey's border with Iran and Soviet Armenia. Authorities estimated that 4,000 persons were injured and 8,000 buildings destroyed.

New stories of death and destruction became known after relief teams reached some of the destroyed villages that were cut off by Wednesday's quake, the strongest in Turkey since tremors that killed 30,000 in Erzurum in 1939.

Forty-four students were killed in the village of Ucozlu, near Caldiran, when their primary school was shaken apart by the tremors.

A house collapsed in nearby Alikelle, entombing 80 persons during a wedding reception.

Caldiran residents claimed that many persons only wounded in the quake died because they were trapped in the debris or exposed to subfreezing temperatures for two nights.

"We heard moans and screams until Thursday from the ruins," one Caldiran resident said. "But there is complete silence now."

In the village of Gondurme, 12 survived out of a population of 339, authorities said. One of the survivors, 70-year-old Abdulkirim Hizal, recalled the first moments of the quake Wednesday afternoon.

"First there was a terrible, loud noise, then dust was everywhere and walls were falling in like playing cards," he said. "I remember hearing screams all around me, but I could do nothing. I do not even remember how I saved myself."

A total of 40 railroad cars carrying relief supplies have been dispatched so far on an around-the-clock airlift of military cargo planes continues to the airport at the provincial capital of Van.

circled has provided 25 cargo planes for another airlift to transport aid arriving from NATO countries.

Officials in Muradiye said that by Friday most survivors had shelter, blankets and food to face the bitter winter weather. But other sources said much of the relief supplies piled up in Van, and that adequate supplies had reached only the area of Muradiye.

Some roads remained blocked and snowstorms continued. Officials said the combined military and civilian relief effort had still not been able to reach snowbound districts in the three days since the quake.

An energy ministry official said emergency fuel supplies were released in an effort to overcome a gasoline shortage that impeded overland contact with many regions.

Let's Worry More About Victims Than Killers

Now that capital punishment is returning to the United States after a suspension lasting 9 years it is generating a new wave of emotionalism greater than anything seen during most of its long and complicated trip through the courts. The reaction was predictable, for several reasons.

Death by any violent means is not a pleasant spectacle for people who have learned to place a high value on human life. That some people can

Liberty Upsets The Commissars

There is no way of proving that more was involved in the interruption and temporary evacuation of the American bicentennial exhibit in Moscow than a false bomb threat. But one doesn't need the key to the Kremlin to appreciate the men inside did not approve of the popularity the exhibit gained.

The exhibit has been playing to a packed house since it opened Nov. 11. Almost 32,000 Russians had paid a visit in the first five days. More than 1,000 were in the hall when the bomb threat forced their evacuation.

One of the souvenirs given to each of the visitors was a kit containing the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution in Russian. Literature such as that in the hands of the average Russian would upset any commissar.

U.S. Can't Feed Whole World Alone

No nation does as much as the United States to help alleviate starvation in the world. The U.S. offers its help in many ways: through outright food gifts, low-interest loans to help poor countries buy the grains they need and exporting technology to help others become more self-sufficient.

Although the American farmer continues to gear up to provide still more food for a hungry world, it is becoming obvious that many countries soon are going to have to emphasize the self-help concept more. To do that, they are going to have to change some of their concepts about agricultural systems.

Why Not More News About Russian Laser?

Reports that the Soviet Union within the last year destroyed an become more exorcized over the death of a convicted and confessed murderer than the death of his victims does not speak highly of their selective processes.

Many individuals also thought, and for a long time it appeared they might be correct, that the Supreme Court no longer would find a constitutional basis for legal executions. Now that the court has given its approval under strict conditions and the process has been restarted, emotion bordering on panic seems to be the only weapon left for those who disagree.

Some thoughtful perspectives on capital punishment are needed. Whether it does or does not act as a deterrent against the commission of capital crimes is a continuing controversy. What cannot be contested is the fact that crimes in nearly all categories — but especially violent crimes — have been on a steadily and seemingly uncontrollable climb for the last decade.

New York City, which provides the nation with one of the horrible examples of crime, has recorded 92 murders of elderly persons so far this year, many of them victims of muggers who deliberately prey on the elderly. Ninety-two dead on one front of New York's crime war, and not a single killer sent to his death by the judicial system.

There can be no justice in such a record. Capital punishment, so long the subject of extensive legal arguments, now is on trial to see what its judicious but consistent application can do to remove the mantle of death from the innocent.

Certainly the American farmer has proven that the more freedom a farmer has to manage his operation the greater will be his output. In too many countries where food remains in short supply, the farmer is merely a cog in a hopeless bureaucratic maze directed from a far-off political office.

Another problem to be faced by food-short countries is what happens to their crops after harvest. Studies in India and elsewhere have shown as much as 10 percent of the harvest is consumed by rodents and otherwise contaminated. Losses of that magnitude in lands where large numbers of people are hungry and undernourished cannot be accepted.

American reconnaissance satellite and put another out of commission with a laser beam adds another dimension to defense preparedness. The Pentagon refuses to confirm or deny the reports, carried by two periodicals almost simultaneously.

Equally disturbing, if the reports are true, is the silence on the episode from Washington. An act of that nature obviously is a form of aggression which should not be kept from the American people.

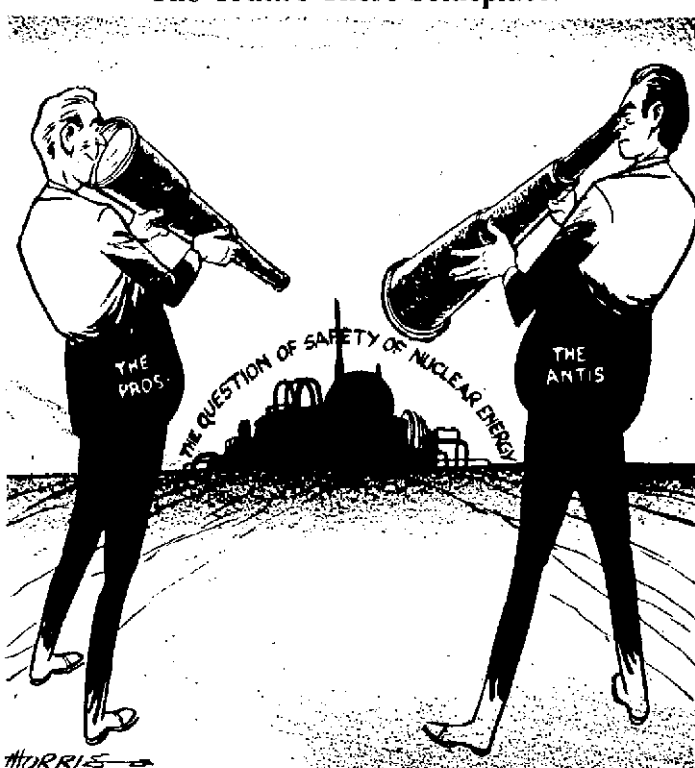

Reconnaissance satellites are a primary means of detecting military activity on the ground. Lacking approval from the Soviets to conduct on-site inspection of nuclear detonations, the satellites also are essential to monitor nuclear arms testing agreements.

It is known that both the Soviet Union and the United States have been working on laser mechanisms to be used against orbiting vehicles in the event of attack, but this is the first reported instance of either nation using the weapon against another's satellite.

FORMER SUPERVISOR PRAISES COVERAGE

Editor,
May I take this opportunity to express my appreciation to The Herald-Palladium for the fine news coverage given to Lincoln Township during the past six years I served as Supervisor.

I would especially like to commend the work of Al Arend who had been assigned to cover the monthly meetings. Al's reporting was factual and well done. He did stay through some pretty long sessions, at times was our only audience. I feel he performed a good service in extending a line of communication to the residents in the area.

My time as Supervisor of Lincoln Township has pointed out to me the value of good news coverage for local units of government, and I feel that your paper performs a good community service.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ernest Hauch voluntarily retired as supervisor of Lincoln township after six years that he distinguished with modesty and common sense. He was succeeded by Bernice Trelthway who had been township clerk.

TAX LAW HEARING ATTENDANCE URGED

Editor,
Single Business Tax hearings are coming up Tuesday, Nov. 30, at the Holiday Inn, Benton Harbor; 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. This tax does not only effect farmers but all small businesses. Since this has been a law since last January, the real shock will hit you when you pay this year's taxes. This is a tax on your gross dollar including labor.

The hearings are being held to amend the Single Business Tax law so that we can afford to continue our industries. Rep. Harry Gast is on the Task Force committee. Of the eight hearings held in the state, he is responsible for getting one here in Benton Harbor. So let's all attend. Take some facts, this is what they want.

BRIDGE CONDITIONS CONCERN MOTORIST

Editor,
The accompanying letter has been sent to the Superintendent of the St. Joseph Public Works Dept.

I am sending a copy to your newspaper because I feel that it should be brought to your readers' attention.

Mr. James Talbot
Superintendent of Public Works
St. Joseph

Dear Mr. Talbot:

My wife and I were in one of the seven cars involved in the accident Sunday evening (November 21) that was precipitated by icy conditions on Blissomland Bridge. As was reported in the Herald-Palladium by the St. Joseph Police, the bridge was a sheet of ice! From all accounts we have heard (we were out of town), it had been snowing on and off all day, and the roads through St. Joseph were fairly clear, up to the section of the bridge between Upton Drive and Kink Road, north.

It seems to me that since it is common knowledge that bridges and overpasses freeze over more readily than regular roadways, they should receive special treatment to make sure they are safe for travelers. We were victims in an accident that should not have occurred.

We were only two of the victims in this unnecessary event. There were several other cars involved, and some people were injured, not severely, but injured none-the-less. The automobile insurance carriers of these people were also victims.

No One Seems To Have Answer

WASHINGTON — When Mr. Ford became president, he called in batteries of economists for a series of summit meetings. There were economists of the left, of the right and of the middle, liberal and conservative, business and labor, academic and government. The works.

Some reporters sat in on those meetings, designed to develop thoughts for managing the flagging economy. Regardless of announcements made, one thing came through loud and clear to those of us present. The economists could not agree on the problem and they could not agree on answers.

What was done, therefore, was to leave it to Arthur Burns and his Federal Reserve Board — with Burns saying, honestly and consistently, that management of the money supply itself was not enough. But it had to be done because no one could get together on a program.

Now President-elect Jimmy Carter has the problem, or will on January 20. If newspaper and magazine reports are correct, he must depend on the same assorted body of economists. Or their cousins.

Yet there are no more signs today than there were two years ago, that these men can agree on what must be done — or what shouldn't.

Worse, there are faint signals, if reports are to be believed, that despite Mr. Carter's soothing words, the new president and Burns are moving toward a head-on collision. Presumably Mr. Carter wants to step up the supply of money at a faster rate, though he has not said so. And Burns has served notice he plans no such accommodation, but rather intends what might be interpreted as a slight tightening. This leaves Mr. Carter lost in a plethora of conflicting advice, with no one to guide him. His situation, of course, is no better and no worse than that of the last half dozen presidents. None of them did well in the crunch on meeting economic crises.

What this means is that Mr. Carter, no more than any of his predecessors, knows how to reduce unemployment and inflation in the short run. Nor in the long run either, except by cut and try — a minor fix here and there.

In the end, I suspect, any satisfactory solution depends less on economic — financial steps than on somehow building confidence among a great many groups.

Confidence among consumers so that they will increase their buying.

Confidence among manufacturers so that they will take the risk and spend the capital necessary to buy new plants and modernize equipment. Confidence among investors so that they will buy the stocks and bonds the companies sell to achieve this expansion and modernization.

And confidence by management and labor that the future will be stable — so that there will not be successive rounds of price boosts and hefty labor requests in honest anticipation of continued inflation.

How a man — even if president — goes about inspiring this widespread confidence among those who have lived through the depression of the 1930s and the current recession — is a mystery. The political scientists and psychologists are even more divided than the economists. And as ineffective, as we learned in the Vietnam war.

Madame Mao's Fall From Grace

I shed not a tear over the fate of Madame Mao, who has fallen on very evil days, for in the series of charges now being heaped upon her and her three colleagues of the so-called Shanghai Group we see a startling example of totalitarianism in action.

Only yesterday these four individuals glittered in the Chinese Communist pantheon. Chiang Ching was the spouse of the Great Leader himself. All four stood there on the platform with the other notables as thousands paraded and hundreds of thousands cheered and waved placards.

Presto, a lost power struggle behind the scenes, and all changes. Wall posters depict Chiang Ching and the other three skewered on a huge bayonet. They are denounced as corrupt, traitorous, murderous, beneath contempt. Workers groups and army infantry regiments gather for hate sessions against them.

No charge is too implausible or trivial. Chiang Ching, widely known as the most "left" of the ruling clique, now is presented to the masses as a "bourgeois careerist and conspirator." This puritanical revolutionary, we now hear, liked pornographic movies. According to the latest announcement of the New China News Agency, Chiang Ching had to be dragged from a poker game to visit the bedside of the dying Mao.

Earlier we were told that she had shortened the great man's life by carping at him when he was ill. She is also supposed to have attempted to change provisions in his last testament, a nefarious scheme uncovered by the astute detective work of the new Chairman, Hua Kueifeng.

No doubt we shall soon see it disclosed that she not only had a secret love for the music of Beethoven, but actually owned a copy of Adam Smith.

Observing this grotesque spectacle, I wondered how it must appear to the average Chinese. Surely, even when the flow of information is totally controlled, it must strike ordinary people as weird that yesterday's top leaders have become today's criminals.

If the charges are taken at face value, it certainly reflects upon the Mao regime that its upper echelons were penetrated by criminals, now revealed as the scum of the earth. What kind of government was the Great Man running?

But if the charges are taken as lies, then what does this imply for the peasant Hua Kueifeng regime?

Similar reflections must have occurred to the ordinary Russian in the late 1930s, when, all of a sudden, large sections of the Communist Party leadership and numerous top generals of the Red Army suddenly stood revealed as Nazi spies, Trotskyite conspirators, and foes of the proletariat. If this were true, clearly Stalin had been running a rotten government. If they were lies, clearly he was also running a rotten government.

I posed these questions to several experts on China, who have access to refugee interrogation and other sources of information. They agreed that the average Chinese receives the charges with deep and disturbing cynicism. Few are taken in by such charges. Though the public facade must be maintained, the average person regards the regime with skepticism and fear. Particularly among the peasants, alienation is deep, concealed beneath the public facade. About the only people who really still believe in Maoist Man are the leftist intellectuals in the West.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Let's Worry More About Victims Than Killers

Now that capital punishment is returning to the United States after a suspension lasting 9 years it is generating a new wave of emotionalism greater than anything seen during most of its long and complicated trip through the courts. The reaction was predictable, for several reasons.

Death by any violent means is not a pleasant spectacle for people who have learned to place a high value on human life. That some people can become more exorcized over the death of a convicted and confessed murderer than the death of his victims does not speak highly of their selective processes.

Many individuals also thought, and for a long time it appeared they might be correct, that the Supreme Court no longer would find a constitutional basis for legal executions. Now that the court has given its approval under strict conditions and the process has been restarted, emotion bordering on panic seems to be the only weapon left for those who disagree.

Some thoughtful perspectives on capital punishment are needed. Whether it does or does not act as a deterrent against the commission of capital crimes is a continuing controversy. What cannot be contested is the fact that crimes in nearly all categories — but especially violent crimes — have been on a steadily and seemingly uncontrollable climb for the last decade.

New York City, which provides the nation with one of the horrible examples of crime, has recorded 92 murders of elderly persons so far this year, many of them victims of muggers who deliberately prey on the elderly. Ninety-two dead on one front of New York's crime war, and not a single killer sent to his death by the judicial system.

There can be no justice in such a record. Capital punishment, so long the subject of extensive legal arguments, now is on trial to see what its judicious but consistent application can do to remove the mantle of death from the innocent.

Liberty Upsets The Commissars

There is no way of proving that more was involved in the interruption and temporary evacuation of the American bicentennial exhibit in Moscow than a false bomb threat. But one doesn't need the key to the Kremlin to appreciate the men inside did not approve of the popularity the exhibit gained.

The exhibit has been playing to a packed house since it opened Nov. 11. Almost 32,000 Russians had paid a visit in the first five days. More than 1,000 were in the hall when the bomb threat forced their evacuation.

One of the souvenirs given to each of the visitors was a kit containing the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution in Russian. Literature such as that in the hands of the average Russian would upset any commissar.

U.S. Can't Feed Whole World Alone

No nation does as much as the United States to help alleviate starvation in the world. The U.S. offers its help in many ways: through outright food gifts, low-interest loans to help poor countries buy the grains they need and exporting technology to help others become more self-sufficient.

Although the American farmer continues to gear up to provide still more food for a hungry world, it is becoming obvious that many countries soon are going to have to emphasize the self-help concept more. To do that, they are going to have to change some of their concepts about agricultural systems.

Certainly the American farmer has proven that the more freedom a farmer has to manage his operation the greater will be his output. In too many countries where food remains in short supply, the farmer is merely a cog in a hopeless bureaucratic maze directed from a far-off political office.

Another problem to be faced by food-short countries is what happens to their crops after harvest. Studies in India and elsewhere have shown as much as 10 percent of the harvest is consumed by rodents and otherwise contaminated. Losses of that magnitude in lands where large numbers of people are hungry and undernourished cannot be accepted.

Why Not More News About Russian Laser?

Reports that the Soviet Union within the last year destroyed an American reconnaissance satellite and put another out of commission with a laser beam adds another dimension to defense preparedness. The Pentagon refuses to confirm or deny the reports, carried by two periodicals almost simultaneously.

Equally disturbing, if the reports are true, is the silence on the episode from Washington. An act of that nature obviously is a form of aggression which should not be kept from the American people.

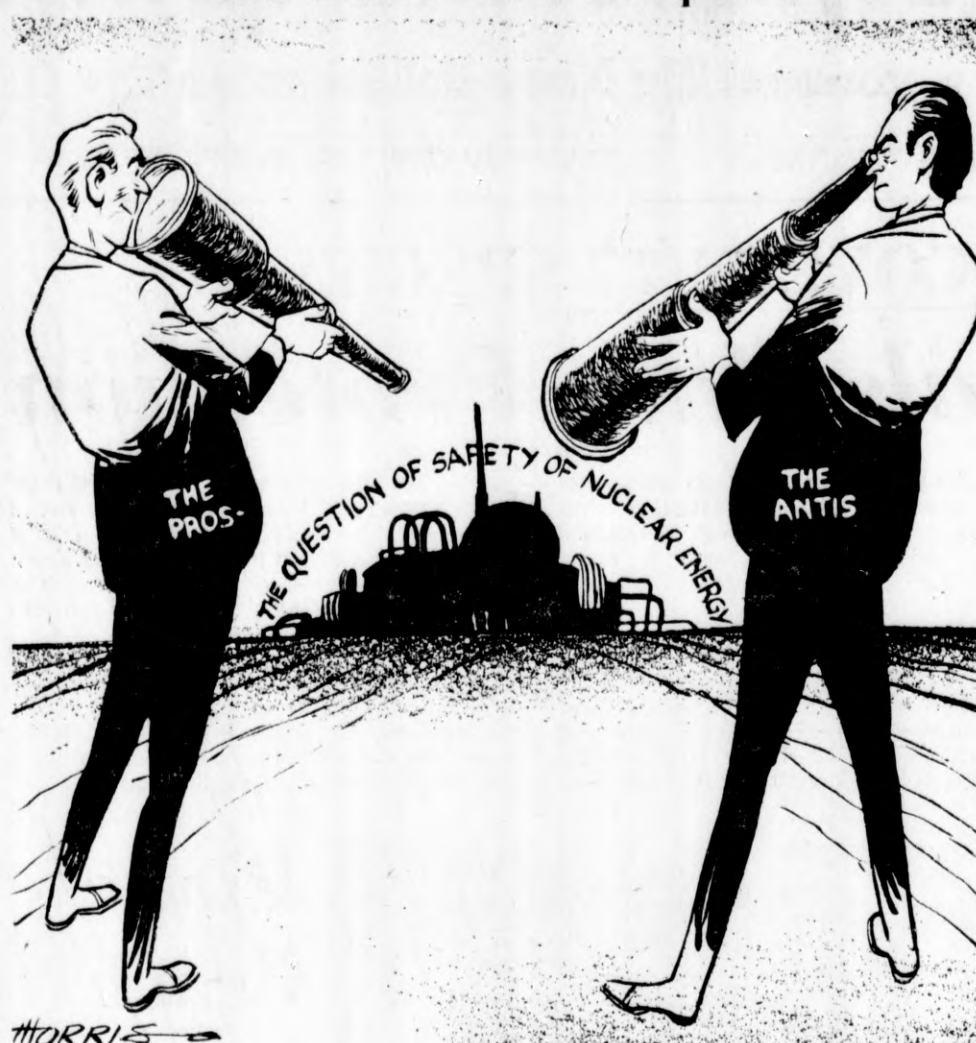

Reconnaissance satellites are a primary means of detecting military activity on the ground. Lacking approval from the Soviets to conduct on-site inspection of nuclear detonations, the satellites also are essential to monitor nuclear arms testing agreements.

It is known that both the Soviet Union and the United States have been working on laser mechanisms to be used against orbiting vehicles in the event of attack, but this is the first reported instance of either nation using the weapon against another's satellite.

FORMER SUPERVISOR PRAISES COVERAGE

Editor,
May I take this opportunity to express my appreciation to The Herald-Palladium for the fine news coverage given to Lincoln Township during the past six years I served as Supervisor.

I would especially like to commend the work of Al Arend who had been assigned to cover the monthly meetings. Al's reporting was factual and well done. He did stay through some pretty long sessions, at times was our only audience. I feel he performed a good service in extending a line of communication to the residents in the area.

My time as Supervisor of Lincoln Township has pointed out to me the value of good news coverage for local units of government, and I feel that your paper performs a good community service.

TAX LAW HEARING ATTENDANCE URGED

Editor,
Single Business Tax hearings are coming up Tuesday, Nov. 30, at the Holiday Inn, Benton Harbor; 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. This tax does not only effect farmers but all small businesses. Since this has been a law since last January, the real shock will hit you when you pay this year's taxes. This is a tax on your gross dollar including labor.

The hearings are being held to amend the Single Business Tax law so that we can afford to continue our industries. Rep. Harry Gast is on the Task Force committee. Of the eight hearings held in the state, he is responsible for getting one here in Benton Harbor. So let's all attend. Take some facts, this is what they want.

Editor,
The accompanying letter has been sent to the Superintendent of the St. Joseph Public Works Dept.

I am sending a copy to your newspaper because I feel that it should be brought to your readers' attention.

Mr. James Talbot
Superintendent of
St. Joseph

Dear Mr. Talbot:

My wife and I were in one of the seven cars involved in the accident Sunday evening (November 21) that was precipitated by icy conditions on Blossomland Bridge. As was reported in the Herald-Palladium by the St. Joseph Police, the bridge was a sheet of ice! From all accounts we have heard (we were out of town), it had been snowing on and off all day, and the roads through St. Joseph were fairly clear, up to the section of the bridge between Upton Drive and Klock Road, north.

It seems to me that since it is common knowledge that bridges and overpasses freeze over more readily than regular roadways, they should receive special treatment to make sure they are safe for travelers. We were victims in an accident that should not have occurred.

We were only two of the victims in this unnecessary event. There were several other cars involved, and some people were injured, not severely, but injured none-the-less. The automobile insurance carriers of these people were also victims.

We bespeak for the book a place in every office and home in the county.

Royalton Home Destroyed By Fire

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

A Royalton township family including three children fled from a fire that leveled their two-story farm home early this morning.

Tri-Unit Fire Chief Haskel (Hack) Starbuck said an explosion may have accompanied the fire that destroyed the Jack Richerson home at 275

West John Beers road near Hollywood road, south of St. Joseph.

Escaping unharmed were Richerson, his wife, Bonnie, and their children, Dennis, 4; James, 6; and Rita, 8. The fire was driven by a stiff wind.

Starbuck said Richerson reported carrying $20,000 in insurance. Starbuck said the loss is at least that much or more.

Cause of the fire hasn't been determined, the chief said. He said his department will investigate, starting with an oil furnace in the basement. Also to be checked are a clothes washer and dryer in the remains of the kitchen. Both were reported in use when the fire began about 1:42 a.m.

Starbuck said Mrs. Richerson reportedly turned on the washer and dryer and returned to bed. Richerson said he was asleep in the first floor living room when awakened by "a loud bang." Richerson reported finding the kitchen in flames which spread rapidly toward the dining room. Starbuck said the reported explosion could have been from the furnace backfiring and sending flames upwards to the kitchen. He said Richerson reported having some aerosol cans in the kitchen. Starbuck said if the fire began in the kitchen, heat could have caused the cans to explode.

Twenty-two firefighters, four fire trucks and two rescue vans were sent from Tri-Unit stations at Stevensville and Royalton township, Starbuck said. He said the wind and large trees hampered efforts and finally, it was decided to allow the fire to burn itself out. Firemen remained at the scene until 4:20 a.m.

Starbuck said Richerson was able to salvage some personal items from the home after leading his family outside. He was aided by two unidentified young men who were passing by, Starbuck said.

Flames were visible for several miles and the rear area of the house was engulfed in flames when the first firemen arrived within five minutes after the alarm, Starbuck said. Sheriff's Deputy Dave Sweet was dispatched to direct traffic.

Berrien sheriff's deputies arrested a suspect in a Sodus township armed robbery Thursday, exactly two years after the robbery occurred.

Michael Harris, 23, of 735 Thresher, Benton Harbor, demanded examination on an armed robbery charge Friday in Berrien District court. He is accused of using a pistol to rob Beatrice Dickerson at Bennie's Resale store Nov. 25, 1974.

Sheriff's officers said Harris was stopped at 11 p.m. Thursday at Crystal and Britain avenues, Benton township, and issued a ticket for driving while his operator's license was suspended. A records check showed he was wanted on the robbery charge.

Harris was jailed under $50,000 bond on the robbery charge. He pleaded guilty to driving while his license was suspended and was placed on presentence investigation.

Ex-Medical Lab Owner Admits Paying Kickback

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A former medical laboratory owner indicted following a federal grand jury's probe of alleged Medicaid-Medicare fraud has admitted to paying a kickback to a physician serving Medicare patients.

Richard Romero, 47, of Corvina, Ind., pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court Friday to one count of paying Dr. Robert Messinger, a Zionsville, Ind., osteopath.

In addition, three Detroit area chiropractors pleaded innocent to charges arising out of the same investigation. Sixteen persons have been indicted, including former State Rep. John P. Flanagan, D-Indianapolis.

Romero owned Chem-Tech Laboratories here and managed the firm after selling out to Detroit millionaire Suhail Shaya, who also has been indicted. Messinger hasn't been charged with any wrongdoing.

Romero told U.S. District Court Judge Jesse Eschbach "As co-director of Chem-Tech, I authorized the payment referred to in that count to Dr. Robert Messinger of Zionsville. He is a doctor of osteopathy. I authorized a payment to him for blood samples drawn from his patients, and sent to Chem-Tech labs. Among those patients were Medicare recipients."

The Detroit chiropractors

were Gregory Cusul, 29, named in a 27-count indictment charging kickbacks and fraud; Carl Ahlteen, 15 counts; and John L. Vovace, 46, charged on 13 counts. They are free on $10,000 bond after turning themselves in to federal marshals in Detroit. They will be tried in late February.

William Wood, an Indianapolis attorney representing Messinger, said his client had "a legitimate, good faith office space lease with Chem-Tech, with the understanding that Chem-Tech would provide quality laboratory services for Dr. Messinger's patients."

Wood added that Chem-Tech was to develop a laboratory business in the office "and pay Dr. Messinger a standard percentage of sales which is standard in similar leases. Chem-Tech failed to carry out what they had promised and I believe in 1975, Dr. Messinger cancelled."

Assistant U.S. Atty. Charles Leonard said he considers the "standard percentage" mentioned by Woods to be a kickback.

Two Twin Cities chiropractors were named in indictments that were returned by the grand jury Nov. 17. Dr. John H. McDonald, of McDonald's Clinic, Fairplain, and Dr. Thomas J. Hudak, of the Korey Chiropractic Clinic, St. Joseph, pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges of receiving kickbacks and mail fraud.

McDonald was indicted on eight counts of mail fraud and two charges of receiving kickbacks from Chem-Tech Laboratories. Hudak was indicated on nine counts of mail fraud and nine counts of receiving kickbacks.

They were released pending trials which were set Jan. 24 for McDonald and Feb. 22 for Hudak in U.S. District court, Fort Wayne.

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

A Royalton township family including three children fled from a fire that leveled their two-story farm home early this morning.

Tri-Unit Fire Chief Haskel (Hack) Starbuck said an explosion may have accompanied the fire that destroyed the Jack Richerson home at 275

West John Beers road near Hollywood road, south of St. Joseph.

Escaping unharmed were Richerson, his wife, Bonnie, and their children, Dennis, 4; James, 6; and Rita, 8. The fire was driven by a stiff wind.

Starbuck said Richerson reported carrying $20,000 in insurance. Starbuck said the loss is at least that much or more.

Cause of the fire hasn't been determined, the chief said. He said his department will investigate, starting with an oil furnace in the basement. Also to be checked are a clothes washer and dryer in the remains of the kitchen. Both were reported in use when the fire began about 1:42 a.m.

Starbuck said Mrs. Richerson reportedly turned on the washer and drier and returned to bed. Richerson said he was asleep in the first floor living room when awakened by "a loud bang." Richerson reported finding the kitchen in flames which spread rapidly toward the dining room.

Starbuck said the reported explosion could have been from the furnace backfiring and sending flames upwards to the kitchen. He said Richerson reported having some aerosol cans in the kitchen. Starbuck said if the fire began in the kitchen, heat could have caused the cans to explode.

Twenty-two firefighters, four fire trucks and two rescue vans were sent from Tri-Unit stations at Stevensville and Royalton township, Starbuck said. He said the wind and large trees hampered efforts and finally, it was decided to allow the fire to burn itself out. Firemen remained at the scene until 4:20 a.m.

Starbuck said Richerson was able to salvage some personal items from the home after leading his family outside. He was aided by two unidentified young men who were passing by, Starbuck said.

Flames were visible for several miles and the rear area of the hose was engulfed in flames when the first firemen arrived within five minutes after the alarm, Starbuck said. Sheriff's Deputy Dave Sweet was dispatched to direct traffic.

Ex-Medical Lab Owner Admits Paying Kickback

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A former medical laboratory owner indicted following a federal grand jury's probe of alleged Medicaid-Medicare fraud has admitted to paying a kickback to a physician serving Medicare patients.

Richard Romero, 47, of Corvuna, Ind., pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court Friday to one count of paying Dr. Robert Messinger, a Zionsville, Ind., osteopath.

In addition, three Detroit area chiropractors pleaded innocent to charges arising from the same investigation. Sixteen persons have been indicted, including former State Rep. John P. Flanagan, D-Indianapolis.

Romero owned Chem-Tech Laboratories here and managed the firm after selling out to Detroit millionaire Suhail Shaya, who also has been indicted. Messinger hasn't been charged with any wrongdoing.

Romero told U.S. District Court Judge Jesse Eschbach: "As co-director of Chem-Tech, I authorized the payment referred to in that count to Dr. Robert Messinger of Zionsville. He is a doctor of osteopathy. I authorized a payment to him for blood samples drawn from his patients and sent to Chem-Tech labs. Among those patients were Medicare recipients."

were Gregory Cesul, 29, named in a 27-count indictment charging kickbacks and fraud; Carl Ahlteen, 15 counts; and John L. Vovoe, 46, charged on 13 counts. They are free on $10,000 bond after turning themselves in to federal marshals in Detroit. They will be tried in late February.

William Wood, an Indianapolis attorney representing Messinger, said his client had "a legitimate, good faith office space lease with Chem-Tech, with the understanding that Chem-Tech would provide quality laboratory services for Dr. Messinger's patients."

Wood added that Chem-Tech was to develop a laboratory business in the office "and pay Dr. Messinger a standard percentage of sales which is standard in similar leases. Chem-Tech failed to carry out what they had promised and I believe in 1975, Dr. Messinger cancelled."

$5 A Week For A Year

St. Joseph Youngsters

Two St. Joseph girls have won a $5-per-week allowance for a year in Kellogg Company's Stick Up For Breakfast Picture Contest.

The two girls were the only winners in southwestern Michigan. There were 555 winners nationwide in three age groups: age 6 and under, age 7-10 and 11-14. During the year they will each receive $260 for a total of $144,300 in prize money. Kellogg Company gave Stick Up For Breakfast Kites to all who entered.

The St. Joseph winners are Jennifer Schuster, age 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Schuster, 1389 Trebor road, St. Joseph, a first grade student at Brown elementary school, and Becky Carlson, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Carlson Jr., 825 Wisconsin avenue, St. Joseph, a kindergarten student at Washington elementary school.

Mrs. Carlson said her daughter has never won anything before, but Jennifer's father said she has won coloring a previous contest.

In the Kellogg contest, contestants were asked to draw or paint an 8 1/2 by 11 inch picture showing a favorite Revolutionary hero eating a good-balanced breakfast. Entries were judged on originality, neatness, use of color and appropriateness.

The Stick Up For Breakfast Picture Contest is just one of the many ways Kellogg Company is striving to improve nutrition awareness and breakfast eating habits, according to Harry Boesch, a spokesman for the company. In 1975, Kellogg Company sponsored the Stick Up For Breakfast nutritional education project in Washington, D.C. public school system where 72,000 elementary school students were taught the basics of good nutrition using breakfast as the critical meal.

The Iowa Breakfast Studies show that only one out of five Americans eats a nutritionally sound breakfast, according to Boesch. These studies also show that omission of breakfast results in a poor attitude toward school and academic achievement, he said. Nutritionists recommend that a sound breakfast contain one-fourth of an individual's daily protein and calorie requirements.

BARODA — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dilcher are on a wedding trip to Port-au-Prince, Haiti, following their wedding Friday, Nov. 26, at the First United Methodist church, Berrien Springs.

Dr. Aaron Gast of the Germantown Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, Pa., uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gast, 502 West Lemon Creek road, Baroda. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dilcher of Elba, N.Y.

The bride wore a polyester jersey gown with detachable chapel length cape with hood trimmed with maribou. She carried sweetheart roses, mums and foxgloves accented with wine starflowers, baby's breath and German statice.

Mrs. John Newcomer, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Gast, sister of the bride, Miss Laurie Anderson, Miss Dyan Gast and Miss Lisa Gast. Miss Grethen Gast, sister of the bride, and Miss Erin Anderson were junior bridesmaids.

Serving as best man was Daniel Franklin. Ushers were Harry Dilcher Jr., brother of the groom, Willie McGill Jr., Marcus McGill and John Newcomer.

A reception was held at the Berrien County Youth Fair Memorial Building, Berrien Springs.

Following their wedding trip,

MRS. PAUL DILCHER
Karin Gast

the couple will reside in Buffalo, N.Y.

The bride is a graduate of Lakeshore high school and attended John Wesley college, Owosso. Capernway Bible school, Holoby Brunn, Sweden, and Biola college, LaMirada, Calif. Her husband attended Biola college and will graduate in December from University of Buffalo, where he will attend graduate school.

$5 A Week For A Year

St. Joseph Youngsters

Two St. Joseph girls have won a $5-per-week allowance for a year in Kellogg Company's Stick Up For Breakfast Picture Contest.

The two girls were the only winners in southwestern Michigan. There were 555 winners nationwide in three age groups: age 6 and under, age 7-10 and 11-14. During the year they will each receive $260 for a total of $144,300 in prize money. Kellogg Company gave Stick Up For Breakfast Kites to all who entered.

The St. Joseph winners are Jennifer Schuster, age 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Schuster, 1389 Trebor road, St. Joseph, a first grade student at Brown elementary school, and Becky Carlson, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Carlson Jr., 825 Wisconsin avenue, St. Joseph, a kindergarten student at Washington elementary school.

Mrs. Carlson said her daughter has never won anything before, but Jennifer's father said she has won coloring a previous contest.

In the Kellogg contest, contestants were asked to draw or paint an 8½ by 11 inch picture showing a favorite Revolutionary hero eating a good, balanced breakfast. Entries were judged on originality, neatness, use of color and appropriateness.

The Stick Up For Breakfast Picture Contest is just one of the many ways Kellogg Company is striving to improve nutrition awareness and breakfast eating habits, according to Harry Boesch, a spokesman for the company. In 1975, Kellogg Company sponsored the Stick Up For Breakfast nutritional education project in Washington, D.C. public school system where 72,000 elementary school students were taught the basics of good nutrition using breakfast as the critical meal.

The Iowa Breakfast Studies show that only one out of five Americans eats a nutritionally sound breakfast, according to Boesch. These studies also show that omission of breakfast results in a poor attitude toward school and academic achievement, he said. Nutritionists recommend that a sound breakfast contain one-fourth of an individual's daily protein and calorie requirements.

RUSSIAN PASTOR VISITS ANDREWS

Tells Of Religion In Soviet Union

By RAY MINNER
Public Relations Director
Andrews University

BERRIEN SPRINGS — He was thin, of medium build, and possessed thick, wavy hair, alternately white and gray.

His quick smile and hearty greeting came almost too easily for the time of day as he plunged into the predawn cold. Pastor Mikhail Kulakov of the Soviet Union was on his way to the airport, headed for southern California and the last part of his visit to the United States.

Pastor Kulakov had secured the permission of the Soviet government to officially attend the Annual Council of the Seventh-day Adventist church in Washington, D.C. A special invitation had been extended by the president of the General Conference, Robert H. Pierson, and Kulakov had opportunity to represent the Adventist churches of Russia. He is the pastor of a church in Tula, a name strange to most western ears, but a city of almost half a million people about 125 miles from Moscow.

This was Kulakov's second visit to America. He had expressed his wish to visit the Adventist universities at the conclusion of the Annual Council and an invitation was quickly issued for him to be a guest at Andrews.

Contrary to popular belief in western countries, religion actually exists in the Soviet Union. As he rode through the early morning darkness, Kulakov talked about the Russian church.

"We have about 30,000 believers in the Soviet Union," he said. "But we have no central organization as Adventists do in other parts of the world." As Kulakov described it, each individual congregation is more or less autonomous — its members free to meet and worship regularly. Pastors visit in other churches from time to time.

Accustomed to hearing of various restrictions, one expected to find Kulakov with a heavy heart — yearning, maybe, for freedom. Not so. "The brethren in America, I find, have a tendency to exaggerate our problems. We do not feel so bound and restricted."

Kulakov's questioner was curious about the Russian people's attitude toward the United States, but Kulakov was more anxious to talk about Adventist believers than about people in general. "The Adventists in Russia are filled with love toward our brethren in America and in all parts of the world." Always upbeat, always positive.

More and more, he said, pastors and lay members in Russia are becoming able to purchase automobiles, and this aids tremendously in the work of the church. The standard of living is improving from one year to the next, and this has its impact on the church, as it would on any segment of society. More young people are being baptized, something which obviously is essential to the well-being of the church.

Kulakov stressed the fact that Russian Adventists scrupulously avoid politics. Like Americans, they desire to be good citizens, but they do not participate in Communist Party affairs. He seemed interested that American Adventists take part freely in the electoral process and expressed genuine regret that he would be leaving this country on Nov. 1 — the day before the election. "I will not know how your election comes out," he said, "until I read about it in the Soviet press."

Never did a note of discouragement intrude on the conversation. "For the church, things are going much better," he said. "I believe in the future we will have a good formal organization. Perhaps one day we will be able to reach the masses in Russia with the news of Jesus' love."

Announce Special Church Events

A musical program will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight at HOPEWELL BAPTIST CHURCH, Benton Harbor. The public is invited.

Among the guests or the 11 a.m. service will be the Rev. Ellis Hull of Pilgrim Rest Baptist church.

Speaker for the 3 p.m. service will be the Rev. Hardy Petty of South Bend, Bethlehem Baptist church, South Bend, Ind., the Rev. C.L. Roy of Battle Creek and Dr. John Carter of St. Joseph. The Rev. Petty will be the guest speaker and the chorus of his church will sing. Also providing music will be the male chorus of Hopewell Baptist church.

The 7:30 p.m. service will be a musical program with the Northern Harmonizers and the Spiritual Workers.

C.L. Taylor is chairman of the observance.

CHURCH NEWS OF RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES

Protestants Lose In Congress

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The new U.S. Congress includes more Roman Catholics and Jews than the outgoing House and Senate, but fewer Protestants.

Although the changes in the denominational ratio are small, they continue a trend that has gone on for some time, bringing the religious makeup of Congress closer into line with that of the population.

Statistics compiled by the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, show there are 371 Protestants in the new Congress, down nine; 129 Roman Catholics, up six, and 27 Jews, up three.

The Roman Catholic and Jewish totals are record highs for both groups.

Five members of the new Congress were listed as unaffiliated with any religious body.

In the present makeup, Roman Catholics constitute about 25 per cent and Jews about 3 per cent of Congress, approximately their proportion of the general population. Protestants hold about 70 per cent of the seats in Congress.

That's about their share of the population according to survey samplings, although the actively participating membership in Protestant churches is only about 40 per cent of the population.

In the new Congress, including both House and Senate, Presbyterians were down six to 60; United Methodists down three to 80; the United Church of Christ down 3 to 22; Episcopalians down two to 64; Baptists down one to 55 and Unitarian-Universalists down two to 11.

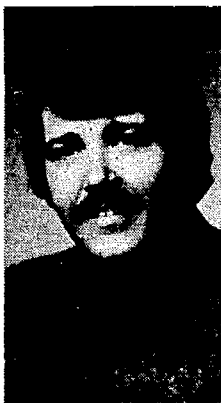

Lutherans, however, were up two to 16; the Churches of Christ up two to six; Latter-day Saints churches up two to 12. The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) stayed the same with five members in Congress. Eastern Orthodox also kept the same number of seats, four.

But two of the four now were in the Senate, with two in the House, while before it was only one in the Senate, three in the House.

An additional clergyman was elected to Congress, Republican John Danforth, an ordained Episcopal priest, who won the Senate seat from which Missouri Democrat Stuart Symington is retiring.

That makes seven clergymen in the new Congress, also including:

Plan Slide Program On Trip To Vietnam

Mrs. Russell (Barbara) Fuller of Ann Arbor will present a slide program on her trip to Vietnam at a special church dinner Tuesday, Nov. 30, at 6:30 p.m. in Sonner hall of First Congregational church, Benton Harbor.

The public is invited to the dinner and to hear Mrs. Fuller. Tickets for the dinner are $3 for adults and $1.25 for children. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Arthur Luedke of St. Joseph before 5 p.m. and with Mrs. W.W. Butcher of St. Joseph after 5 p.m. Reservations are asked by Nov. 28.

Mrs. Fuller is the wife of the Rev. Russell Fuller, minister of Memorial Christian church in Ann Arbor.

Her trip to Vietnam was in connection with the Friendship People-to-People Aid to Vietnam.

She is a member of the Interfaith Council for Peace and in 1971 served as director in Ann Arbor and as a delegate to Citizens Committee to Meet Negotiators at Paris Peace Talks.

Interfaith Council for Peace was initiated in 1963 as a protest against the war in Vietnam and continues in 1977 more convinced than ever of the need for humane leadership and policies in government, according to Mrs. Fuller.

Current concerns are military spending and controls, B-1 Bomber, world hunger, amnesty, reconciliation with and aid to Peoples of Southwest Asia, local problems involving the military-industrial complex and the situation in Chile and Korea.

Mrs. Fuller holds a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan and a master of theology degree from the University of Chicago. She served as a member of the General Board of Christian Church Disciples of Christ from 1971 to 1975.

No. 267. Do Not Forsake Us

The Lamentations of Jeremiah conclude with a vivid description of the horrors suffered by the people of Jerusalem. It is a word picture of a desolate, abandoned wasteland with little or no hope.

"The elders have ceased from the gate, the young men from their music. The joy of our heart is ceased; our dance is turned into mourning. The crown is fallen from our head: woe unto us, that we have sinned! For this our heart is faint; for these things our eyes are dim." (Lamentations 5:14-17)

"Thou, O Lord, remainest for ever; thy throne from generation to generation. Wherefore dost thou forget us for ever, and forsake us so long time? Turn thou us unto thee, O Lord, and we shall be turned; renew our days as of old." (Lamentations 5:19-21)

RUSSIAN PASTOR VISITS ANDREWS

By RAY MINNER
Public Relations Director
Andrews University

BERRIEN SPRINGS — He was thin, of medium build, and possessed thick, wavy hair, alternately white and gray.

His quick smile and hearty greeting came almost too easily for the time of day as he plunged into the predawn cold. Pastor Mikhail Kulakov of the Soviet Union was on his way to the airport, headed for southern California and the last part of his visit to the United States.

Pastor Kulakov had secured the permission of the Soviet government to officially attend the Annual Council of the Seventh-day Adventist church in Washington, D.C. A special invitation had been extended by the president of the General Conference, Robert H. Pierson, and Kulakov had opportunity to represent the Adventist churches of Russia. He is the pastor of a church in Tula, a name strange to most western ears, but a city of almost half a million people about 125 miles from Moscow.

This was Kulakov's second visit to America. He had expressed his wish to visit the Adventist universities at the conclusion of the Annual Council and an invitation was quickly issued for him to be a guest at Andrews.

Contrary to popular belief in western countries, religion actually exists in the Soviet Union. As he rode through the early morning darkness, Kulakov talked about the Russian church.

"We have about 30,000 believers in the Soviet Union," he said. "But we have no central organization as Adventists do in other parts of the world." As Kulakov described it, each individual congregation is more or less autonomous — its members free to meet and worship regularly. Pastors visit in other churches from time to time.

Accustomed to hearing of various restrictions, one expected to find Kulakov with a heavy heart — yearning, maybe, for freedom. Not so. "The brethren in America, I find, have a tendency to exaggerate our problems. We do not feel so bound and restricted."

Kulakov's questioner was curious about the Russian people's attitude toward the United States, but Kulakov was more anxious to talk about Adventist believers than about people in general. "The Adventists in Russia are filled with love toward our brethren in America and in all parts of the world." Always upbeat, always positive.

More and more, he said, pastors and lay members in Russia are becoming able to purchase automobiles, and this aids tremendously in the work of the church. The standard of living is improving from one year to the next, and this has its impact on the church, as it does on any segment of society. More young people are being baptized, something which obviously is essential to the well-being of the church.

Kulakov stressed the fact that Russian Adventists

scrupulously avoid politics. Like Americans, they desire to be good citizens, but they do not participate in Communist Party affairs. He seemed interested that American Adventists take part freely in the electoral process and expressed genuine regret that he would be leaving this country on Nov. 1 — the day before the election. "I will not know how your election comes out," he said, "until I read about it in the Soviet press."

Never did a note of discouragement intrude on the conversation. "For the church, things are going much better," he said. "I believe in the future we will have a good day of organization. Perhaps one day we will be able to reach the masses in Russia with the news of Jesus' love."

NEWS OF RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES

Protestants Lose In Congress

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The new U.S. Congress includes more Roman Catholics and Jews than the outgoing House and Senate, but fewer Protestants.

Although the changes in the denominational ratio are small, they continue a trend that has gone on for some time, bringing the religious makeup of the Congress closer into line with that of the population.

Statistics compiled by the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, show there are 371 Protestants in the new Congress, down nine; 129 Roman Catholics, up six, and 27 Jews, up three.

The Roman Catholic and Jewish totals are record highs for both groups.

Five members of the new Congress were listed as unaffiliated with any religious body.

In the present makeup, Roman Catholics constitute about 25 per cent and Jews about 3 per cent of Congress, approximately their proportion of the general population. Protestants hold about 70 per cent of the seats in Congress.

That's about their share of the population according to survey samplings, although the actively participating membership in Protestant churches is only about 40 per cent of the population.

In the new Congress, including both House and Senate, Presbyterians were down six; United Methodists down three to 80; the United Church of Christ down 3 to 22; Episcopalians down two to 64; Baptists down one to 55 and Unitarian-Universalists down two to 11.

Lutherans, however, were up two to 16; the Churches of Christ up two to six; Latter-day Saints churches up two to 12. The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) stayed the same with five members in Congress. Eastern Orthodox also kept the same number of seats, four.

But two of the four now were in the Senate, with two in the House, while before it was only one in the Senate, three in the House.

An additional clergyman was elected to Congress, Republican John Danforth, an ordained Episcopal priest, who won the Senate seat from which Missouri Democrat Stuart Symington is retiring.

That makes seven clergymen in the new Congress, also including:

Catholic priests Robert F. Drinan of Massachusetts and Robert J. Conrad of Wisconsin; United Methodist Robert W. Edgar of Pennsylvania; United Church of Christ minister Andrew Young of Georgia; Southern Baptist John Buchanan of Alabama; Progressive United Baptist Walter Fautroy of Washington, D.C.

All except Buchanan are Democrats.

Roman Catholics lead in the list of religious affiliation of governors with 15 of that church. Seven are Presbyterians, the second highest, followed by Baptist and Methodists, each with five. Four are Episcopalians, three are Lutherans, three United Church of Christ, two Unitarian-Universalists, two Jewish, one Eastern Orthodox, one Christian Church (Disciples), one Latter-day Saint and one unaffiliated.

Arbor and as a delegate to Citizens Committee to Meet Negotiators at Paris Peace Talks.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Second-Hand Smoke Too Much

Dear Ann Landers: Last night was the absolute end! I told my husband life is too short to spend any part of it being assaulted by a cigarette ever again.

Now my husband isn't speaking to me because I refuse to subordinate my "super-sensitivity" to his "first interests." I'm hurt that he prefers to risk my health rather than speak up — or allow me to. What do I do now? — Mrs. G.

Crazy Mate

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is past 50, intelligent and successful. He tells me (with a perfectly straight face) that it's normal for a man to be attracted to many different women. He believes marriage is anti-human and says it's too bad someone came along with the Judeo-Christian concept because it has done nothing but make hypocrites out of people and produce guilt. He insists extramarital sex for men is just like dancing with a woman other than his wife — only more so. Laver Bay keeps a blanket in his car for his affairs. One assumes he is doing the waltz in the woods; the fox trot on the sand dunes; the cha-cha-cha in motel rooms and the rhumba in our bedroom where he sneaks in when I am out of town. I think the man is crazy as a lion. When he pontificates on this theme he gets an absolutely manic look on his face. Divorce is out of the question. I've made my peace and decided to put up with his foolishness. But I'd like to know what you think. — His Wife

Dear Wife: Since you've made your peace and decided to put up with it, it doesn't matter WHAT I think. You say he's crazy as a lion. I second the motion.

Remembers Dad

Dear Ann: This letter is for anyone whose parents are living. I still have my mom, but Dad died when I was 18. He was only 42. I know what it's like to be given in marriage by a "substitute" and how sad it can be not to be able to show your first-born to your father.

ANN LANDERS

When I hear my friends talk disrespectfully to their parents I can't stand it. Then I remember how I sometimes spoke to my dad and it makes me ashamed. Print this, please. Maybe if I had seen a letter like this when I was 13, I would have shaped up a lot sooner. — Thanks For The Memories

Dear Memories: No trick at all to have 20-20 hindsight, honey. Maybe your letter will help some of my readers look ahead. Let's hope so.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Dr. Lester Coleman

A great many people are highly sensitive to the stings of hornets, wasps, yellow jackets, and honey bees. Unfortunately, not all of them know whether they are or not until they are bitten and develop a severe reaction.

A group of scientists at the Johns Hopkins Hospital has developed a new and interesting skin test that may, in advance, identify people who are extremely allergic to insect stings.

A solution prepared from the venom of a group of wasps is injected under the skin. In severely sensitive people, a red welt appears at the site of injection.

Dr. Lawrence Lichtenstein and his co-workers believe this is an invaluable test for those people who think they are allergic and have not yet proved it.

These same researchers are actively working on a vaccine that will prevent the serious consequences of insect bites in highly allergic people.

Pregnant women past the age of 35 can be offered a test to determine if their unborn child

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be difficult to reach today because you're not apt to tell others what's on your mind. Open up. Let your hair down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't make mountains out of molehills today. You're a bit too sensitive and you're prone to treat minor infractions too seriously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A wise man once said, "It isn't whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game." A good thing for you to recall today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others are likely to find fault with your views today because of the way you plead your case. Don't be apologetic if trying to sell bold daring ideas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Mixing business and pleasure is an elixir that will turn bitter in the glass. Put aside the pursuit of profit. Just have some fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're not very cooperative today, particularly with those you care the most for. Oddly enough, you'll feel their requests infringe upon your time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Concentrate on what you do today, especially if working with sharp tools. You must be extra safety conscious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) The long shot may be more appealing to you today than the sure thing. Realistically this will only get you a bunch of losing tickets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have a low boiling point today. Laugh off the trivial like you usually do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Instead of looking for hidden meanings, take peoples' actions more at face value. You're reading more into them than is really there.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Leave your credit cards at home today if you'll be out with high rollers, or you'll wind up in the deficit column.

For Monday, Nov. 29, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Let compassion take precedence over logic today. You'll get more enjoyment from that which you do from your heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This should be a pleasant day with friends, so long as nothing material is at stake. A misunderstanding could arise moneywise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your chances for success look quite good today, even though you will have a reluctant ally. Persons you didn't count on will be there to take up the slack.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This could be a very productive day if you devote your efforts to things of a creative nature. Pull out the stops where your imagination is concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Joint ventures appear to be a source of profit today, provided they're not too speculative. Play it close to the vest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Base your decisions today on the big picture. Once you get the comprehensive view, you'll see how the smaller pieces fit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Putting forth a little extra effort or going favors today, for persons who have an effect on your career could pay a large bonus at a future date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) You're very popular today. Others will go out of their way to help you, but take care that a well-meaning friend doesn't give you poor business advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be patient today. Good things will come to you if you're willing to wait. Stir matters up and you'll dilute your luck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let pettiness play a role in your actions today. Be generous and forgiving. You'll win others to your banner more readily.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chances for gain look exceedingly keen today if you concentrate on situations that could add to your resources.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although you may have some minor disappointments today, everything should work out in the long run. Keep the faith.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Second-Hand Smoke Too Much

Dear Ann Landers: Last night was the absolute end! I told my husband life is too short to spend any part of it being assaulted by a chain-smoker every again.

Gentle hints to the wren nan (they're the worst!) and trying to move the ashtray inobtrusively never did any good. She's too dense. My husband won't let me tell her straightaway to keep her stinkweeds out of my face and food because she's the boss's wife (a dear lady, by the way).

So — I spent another miserable evening and came away with hair, skin, and clothing reeking, head throbbing, eyes smarting, throat going into paroxysms of coughing from polluted lungs, and nostrils so irritated I couldn't smell anything else for hours. She may be the smoker but I'll probably be the one who will get lung cancer.

Now my husband isn't speaking to me because I refuse to sublimate my "super-sensitivity" to his "best interests." I'm hurt that he prefers to risk my health rather than speak up — or allow me to. What do I do now? — Mrs. G.

Dear Mrs. G.: Don't just sit there — say something! Sample: "I'm sure you wouldn't knowingly make anyone ill, so I must tell you — the smoke from your cigaret is giving me a terrible headache."

Crazy Mate

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is past 50, intelligent and successful. He tells me (with a perfectly straight face) that it's normal for a man to be attracted to many different women. He believes marriage is anti-human and says it's too bad someone came along with the Judeo-Christian concept because it has done nothing but make hypocrites out of people and produce guilt.

He insists extramarital sex for men is just like dancing with a woman other than his wife — only more so.

Lover Boy keeps a blanket in his car for his affairs. One assumes he is doing the waltz in the woods, the fox trot on the sand dunes, the cha-cha in the motel rooms and the rhumba in our bedroom where he sneaks in when I am out of town.

I think the man is crazy as a loon. When he pontificates on this theme he gets an absolutely manic look on his face. Divorce is out of the question. I've made my peace and decided to put up with his foolishness. But I'd like to know what you think. — His Wife

Dear Wife: Since you've made your peace and decided to put up with it, it doesn't matter WHAT I think. You say he's crazy as a loon. I second the motion.

Remembers Dad

Dear Ann: This letter is for anyone whose parents are living. I still have my mom, but Dad died when I was 18. He was only 42. I know what it's like to be given in marriage by a "substitute" and how sad it can be not to be able to show your first-born to your father.

ANN LANDERS

When I hear my friends talk disrespectfully to their parents I can't stand it. Then I remember how I sometimes spoke to my dad and it makes me ashamed.

Print this, please. Maybe if I had seen a letter like it when I was 13, I would have shaped up a lot sooner. — Thanks For The Memories

Dear Memories: No trick at all to have 20-20 hindsight, honey. Maybe your letter will help some of my readers look ahead. Let's hope so.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be difficult to reach today because you're not apt to tell others what's on your mind. Open up. Let your hair down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't make mountains out of molehills today. You're a bit too sensitive and you're prone to treat minor infractions too seriously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A wise man once said, "It isn't whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game." A good thing for you to recall today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others are likely to find fault with your views today because of the way you plead your case. Don't be apologetic if trying to sell bold daring ideas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Mixing business and pleasure is an elixir that will turn bitter in the glass. Put aside the pursuit of profit. Just have some fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're not very cooperative today, particularly with those you care the most for. Oddly enough, you'll feel their requests infringe upon your time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Concentrate on what you do today, especially if working with sharp tools. You must be extra safety conscious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The long shot may be more appealing to you today than the sure thing. Realistically this will only get you a bunch of losing tickets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have a low boiling point today. Laugh off the trivial like you usually do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Instead of looking for hidden meanings, take peoples' actions more at face value. You're reading more into them than is really there.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Leave your credit cards at home today if you'll be out with high rollers, or you'll wind up in the deficit column.

For Monday, Nov. 29, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Let compassion take precedence over logic today. You'll get more enjoyment from that which you do from your heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This should be a pleasant day with friends, so long as nothing material is at stake. A misunderstanding could arise merrily.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your chances for success look quite good today, even though you will have a reluctant ally. Persons you didn't count on will be there to take up the slack.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This could be a very productive day if you devote your efforts to things of a creative nature. Pull out the stops where your imagination is concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Joint ventures appear to be a source of profit today, provided they're not too speculative. Play it close to the vest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Base your decisions today on the big picture. Once you get the comprehensive view, you'll see how the smaller pieces fit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Putting forth a little extra effort or doing favors today for persons who have an effect on your career could pay a large bonus at a future date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're very popular today. Others will go out of their way to help you, but take care that a well-meaning friend doesn't give you poor business advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be patient today. Good things will come to you if you're willing to wait. Stir matters up and you'll dilute your luck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let pettiness play a role in your actions today. Be generous and forgiving. You'll win others to your banner more readily.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chances for gain look exceedingly keen today if you concentrate on situations that could add to your resources.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although you may have some minor disappointments today, everything should work out in the long run. Keep the faith.

A great many people are highly sensitive to the stings of hornets, wasps, yellow jackets, and honey bees. Unfortunately, not all of them know whether they are or not until they are bitten and develop a severe reaction.

A group of scientists at the Johns Hopkins Hospital has developed a new and interesting skin test that may, in advance, identify people who are extremely allergic to insect stings.

A solution prepared from the venom of a group of wasps is injected under the skin. In severely sensitive people, a red welt appears at the site of injection.

Dr. Lawrence Lichtenstein and his co-workers believe this is an invaluable test for those people who think they are allergic and have not yet proved it.

These same researchers are actively working on a vaccine that will prevent the serious consequences of insect bites in highly allergic people.

Pregnant women past the age of 35 can be offered a test to determine if their unborn child will be normal.

The National Institute of Child and Human Development in Bethesda, Md., has just completed a five-year study on a procedure known as "amniocentesis."

By this method, a small amount of fluid, a safely removed from the sac that surrounds the unborn child. Analysis of the fluid can predict potential abnormalities before birth.

In some instances, the analysis can detect the sex of the baby months before birth.

The report said that more than one thousand women were given the test. More than 95 percent of these were found to be normal and could be reassured that no abnormality was present in the fetus (unborn child). The study states:

"Thirty-nine of the women learned from the tests that their child would be seriously deformed and elected to have abortions. There was no indication that the extraction and study of the fluid injured either the mother or the unborn child in this study."

calls. Anyway, North did pass and South tried three diamonds which became the final contract.

Against the normal lead of the nine of hearts (no one had tried the lead of third best from three back then) East would try to cash three heart tricks. South would ruff, draw trumps and wind up with game and rubber.

The normal lead was not made. Walter led his ace of spades first. Then he shifted to a heart. East won and led back a spade. It was obvious to East that Walter had led a singleton ace. It was equally obvious to South who played low. Walter took his queen, put his partner back in with a second heart and set the contract by means of a spade ruff.

State Appeals Ruling On Auto Mechanics Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state has appealed a ruling that found portions of a controversial new auto mechanics' licensing law unconstitutional.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley filed briefs with the Michigan Court of Appeals saying he is convinced the law is constitutionally sound and necessary to protect Michigan consumers.

It would require all motor vehicle repair shops to be licensed, all auto mechanics to be certified by 1981 and written estimates given before any repairs are made.

Mechanics lobbied hard against the bill before it was passed by the legislature last spring and staged a mass protest at the Capitol.

Ingham County Circuit Court Judge James Kallman in October found several sections of the law unconstitutional, including parts that would let the Secretary of State's office define illegal conduct, investigate violations and prosecute repair shops that break the law.

The judge ruled the law gave too many functions to one state agency, and violated a repair shop's right to due process.

He also found unconstitutional provisions requiring shops to charge customers only for the actual cost of repairs, even if that cost is less than the written estimate.

Despite Kallman's ruling, the state has gone ahead with implementation of several provisions of the law. Auto shops are being certified and consumer complaints about mechanics are being taken.

Responding to Kallman's ruling, Kelley said that it is "a basic principle of administrative law that functions be concentrated in one agency. Because an agency is considered expert in a certain area, it is not unusual or inherently wrong for the same agency to serve as investigator, prosecutor and judge" as long as persons may appeal that agency's decisions.

In addition, Kelley said, the various functions of the mechanics law would be performed by several persons in the agency, not by a single official.

"All state licensing boards use this system," he said, including boards to license and regulate doctors, lawyers and dozens of other professions.

Some state officials have said they are worried that Kallman's ruling, if upheld, could force licensing boards to substantially change the way they operate.

Kelley also said it is proper for the legislature to leave the writing of rules to a state agency like the Secretary of State's office.

Abandoned Baby 'A Fighter'

DETROIT (AP) — A week-old baby discovered in a Salvation Army collection box has been nicknamed "Joey Louie" by nurses at the hospital where he has been since he was found early this week. A hospital spokesman said the four-pound, 11-ounce boy got the name "because he's a fighter." The hospital reportedly has been flooded with calls from people who want to adopt the child, who was discovered by workers unloading a suburban collection box Tuesday. Doctors said they believe the baby was in the box for nearly 24 hours and added the child's life may have been saved by clothing inside the box which kept him from freezing. The spokesman said all adoption queries were being referred to the Wayne County Department of Social Services, which will have custody of the infant when he is well enough to leave the hospital.

State Appeals Ruling On Auto Mechanics Law

ARTIFICIAL: Dr. Henry Buchwald, surgery professor at University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, holds artificial gland he helped invent. Five of the glands have been implanted in human chests to secrete heparin in the treatment of blood clots. Drugs stored in the device go through the tube into a vein automatically. A hypodermic needle refills the "gland" after a few weeks. (AP Wirephoto)

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state has appealed a ruling that found portions of a controversial new auto mechanics' licensing law unconstitutional.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley filed briefs with the Michigan Court of Appeals saying he is convinced the law is constitutionally sound and necessary to protect Michigan consumers.

It would require all motor vehicle repair shops to be licensed, all auto mechanics to be certified by 1981 and written estimates given before any repairs are made.

Mechanics lobbied hard against the bill before it was passed by the legislature last spring and staged a mass protest at the Capitol.

Ingham County Circuit Court Judge James Kallman in October found several sections of the law unconstitutional, including parts that would let the Secretary of State's office define illegal conduct, investigate violations and prosecute repair shops that break the law.

The judge ruled the law gave too many functions to one state agency, and violated a repair shop's right to due process.

He also found unconstitutional vague provisions requiring shops to charge customers only for the actual cost of repairs, even if that cost is less than the written estimate.

Despite Kallman's ruling, the state has gone ahead with implementation of several provisions of the law. Auto shops are being certified and consumer complaints about mechanics are being taken.

Responding to Kallman's ruling, Kelley said that it is "a basic principle of administrative law that functions be concentrated in one agency. Because an agency is considered expert in a certain area, it is not unusual or inherently wrong for the same agency to serve as investigator, prosecutor and judge" as long as persons may appeal that agency's decisions.

In addition, Kelley said, the various functions of the mechanics law would be performed by several persons in the agency, not by a single official.

"All state licensing boards use this system," he said, including boards to license and regulate doctors, lawyers and dozens of other professions.

Some state officials have said they are worried that Kallman's ruling, if upheld, could force licensing boards to substantially change the way they operate.

Kelley also said it is proper for the legislature to leave writing of rules to an agency like the Secretary of State's office.

Abandoned Baby 'A Fighter'

DETROIT (AP) — A week-old baby discovered in a Salvation Army collection box has been nicknamed "Joey Louis" by nurses at the hospital where he has been since he was found early this week. A hospital spokesman said the four-pound, 11-ounce boy got the name "because he's a fighter." The hospital reportedly has been flooded with calls from people who want to adopt the child, who was discovered by workers unloading a suburban collection box Tuesday. Doctors said they believe the baby was in the box for nearly 24 hours and added the child's life may have been saved by clothing inside the box which kept him from freezing. The spokesman said all adoption queries were being referred to the Wayne County Department of Social Services, which will have custody of the infant when he is well enough to leave the hospital.

'Michigame' Winner May Expand Plans

DETROIT (AP) — Margaret Peters of Grosse Pointe Farms is thinking about expanding her "travel plans." Mrs. Peters turned her fourth "Michigame" lottery appearance into another winner Friday night, bringing her total earnings in the televised Michigan lottery show to $412,500. She and her husband have been postponing a wedding anniversary trip ever since she first became a big winner last week. They originally planned to fly to Hawaii, but now, she says, there's no telling where they'll go. Other winners in the weekly drawing, which was delayed one day because of the Thanksgiving holiday, were: —The Four Wishes Lottery Club, a family club from Indian River represented by William Taylor, winning $30,500. —Clayton Baker, 53, of Royal Oak, won $16,500. —Winning $4,500 apiece were Francis Koslow, 55, of Livonia; William Lesko, 53, of Roseville; Richard Schoonsee, 35, of Pontiac, and Virgie Weaver, 54, of Elkatawa, Ky.

He's After Vacant Post

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State Rep. Harold J. Scott, D-Flint, says he will seek the state Senate seat vacated by Dale Kildee, who won election Nov. 2 to the U.S. Congress. Scott, who has been a legislator for four years and an educator for 11 years before that, said he would formally announce his candidacy after Gov. William Milliken sets a date for the special primary contest to fill Kildee's seat.

Hampton Death Probe Is Sought

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A civil liberties group wants the House committee investigating the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. to look into the death of Black Panther leader Fred Hampton.

Morton H. Halperin, director of the Project on National Security and Civil Liberties, made the request Friday in releasing documents that he said "raise grave questions about the FBI's role in Hampton's death."

Hampton, chairman of the Illinois branch of the Black Panther party, was fatally shot during a pre-dawn police raid on his apartment in Chicago on Dec. 4, 1969. A second Panther, Mark Clark, was killed and four others were wounded.

Richard Sprague, chief counsel and director of the House Select Committee on Assassinations, could not be reached for comment on Halperin's request. An FBI spokesman said the agency had no comment.

The House committee is authorized to look into other assassinations.

The documents compiled by the project, which is sponsored jointly by the American Civil Liberties Union and the Center for National Security Studies, all were made public previously. Some were cited as evidence during a current civil trial in Chicago of a damage suit brought by the raid's survivors and the heirs of Hampton and Clark.

Gubernatorial Aide Resigns

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — James C. Kellogg has resigned as a gubernatorial aide to devote full-time to his job as deputy director of the Department of State Highways and Transportation. In a letter to Gov. William G. Milliken, Kellogg said holding both jobs consumed too much of his time.

The police claimed they were met by a hail of Panther bullets when they went to the apartment with a warrant to search for guns and ammunition. The Panthers charged that the police burst in shooting and murdered Hampton while he slept.

A federal grand jury in May 1970 criticized the police raid.

but did not indict anyone. The grand jury reported that the police fired at least 82 bullets at the apartment, while only one shot apparently was fired from inside. The jury also said the Chicago FBI gave the police the tip that weapons were stockpiled in Hampton's apartment.

Halperin said the documents show that the FBI sent a fake letter, purportedly from an anonymous "black brother," advising a leader of the Blackstone Rangers that the Black Panthers intended to kill him.

According to an FBI memo, the letter contained the words, "I know what I'd do if I was you." The memo described the Blackstone Rangers as a "violence-prone" group "to whom violent-type activity, shooting and the like, are second nature."

Halperin said the documents indicated that after the fake letter failed to produce any results, the FBI encouraged the police raid.

The documents included an FBI memo saying the agency had advised Chicago police of the location of Hampton's bed. There was no direct suggestion that Hampton be killed, although Halperin claimed the documents "strongly suggest" that this was the FBI's objective.

Seven Panthers who survived the raid were indicted in January 1970 for attempted murder of the police, but then Illinois State Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan dropped the charges in May 1970 for lack of evidence.

In October 1972, Hanrahan, an assistant and a dozen policemen were acquitted in Cook County Criminal Court of charges they conspired to obstruct justice in the case.

Juvenile Law Hearings

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Four public hearings will be held next month on a compromise proposal to reform Michigan's laws regarding juvenile offenders. The hearings will be held before a House Special Subcommittee on Juvenile Code Revision, which has been studying various reform proposals for more than a year. The first hearing will be held Dec. 6 in Flint. Subsequent hearings will be held in Saginaw Township, Marquette and Detroit. The legislation would remove juveniles from the jurisdiction of courts and impose a ban on placing juveniles in jail for any reason.

Judge Denies Allegations

DETROIT (AP) — Wayne County Probate Judge Ernest Boehm has denied allegations by the Michigan Association for Retarded Citizens that he broke state law in appointing guardians after 40-second hearings. Boehm says he spent as long as three or four minutes on some of the guardianship cases he heard Oct. 1 at the Oakdale Center for the Developmentally Disabled in Lapeer. The class action suit filed on behalf of all institutionalized persons assigned guardians by the judge asks the Wayne County Circuit Court to order Boehm to rehear all their cases. "I am afraid that the people who initiated this do not understand the need for many appointments of guardians in a short time," Boehm said.

Millionaire parties, popular in some parts of the state, have been technically illegal until a new law was passed earlier this year.

Organizations wanting to hold millionaire parties can conduct two a year for a fee of $50 each. The fee will help cover the expense of licensing and supervising the parties.

Ex-POW Blasts 'Red-Baiters'

DETROIT (AP) — A former Detroit man who has been living in the People's Republic of China since his release from a North Korean prisoner of war camp says China and the U.S. could have better relations were it not for Red-baiters like the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

James G. Veneris, 54, said in an interview Friday that he and 20 other American POWs were told they could go anywhere they wanted when they were released from North Korean POW camps at the end of the Korean War.

They chose China, he said, despite being branded "traitors and turncoats" by their U.S. countrymen. Veneris said he wound up as a lathe operator in a Tsinan paper plant, a job he still holds.

Looking and acting more like a well-dressed American executive than a Chinese peasant, Veneris said he is visiting the U.S. in an effort to strengthen friendship between the Chinese and American people.

"I want to clear up misconceptions ... there are so many," he said of his six-month U.S. visit, during which he is staying with family and friends.

He said his elderly mother lives in California while most of his friends are in his old hometown of Vandergrift, Pa., a small steel town near Pittsburgh.

During his 23 years in China, he said, "I have talked with peasants, officers, factory workers and members of the Communist party."

"Everyone speaks warmly of the American people," he said, adding, "Relations between the two countries could have been better for years had it not been for a few wrenches thrown in."

He blamed State Department policy makers and the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin for spearheading American anti-communism against China and other Communist countries.

Veneris said since his arrival in this country July 29, on a tour paid for by the Chinese Red Cross, he has encountered little hostility and many questions about life in China.

His wages average $37 a month, Veneris said, adding "In China you can live very well on that money." Inflation is nonexistent, he claimed, adding, "Two pounds of flour cost 21 cents in 1949 and 21 cents today."

Veneris studied the Chinese language and attended Peoples University in Peking. After his first Chinese wife died, he remarried and now occupies a six-room home near the paper mill.

Of his associations with Chinese, Veneris said, "I have taken my heart and linked it with their hearts ... the basic thing about China is the government's faith in the masses."

Parents Could Help Johnny Read-Teachers

CHICAGO (AP) — Parents could improve their children's reading and writing skills if they would read more themselves and read to their children at a very young age, say the leaders of the National Council of Teachers of English.

Television, bad tests and overcrowded classrooms are among reasons many children are not learning to read and write well, according to Charlotte K. Brooks, the council's 1977 president, and Dr. Charlotte S. Huck, the outgoing president.

They said in an interview Friday during the council's annual convention that teachers and parents also must bear some of the blame. They said reading to children should start before they reach school age and that they should be given more time to read at school.

Detroit Probes Charges Against Ex-Youth Chief

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit police sex crimes unit is probing allegations that a dismissed supervisor at a Wayne County youth home sexually propositioned children under his care.

The chief of the state welfare department has demanded to know why top welfare officials in Wayne County failed to inform police of the allegations.

The police probe was launched Friday after an informant called the office of Wayne County Prosecutor William Cahalan. The Detroit Free Press said several sources in the county welfare agency told the newspaper officials have known of the allegations for a year or more and failed to take action.

State records showed the supervisor was fired Oct. 28 for allegedly engaging in "misconduct including improprieties with state wards."

John T. Dempsey, head of the Michigan Department of Social Services, said county welfare officials have a legal obligation to inform police of criminal allegations against employees.

Asked about the county agency's failure to inform police in the case, Dempsey said, "I'm very dissatisfied with it. We've asked for a fuller explanation."

Joseph LaRosa, deputy director of the state welfare department, said, "There is some information that there was clear knowledge of this guy's activities at least a year ago."

Bruce Huckaby, deputy director of the Wayne County Department of Social Services, denied allegations that agency officials knew of the supervisor's activity for a year or more.

Huckaby said he is not sure whether information on the supervisor should have been passed along to police.

Welfare programs in Michigan are the target of a probe by the state attorney general's office, which was widened recently at Dempsey's request.

The Wayne County welfare department's $100 million general assistance program is currently the focus of investigations by five government agencies, including the attorney general.

Attorney Is Dead

DETROIT (AP) — Harry Pliskow, a lawyer who some judges say handled more criminal cases than any attorney in the history of Detroit Recorder's Court, is dead.

Pliskow died Thursday from complications following a heart attack. He was 68. Pliskow was a leader in Detroit's Jewish community.

DETROIT (AP) — A former Detroit man who has been living in the People's Republic of China since his release from a North Korean prisoner of war camp says China and the U.S. could have better relations were it not for Red-baiters like the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

James G. Veneris, 54, said in an interview Friday that he and 20 other American POWs were told they could go anywhere they wanted when they were released from North Korean POW camps at the end of the Korean War.

They chose China, he said, despite being branded "traitors and turncoats" by their U.S. countrymen. Veneris said he wound up as a lathe operator in a Tsinan paper plant, a job he still holds.

Looking and acting more like a well-dressed American executive than a Chinese peasant, Veneris said he is strengthening the U.S. in an effort to strengthen friendship between the Chinese and American people.

"I want to clear up misconceptions... there are so many," he said of his six-month U.S. visit, during which he is staying with family and friends.

He said his elderly mother lives in California while most of his friends are in his old hometown of Vandergrift, Pa., a small steel town near Pittsburgh.

During his 23 years in China, he said, "I have talked with peasants, officers, factory workers and members of the Communist party."

Palestinians Keeping Arms

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Palestinian high command here refused to surrender guerrilla heavy arms to Arab peacekeepers today and instead demanded that routes to southern Lebanon near the Israeli border be reopened for the guerrillas, a Palestinian spokesman said.

Israel has reinforced its border, warning that it will not tolerate near it either Palestinians or Syrian troops that make up the bulk of an Arab League peacekeeping force that now occupies all of Lebanon except a small strip along the border.

Teledyne Target Of Suit

DETROIT (AP) — The California-based Teledyne Corp. and 16 of its officials are the targets of a $925 million class action lawsuit filed by a former Ford Motor Co. finance officer.

Theodore O. Yntema, 76, retired Ford vice president and finance committee chairman charged Teledyne with conspiracy, saying its officers failed to disclose the true value of stock Yntema and others sold to the firm during the past two years.

Yntema said he would never have sold the stock at the low offering price if he had known its true worth.

Teledyne, a conglomerate based in Hawthorne, Calif., is engaged in insurance, finance, industrial products, aviation and electronics, specialty metals and consumer items.

The suit claims Teledyne officials offered to buy outstanding shares of common stock at $18 a share in May 1975, and purchased 3.6 million shares at that price, including 3,300 shares sold by Yntema.

Last Feb. 9, the corporation offered to buy outstanding shares at $40 and acquired another 2.5 million shares, according to the suit.

Teledyne made the 1975 offer without its officers disclosing knowledge they had about the firm's rising financial status, the suit claims. Withholding that information resulted in "personal benefit to them (directors and officers)," the suit said.

Farmers Warned Of Fly-By-Nights

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The director of the state Corporation and Securities Bureau warned Michigan farmers Friday to be wary of fly-by-night out-of-state promoters offering long-term memberships in "cooperative" organizations.

Hugh H. Makens said farmers in several other states have been lured into buying securities in fake cooperatives, in the form of notes or memberships that last longer than one year.

In other states, the phony promoters have sold securities to farmers, created enough activity to persuade people the co-op will be a success, and then have taken off with the money, Makens said.

He said although there has yet been no evidence of such problems in this state, "it is only a matter of time before schemes of this sort surface in Michigan."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., and his wife Susan have separated after four years of marriage, according to a spokeswoman for the congressman.

Carter Not Ruling Out Role For Kissinger

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter continues to hold open the possibility that he may try to enlist Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for special diplomatic assignments.

Carter press secretary Jody Powell said Friday that the President-elect "would not feel it improper if the appropriate occasion presented itself to ask for Dr. Kissinger's assistance."

Powell noted that past presidents have, from time to time, recruited prominent figures from prior administrations to take on special chores. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and some other prominent Democrats have suggested that Carter make the outgoing secretary of state a special envoy to the troubled Middle East.

Carter sharply criticized Kissinger and his style of personal diplomacy during the campaign, but he said last week that he looks forward to "a long relationship" with Kissinger.

Powell also left open the possibility that Carter might decide to attend a NATO session in London next May, although at present the President-elect still does not plan any overseas travel in his first year in office.

Powell said Carter would go abroad if he felt a foreign trip was in the nation's best interests.

When Carter and President Ford met at the White House last Monday, Ford suggested Carter might find it "very, very beneficial" to meet with the leaders of the NATO allies.

Carter spent Friday at home where, by Powell's account, he spent most of his time making long distance phone calls and meeting with aides to discuss the selection of his Cabinet and other top officials.

Powell said the talent hunt was Carter's "chief concern" and would continue today. He had no formal appointments on his schedule.

Carter plans to meet Monday with his senior foreign policy advisers and will meet later in the week with economic advisers, Powell said.

The President-elect will make a two-day visit to Washington sometime during the week of Dec. 5, the spokesman added.

Powell said that Carter and the Democratic-controlled Congress would not produce a joint 1978 federal budget.

Aides to the President-elect in Washington were working closely with staffs of the congressional budget committees, Powell said, but Carter is conscious of the constitutional separation of powers and "won't turn away from executive responsibility."

He added that the incoming President will submit amendments to the budget President Ford will unveil prior to the Jan. 20 inaugural and then let Congress deal with them "according to their best wisdom." Powell said that the President-elect's promises to consult closely with Congress on the budget and on foreign policy does not mean that he intends to relinquish executive responsibility in those areas.

Berrien Retiree, Son Killed In Crash

VERO BEACH, Fla. — A former Lake Michigan Beach resident and his son were killed near here Wednesday afternoon when the pickup truck they were in was struck by a freight train. Killed in the 2:20 p.m. crash were Clyde Cecil Gravenmiller, 72, route 2, Vero Beach, Fla., and his son Donald Gravenmiller, 48, Culver City, Calif., according to the Florida State Highway Patrol.

The crash occurred six miles north of here. The Gravenmiller was alone in the pickup truck, according to police. The railroad crossing's signal bell and signal lights were working at the time of the accident. The northbound train struck the side of the pickup truck which was being driven by the younger Gravenmiller, police said. Clyde Gravenmiller moved to Florida about 10 years ago, shortly after his retirement from Auto Specialties Manufacturing company.

Today In MICHIGAN

'Redlining' Probe Due

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Crediting her with being an early leader in fighting "redlining," Michigan's two top legislative leaders have asked Detroit Common Councilwoman Erma Henderson to head a statewide coalition to investigate the practice. Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald of Detroit and House Speaker Bobby Crim of Davison also asked Henderson to call a statewide conference as soon as possible to probe redlining. Redlining involves financial institutions refusing to offer mortgages on property in certain parts of cities. The practice, frequently associated with low-income and minority neighborhoods, has been particularly prevalent in some sections of Detroit, say legislators.

Driver Called Legally Drunk

DETROIT (AP) — An autopsy has revealed that the driver of a death-car was legally drunk when he drove the wrong way on Interstate Highway 75 Thanksgiving Day, smashing head-on into a Sterling Heights family's van. Dr. Werner Spitz, Wayne County medical examiner, said Friday that 39-year-old Lester Owens of Detroit had a 0.25 alcohol content in his blood, more than twice the 0.10 reading defined by Michigan law as drunk. Both Owens and Richard Paul Reiff, 41, of Sterling Heights, the driver of the van, died in the crash in which six other members of Reiff's family were injured.

Oakland Profs Will Vote

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Members of the American Association of University Professors chapter at Oakland University will vote next month on a tentative three-year agreement with the school. Bargainers for the AAUP and the university reached the tentative agreement earlier this week. The 280 AAUP chapter members will vote on the pact. There are 310 faculty members at Oakland, located in this city north of Detroit. A university official said the pact includes salary increases of 4 per cent the first year, 3.5 per cent the second and 2.5 in the third, along with a one-time cost of living supplemental payment in the third year of the contract. The contract, if ratified, would be retroactive to July 1. The faculty struck the university for the first three days of classes in September over a contract dispute. Current salaries at the university range from $18,000 for an instructor to $29,200 for a full professor.

New MERC Chairman

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — University of Michigan administrator Charles M. Rehmus of Ann Arbor has been named chairman of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission. Gov. William Milliken made the appointment. Rehmus is co-director of the Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations at the U-M and teaches political science there. He succeeds Robert G. Howlett of Grand Rapids, who resigned, and will serve the remainder of a term ending June 30, 1977. The MERC reviews and resolves charges of unfair labor practices.

No Speedy Treatment

DETROIT (AP) — Prisoners with mental problems do not get speedy treatment and sometimes are released because of the new mental health codes, says the psychologist at the Detroit House of Corrections. "Severely mentally ill patients who are paranoid and dangerous are frequently discharged from the prison because we are unable to get the appropriate proceedings finished before that person's jail term is finished," T. K. Nelder, head of Dehoko's counseling service, said. Nelder said about 25 such persons are released each year, but that none of them has committed a murder since his release. Nelder said that before a new state mental health code was adopted, an alleged mentally ill prisoner could be committed to a psychiatric hospital within two weeks — or one week in an emergency. Under the new code, it takes at least a month to get such a person committed, said Nelder.

Fishing License Sale To Start

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's 1977 fishing licenses will go on sale throughout the state in early December in time for the ice fishing season. The Department of Natural Resources said about 1.5 million licenses will be mailed to 2,800 local dealers during the first week of December. Vendors also will have about 350,000 trout and salmon stamps. Fees for 1977 are no different than for 1976, officials said, with annual licenses going for $5.25 for residents, $10.25 for non-residents and $3.25 for the trout and salmon stamp.

Finale To Mistaken Raid

DETROIT (AP) — A mistaken police raid has resulted in a $21,000-out-of-court settlement for five Ann Arbor women from State and Ann Arbor police. The settlement in the chambers of U.S. District Judge Damon Keith is the final episode in a raid on the women's home in Ann Arbor on Dec. 4, 1972. State and Ann Arbor police were searching for gunmen suspected of shooting four officers of the Detroit police STRESS unit. The officers later admitted they had entered the wrong house. The women filed a $2 million lawsuit. The women alleged police smashed in the door to their apartment without identifying themselves and without producing search warrants and forced them to stand undressed on their porch for 20 minutes. STRESS, a special Detroit police unit now disbanded, is an acronym for Stop the Robberies. Enjoy Safe Streets.

Carter Win Challenged In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's narrow victory in Ohio has been challenged in a federal lawsuit charging his supporters with "widespread election fraud."

The suit, which seeks to overturn the Nov. 2 presidential election in Ohio and schedule a new election, was filed Friday in U.S. District Court by attorney Richard Reichel on behalf of electors from the Republican, U.S. Labor and American parties.

"It is based upon our belief that in the recent election there was widespread election fraud that we have been able to document to a certain extent," Reichel said.

Carter won the state's 25 electoral votes with a 9,333-vote victory over President Ford.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown has ordered a recount to begin Monday and has agreed to "check" allegations of fraud, but he has not launched a formal investigation.

Should the recount show that Ford carried Ohio, Carter still would have 272 electoral votes nationwide, two more than needed for victory.

COLOMA — Over $500 worth of stereo equipment was taken during a break-in of a Coloma township summer residence earlier this week.

Korean Gift Is Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — House majority whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., says the $4,000 he received from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park was deposited in office accounts that paid office and political expenses and financed interest-free loans to himself and others.

McFall, a candidate for the post of Democratic House floor leader, said he regarded the money as campaign contributions. He said Park never suggested anything that could be interpreted as a bribe offer.

Illegitimate Baby Mark Of Woman

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) — Having babies out of wedlock is becoming a status symbol for teen-age girls, a social welfare executive says.

Betty Schwartz, executive director of the Florence Crittenton Society in the state of Maryland, told Ontario's first provincial conference on family planning that communities must "unsel babies as a status symbol for young adolescents."

Miss Schwartz said the stigma that once was attached to having a child out of wedlock has faded. For many girls the baby becomes "living proof that you have made it sexually; therefore you have made it as a human being."

She said another problem is that more young mothers of illegitimate children are keeping their babies. In the United States, only about 10 per cent give them up for adoption, she said.

Miss Schwartz told the conference, which ended Friday, that she is concerned that the rights of young adolescents to have and keep their babies have obscured the rights of the babies themselves.

She said few teen-agers make good parents, and the increase in child abuse and neglect is directly related to the increase in unwed teen-age mothers.

Hoosier Accused Of Hit-And-Run

NILES — A South Bend man was arrested on a charge of felonious assault after another South Bend man was struck by a hit-and-run driver south of here early this morning in what Niles township police believe may have been a case of mistaken identity. Lodged in the Niles city jail on the charge was Julius Rudasics Jr., 18. Police said he was questioned at his home by Indiana authorities and voluntarily waived extradition to Michigan.

Police said the victim, Ray Brown, 19, was treated and released from Pawating hospital, Niles. He was struck by an auto in the parking lot of Jay's Lounge, a tavern located on US-31 South, near the satellite. Brown suffered cuts on his face when struck by an auto after he walked from the tavern about 1:45 a.m. Police said witnesses told officers an auto pulled from the parking lot onto the highway, returned to the lot and then struck Brown before leaving the scene.

Police said the arrested man and Brown's twin brother, Ray, were reported to have argued in the past and the driver of the auto may have mistaken one twin for the other.

State police from the Benton Harbor post and Berrien metro narcotics officers Friday afternoon arrested three young Stevensville women and seized suspected cocaine and marijuana worth about $350, according to Trooper James Delgado.

Illegitimate Baby Mark Of Woman

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) — Having babies out of wedlock is becoming a status symbol for teen-age girls, a social welfare executive says.

Betty Schwartz, executive director of the Florence Crittenton Society in the state of Maryland, told Ontario's first provincial conference on family planning that communities must "unself babies as a status symbol for young adolescents."

Miss Schwartz said the stigma that once was attached to having a child out of wedlock has faded. For many girls the baby becomes "living proof that you have made it sexually; therefore you have made it as a human being."

She said another problem is that more young mothers of illegitimate children are keeping their babies. In the United States, only about 10 per cent give them up for adoption, she said.

Miss Schwartz told the conference, which ended Friday, that she is concerned that the rights of young adolescents to have and keep their babies have obscured the rights of the babies themselves.

She said few teen-agers make good parents, and the increase in child abuse and neglect is directly related to the increase in unwed teen-age mothers.

Hoosier Accused Of Hit-And-Run

NILES — A South Bend man was arrested on a charge of felonious assault after another South Bend man was struck by a hit-and-run driver south of here early this morning in what Niles township police believe may have been a case of mistaken identity. Lodged in the Niles city jail on the charge was Julius Rudasics Jr., 19. Police said he was questioned at his home by Indiana authorities and voluntarily waived extradition to Michigan.

Police said the victim, Ray Brown, 19, was treated and released from Pawating hospital, Niles. He was struck by an auto in the parking lot of Jay's Lounge, a tavern located on US-31 South, near the state line. Brown suffered cuts on his face when struck by an auto after he walked from the tavern about 1:45 a.m. Police said witnesses told officers an auto pulled from the parking lot onto the highway, returned to the lot and then struck Brown before leaving the scene.

Police said the arrested man and Brown's twin brother, Roy, were reported to have argued in the past and the driver of the auto may have mistaken one twin for the other.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Three Women Face Narcotics Charges

State police from the Benton Harbor post and Berrien metro narcotics officers Friday afternoon arrested three young Stevensville women and seized suspected cocaine and marijuana worth about $350, according to Trooper James Delgado.

Delgado said the arrests were made about 2:30 p.m. in an apartment at 1718 Red Arrow highway, Stevensville.

Booked into the Berrien county jail on charges of possession of cocaine and possession of marijuana with intent to deliver were Rose Lynn Fester, 20, and Debra Kay Sorrels, 17, both of 1718 Red Arrow highway. Booked on a charge of being an inmate of a disorderly house was Eunice Jane Varner, 17, of the same address.

Delgado, along with Trooper George Tiernan, seized a little over a pound of suspected marijuana and five small bags gies of suspected cocaine, according to Delgado. He said the arrest followed a tip. A search warrant was authorized by Assistant Berrien Prosecutor Jeff Long and issued by Fifth District Judge John T. Hammond. Delgado said.

St. Joseph police said a hit and run driver struck and toppled a street light pole at the corner of Main and Elm streets Friday night. Police said the pole was discovered lying in the roadway at 11:27 p.m.

Robert Dillard of 969 East John Beers road south of St. Joseph told St. Joseph police two snowflakes on his International Scout were slashed in the parking lot of Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co. Friday night. Police said the tires were valued at $200 apiece.

Firemen reported the fire was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Vandergest, M-51, near the village limits. Fire damage was confined to the living room where the flames broke out, firemen reported. 'Redlining' Probe Due LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Crediting her with being an early leader in fighting "redlining," Michigan's two top legislative leaders have asked Detroit Common Councilwoman Erma Henderson to head a statewide coalition to investigate the practice. Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald of Detroit and House Speaker Bobby Crim of Davison also asked Henderson to call a statewide conference as soon as possible to probe redlining. Redlining involves financial institutions refusing to offer mortgages on property in certain parts of cities. The practice, frequently associated with low-income and minority neighborhoods, has been particularly prevalent in some sections of Detroit, say legislators.

Driver Called Legally Drunk

DETROIT (AP) — An autopsy has revealed that the driver of a death-car was legally drunk when he drove the wrong way on Interstate Highway 75 Thanksgiving Day, smashing head-on into a Sterling Heights family's van. Dr. Werner Spitz, Wayne County medical examiner, said Friday that 59-year-old Lester Owens of Detroit had an 0.25 alcohol content in his blood, more than twice the 0.10 reading defined by Michigan law as drunk. Both Owens and Richard Paul Reiff, 41, of Sterling Heights, the driver of the van, died in the crash in which six other members of Reiff's family were injured.

Oakland Profs Will Vote

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Members of the American Association of University Professors chapter at Oakland University will vote next month on a tentative three-year agreement with the school. Bargainers for the AAUP and the university reached the tentative agreement earlier this week. The 280 AAUP chapter members will vote on the pact. There are 310 faculty members at Oakland, located in this city north of Detroit. A university official said the pact includes salary increases of 4 per cent the first year, 3.5 per cent the second and 2.5 in the third, along with a one-time cost of living supplemental payment in the third year of the contract. The contract, if ratified, would be retroactive to July 1. The faculty struck the university for the first three days of classes in September over a contract dispute. Current salaries at the university range from $16,600 for an instructor to $29,200 for a full professor.

New MERC Chairman

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — University of Michigan administrator Charles M. Rehnus of Ann Arbor has been named chairman of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission. Gov. William Milliken made the appointment. Rehnus is co-director of the Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations at the U-M and teaches political science there. He succeeds Robert G. Howlett of Grand Rapids, who resigned, and will serve the remainder of a term ending June 30, 1977. The MERC reviews and resolves charges of unfair labor practices.

No Speedy Treatment

DETROIT (AP) — Prisoners with mental problems do not get speedy treatment and sometimes are released because of the new mental health codes, says the psychologist at the Detroit House of Corrections. "Severely mentally ill patients who are paranoid and dangerous are frequently discharged from the prison because we are unable to get the appropriate proceedings finished before that person's jail term is finished," T. K. Nelder, head of Dehoco's counseling service, said. Nelder said about 25 such persons are released each year, but that none of them has committed a murder since his release. Nelder said that before a new state mental health code was adopted, an alleged mentally ill prisoner could be committed to a psychiatric hospital within two weeks — or one week in an emergency. Under the new code, it takes at least a month to get such a person committed, said Nelder.

Fishing License Sale To Start

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's 1977 fishing licenses will go on sale throughout the state in early December in time for the ice fishing season. The Department of Natural Resources said about 1.5 million licenses will be mailed to 2,800 local dealers during the first week of December. Vendors also will have about 350,000 trout and salmon stamps. Fees for 1977 are no different than for 1976, officials said, with annual licenses going for $5.25 for residents, $10.25 for non-residents and $5.25 for the trout and salmon stamp.

Finale To Mistaken Raid

DETROIT (AP) — A mistaken police raid has resulted in a $21,000-out-of-court settlement for five Ann Arbor women from State and Ann Arbor police. The settlement in the chambers of U.S. District Judge Damon Keith is the final episode in a raid on the women's home in Ann Arbor on Dec. 4, 1972. State and Ann Arbor police were searching for gunmen suspected of shooting four officers of the Detroit police STRESS unit. The officers later admitted they had entered the wrong house. The women filed a $2 million lawsuit. The women alleged police smashed in the door to their apartment without identifying themselves and without producing search warrants and forced them to stand undressed on their porch for 20 minutes. STRESS, a special Detroit police unit now disbanded, is an acronym for Stop the Robberies, Enjoy Safe Streets.

Carter Win Challenged In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's narrow victory in Ohio has been challenged in a federal lawsuit charging his supporters with "widespread election fraud."

The suit, which seeks to overturn the Nov. 2 presidential election in Ohio and schedule a new election, was filed Friday in U.S. District Court by attorney Richard Reichel on behalf of electors from the Republican, U.S. Labor and American parties.

"It is based upon our belief that in the recent election there was widespread election fraud that we have been able to document to a certain extent," Reichel said.

Carter won the state's 25 electoral votes with a 9,333-vote victory over President Ford.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown has ordered a recount to begin Monday and has agreed to "check" allegations of fraud, but he has not launched a formal investigation.

Should the recount show that Ford carried Ohio, Carter still would have 272 electoral votes nationwide, two more than needed for victory.

Stereo Equipment Missing

COLOMA — Over $500 worth of stereo equipment was taken during a break-in of a Coloma township summer residence earlier this week.

Coloma township police said entry into the Richard Watson residence, 7012 South Maple drive, was made by pushing out a basement window.

Reported taken in the break-in were four stereo speakers, an eight-track tape player, 40 eight-track tapes, two tape cases, an AM-FM radio and an attaché case containing five bottles of liquor. The break-in was reported by Watson, a Chicago resident who uses the cottage as a summer home.

Korean Gift Is Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — House majority whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., says the $4,000 he received from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park was deposited in office accounts that paid office and political expenses and financed interest-free loans to himself and others.

McFall, a candidate for the post of Democratic House floor leader, said he regarded the money as campaign contributions. He said Park never suggested anything that could be interpreted as a bribe offer.

Sub Hunter Helps Beavers Finally Win Cage Opener

Eau Claire accomplished something Friday night at Lake Michigan Catholic it hadn't been able to do for six years...win an opener.

Substitute Chuck Hunter came in and scored 21 points to lead the Beavers to a 50-46 victory over the Lakers in the season and Red Arrow conference openers for both clubs.

"Chuck came off the bench and did it for us tonight," commented Eau Claire's head coach Dave Gray.

Hunter put the Beavers ahead to stay with about two and a half minutes left in the game. He drove toward the bucket and hit the layup to give his team the lead for good.

"Probably the big key for us was with two and a half minutes left, we switched our offense against their man-to-man defense and we got two easy buckets off it," beamed Gray.

Randy Grandberry added 12 points and Dale Ostema scored 10 for the winners.

Mike Masini led the Lakers with 16 points, eight of them coming in the third quarter. Tim Gentry notched six points in the first quarter and ended the night with 10.

Eau Claire was up 24-16 at halftime, but the Lakers outscored their foe 20-13 in the third stanza and only trailed 37-36. "They beat us bad on the boards in the third quarter," commented Gray.

But the on-again, off-again zone defense of the Beavers did the job in the fourth quarter, and Eau Claire held on for the win.

"I think our third quarter was one of the best we've had, even looking at last year's games," said Catholic's head coach Al Nixon.

"When we went into the fourth quarter only one down, we felt the game should have been ours," he added. "We were the better conditioned team, but we made turnovers at inopportune times."

The Lakers held an 8-4 lead early in the game, but the Beavers proceeded to score the next 16 points to take a 20-8 lead.

"We committed a lot of opening game mistakes and our inexperience showed when we gave up 16 straight points in the first quarter," Nixon moaned.

"We had nine kids in the game, all with no experience, and they kept their composure."

The Lakers were dealt a severe blow to their rebounding corps Tuesday night when 6-1 Mike Lomonaco suffered a broken wrist in a scrimmage against Lakeshore and will be out of action for 12 weeks.

Even with Lomonaco out and Clancy Rose hobbled by a sprained ankle, Eau Claire only managed to hold a 50-42 board edge. Grandberry snared 14 of them for Eau Claire and Ostema had 11.

Masini had 19 rebounds for the Lakers.

Catholic did set a new school record in the contest by turning the ball over 38 times. "Those first game mistakes really killed us," Nixon said.

"Overall, putting the defeat aside, I was pleased," he added. Eau Claire won the junior

Hot Linke Cools 'Rocks

BY PAUL MORGAN

Staff Sports Writer

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Trying to stop a hot Bob Linke is like trying to put out a forest fire with a squirt gun...it just doesn't happen.

Bridgman's all-Red Arrow forward poured in 32 points Friday night here to lead the Bees past Berrien Springs 89-67 in the conference opener for both clubs in boys' basketball.

It actually took the 6-5 senior a whole half to get going. He only hit five of 15 shots in the initial half, missing quite a few he usually makes in his sleep.

But he was a terror in the last half, going eight for eight from the floor. He totalled 20 of his 32 points in that 16 minutes.

"They were forcing Linke out of the spot on the side he likes to take shots from," commented Bees' head coach Doug Hendricks. "But once he gets hot, he can hit from anywhere on the court."

If that wasn't enough, he led his team in rebounding with 14 boards. Wolf Wolf pulled down 12 and Howie Mutz seven as the Bees outboarded the Shamrocks

Tom Meredith popped in 18 points from his guard spot and Mutz added 11 for Bridgman, now 2-0 on the season.

Tim Sunday led the Shamrocks in their season opener with 20 points while Jack Lewis added 15 and Terry Hoshein 14.

Although Bridgman won the contest by a convincing margin, it wasn't as easy as it looked. With Lewis controlling the boards, Berrien jumped out to a 20-16 lead after one quarter.

Berrien increased that lead to 31-25 with 3:31 remaining in the first half, and it looked like the Shamrocks were going to put the game away.

But the Bees started coming back. They cut the lead to 38-31 with 2:03 left but an exchange of baskets put Berrien up 40-33 with 1:05 left.

It was then that Bridgman began hitting. Wolf Wolf made two free throws, Linke hit a jumper from the left side and Meredith canned one from the same spot with three seconds left and Bridgman was only behind 40-39 at the intermission.

"We settled down in the second half and what really helped us do that was cutting the lead to one at the half," Hendricks said.

Coach Connie Stover admitted that the last minute spurt hurt his club. "If we could have gone in seven-up, it would have helped," he said. "But the surge kind of took it away from us."

One thing the Bees perfected in the second half was their 2-1-2 zone defense. Lewis scored 13 points and pulled in 11 rebounds in the first half. In the last half, he scored only two points and eventually fouled out with 3:38 left in the game.

"We were real nervous at the start," Hendricks said afterwards. "I couldn't understand it."

"But in the second half, the one game we had under our belts helped us."

The Bees' coach still feels his team has a lot of work to do. "We still have a lot to do on rebounding," he said. "And we have a ways to go on blocking out."

"We just went cold in the third quarter," moaned Stover. "We just couldn't hang in there. They are a good basketball club."

Bridgman made 36 of 73 field goal tries for a commendable 48 per cent. Berrien Springs capitalized on 30 of 70 floor shots (43 per cent).

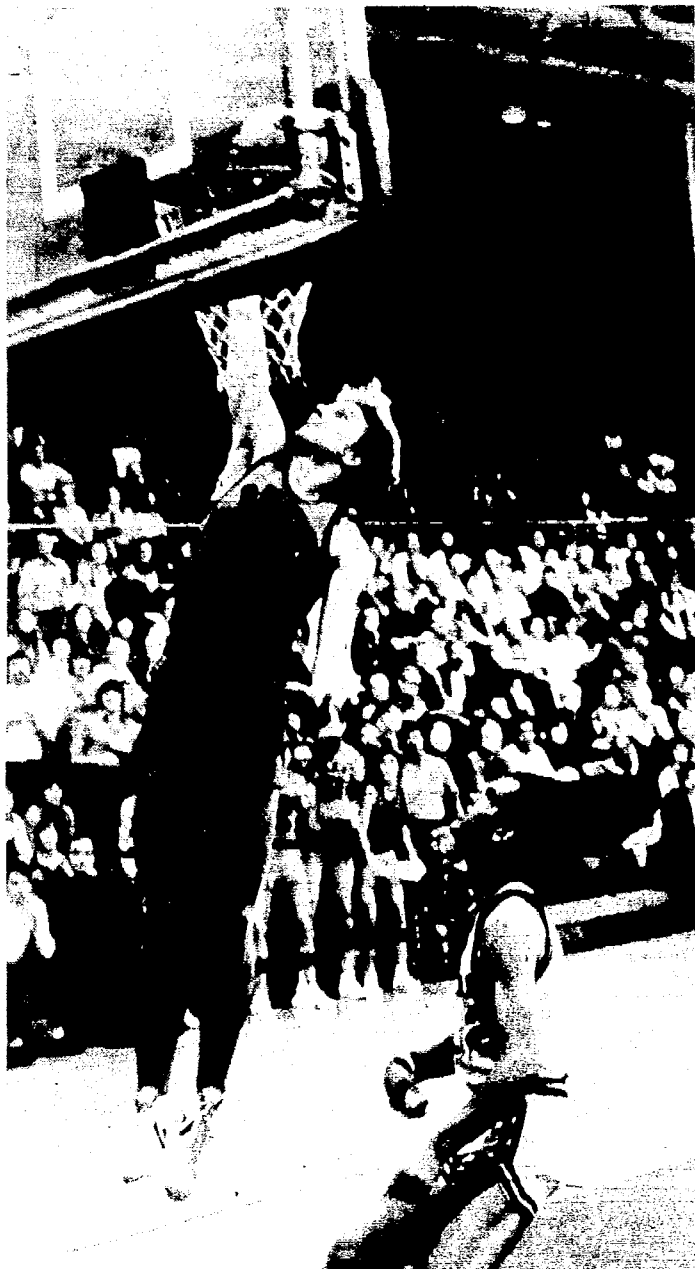

The back breaker, though, came in the second half when Bridgman made 67 per cent of its shots and Berrien canned only 35 per cent as the Bees outscored their foe 50-27.

Lewis led his team in rebounding with 17. Teammate Doug Ewalt came off the bench to snare nine.

Berrien Springs won the junior varsity game 69-66 with Bill Howard netting 25 for the Bees and Brad Layman 20 for the Shamrocks.

"The one thing about this sport is that you get to play everybody twice," Stover commented.

The good thing about that is, the Shamrocks will have a chance to avenge the loss. The bad thing is, they may run into a hot Bob Linke again.

LINKE DUNKS: Bridgman's Bob Linke dunks the basketball in first-quarter action Friday night at the Berrien Springs-Bridgman basketball game at Berrien Springs. The dunk, made legal again this season, came at 2:47 of the period and cut the Berrien lead to 14-13. Watching dunk is Tony Sammons. Linke hit 32 as the Bees won 89-67. (Staff photo)

No. 1 Pitt Defeats Penn State

Dorsett Sparkles Again

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Dorsett figures he'll have a lengthy stay in the NCAA record book, but Coach Johnny Majors remains mum on how long he'll remain at the University of Pittsburgh.

"It will take some dude to top me," Dorsett said Friday night after breaking two more of the NCAA's loftier all-time marks and leading top-ranked Pitt to a 24-7 victory over Penn State on national television.

Playing his last regular season game as a senior, Dorsett slashed for 224 yards rushing on 38 carries and scored touchdowns on runs of six and 40 yards.

"I don't begrudge him anything," said Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, whose 16th-ranked team fell to 7-4 with its first loss in 11 years to Pitt.

"It's good to see a runner like that," he added. "I don't particularly like him doing it against us, but I hope he gets 400 yards in the Sugar Bowl."

Dorsett's night gave him 1,948 rushing yards on this season, surpassing the old single-season record of 1,881 set by Ed Marinaro of Cornell, and he now has 356 career points, two more than the previous all-time record held by Glenn Davis of Army.

"But the main thing I'm celebrating tonight is that beautiful 11-0, a perfect regular season," said Dorsett, who holds or shares a total of 14 NCAA records, including the all-time career of high of 6,082 rushing yards.

"We knew we had to win this one to stay on top, and that's where we want to be when it's all over. No. 1," added the 5-foot-11, 190-pounder, whose Sugar Bowl performance against Georgia won't count toward his NCAA marks.

Penn State, which had won six in a row, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when fullback Bob Torrey carried a Chuck Fusina swing pass 21 yards for a touchdown.

Dorsett was held to 11 yards rushing in the first quarter and 51 yards on 16 carries through the first half, but he still managed a six-yard touchdown sweep in the second period to tie the score 7-7.

In the second half, Pitt went to an unbalanced line, and Dorsett bolted 40-yards for a third-quarter touchdown that put the Panthers ahead to stay.

"I've never seen a back with acceleration like that," said Penn State defensive end Ron Crosby.

"I was amazed," echoed linebacker Kurt Allerman. "He's sees daylight, swish, he's gone."

Pitt may lose Majors in equally abrupt fashion to his alma mater, the University of Tennessee, which covets him as a replacement for Bill Battle, who resigned under fire a week ago.

Majors, who had steadfastly denied reports he planned to sign a $125,000-per-year contract with Tennessee, stood by that denial after the game in the noisy Pitt locker room.

"I have no plans because I haven't been contacted by anybody," he said in a hoarse voice, holding a broken victory cigar in one hand and a soft drink in the other.

Yet he once stopped short of saying he would definitely stay at Pitt.

"I really don't have any comment at this point," he said. "The main thing on my mind right now is this victory. It's the greatest thrill of my athletic life."

Watervliet Offense Crushes Hartford

HARTFORD — Poor Hartford had to feel the effects of a long dormant Watervliet offense which came to life Friday night.

The Panthers exploded here in the Red Arrow and season opener for both clubs, downing the Indians 81-46 in a boys basketball game.

The last time Watervliet scored more than 81 points was 49 games ago when it beat Berrien Springs 84-54 on Feb. 2, 1974. The Panthers did score 81 points in a win over Hartford on Dec. 17, 1974.

Jim Weaver led the barrage with a varsity career-high 24 points. Pat Curtis added 12 points and Chuck Brock had 11 for the winners' double figures scorers.

The only Hartford eager to hit double digits was Duane Toney with 10.

"I thought it was a great team effort tonight," grinned a happy Gene Bednarowski after his junior varsity win. He was the first varsity coach last season.

"Rebounding was the big key for us in the game," he added.

"We were getting the second and third shots."

By Hartford's charts, the Panthers held a 45-27 board edge. Hutchinson led the way, according to Bednarowski, with 18 rebounds. Toney grabbed nine for the Indians.

The scrappy Hartford bunch held a 12-11 lead after the first quarter, but foul trouble and rebounding killed them in the second quarter as the Panthers outscored the Indians 29-6 to take a 40-18 halftime lead. Weaver led the surge with 11 points.

"In the second quarter, we started missing our shots and were only getting one shot at the basket," declared Hartford's head coach Dick Pfeifer. "Ken Lowe got his third foul in the quarter, and it took a lot of our momentum away."

"Big thing was we couldn't rebound with them. They got three-four shots and we got just one."

Bednarowski used a press to get back the lead in the second quarter. "We went to a 34 quarter court press and it seemed to help," he said.

"I also thought the passing of my kids was outstanding in an early season game," Bednarowski added.

Watervliet was deadly from both the charity stripe and the field. The Panthers hit 17 of 21 free throws, an 81 per cent clip, while making 32 of 63 floor shots, a 50.7 per cent mark.

Hartford managed to hit just 22 of 78 field goal tries (28.2 per cent) and two of four charity tosses.

In the turnovers department, the Indians committed 26 miscues and the Panthers 17.

Sub Hunter Helps Beavers Finally Win Cage Opener

Eau Claire accomplished something Friday night at Lake Michigan Catholic it hadn't been able to do for six years...win an opener.

Substitute Chuck Hunter came in and scored 21 points to lead the Beavers to a 50-46 victory over the Lakers in the season and Red Arrow conference openers for both clubs.

"Chuck came off the bench and did it for us tonight," commented Eau Claire's head coach Dave Gray.

Hunter put the Beavers ahead to stay with about two and a half minutes left in the game. He drove toward the bucket and hit the layup to give his team the lead for good.

"Probably the big key for us was with two and a half minutes left, we switched our offense against their man-to-man defense and we got two easy buckets off it," beamed Gray.

Randy Grandberry added 12 points and Dale Ostema scored 10 for the winners.

Mike Masini led the Lakers with 16 points, eight of them coming in the third quarter. Tim Gentry notched six points in the first quarter and ended the night with 10.

Eau Claire was up 24-16 at halftime, but the Lakers outscored their foe 20-13 in the third stanza and only trailed 37-36. "They beat us bad on the boards in the third quarter," commented Gray.

But the on-again, off-again zone defense of the Beavers did the job in the fourth quarter, and Eau Claire held on for the win.

"I think our third quarter was one of the best we've had, even looking at last year's games," said Catholic's head coach Al Nixon.

"When we went into the fourth quarter only one down, we felt the game should have been ours," he added. "We were the better conditioned team, but we made turnovers at inopportune times."

The Lakers held an 8-4 lead early in the game, but the Beavers proceeded to score the next 16 points to take a 20-8 lead.

"We committed a lot of opening game mistakes and our inexperience showed when we gave up 16 straight points in the first quarter," Nixon moaned.

"We had nine kids in the game, all with no experience, and they kept their composure."

The Lakers were dealt a severe blow to their rebounding corps Tuesday night when 6-1 Mike Lomonaco suffered a broken wrist in a scrimmage against Lakeshore and will be out of action for 12 weeks.

Even with Lomonaco out and Clancy Rose hobbled by a sprained ankle, Eau Claire only managed to hold a 50-42 board edge. Grandberry snared 14 of them for Eau Claire and Ostema had 11.

Masini had 19 rebounds for the Lakers.

Catholic did set a new school record in the contest by turning the ball over 38 times. "Those first game mistakes really killed us," Nixon said.

"Overall, putting the defeat aside, I was pleased," he added. Eau Claire won the junior

Hot Linke Cools 'Rocks

BY PAUL MORGAN
Staff Sports Writer

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Trying to stop a hot Bob Linke is like trying to put out a forest fire with a squirt gun...it just doesn't happen.

Bridgman's all-Red Arrow forward poured in 32 points Friday night here to lead the Bees past Berrien Springs 89-67 in the conference opener for both clubs in boys' basketball.

It actually took the 6-5 senior a whole half to get going. He only hit five of 15 shots in the initial half, missing quite a few he usually makes in his sleep.

But he was a terror in the last half, going eight for eight from the floor. He totalled 20 of his 32 points in that 16 minutes.

"They were forcing Linke out of the spot on the side he likes to take shots from," commented Bees' head coach Doug Hendricks. "But once he gets hot, he can hit from anywhere on the court."

If that wasn't enough, he led his team in rebounding with 14 boards. Wolf Wolf pulled down 12 and Howie Mutz seven as the Bees outboarded the Shamrocks

45-41. Tom Meredith popped in 18 points from his guard spot and Mutz added 11 for Bridgman, now 2-0 on the season.

Tim Sunday led the Shamrocks in their season opener with 20 points while Jack Lewis added 15 and Terry Hoshein 14.

Although Bridgman won the contest by a convincing margin, it wasn't as easy as it looked. With Lewis controlling the boards, Berrien jumped out to a 20-16 lead after one quarter.

Berrien increased that lead to 34-25 with 3:31 remaining in the first half, and it looked like the Shamrocks were going to put the game away.

But the Bees started coming back. They cut the lead to 38-31 with 2:03 left but an exchange of baskets put Berrien up 40-33 with 1:05 left.

It was then that Bridgman began hitting. Wolf Wolf made two free throws, Linke hit a jumper from the left side and Meredith canned one from the same spot with three seconds left and Bridgman was only behind 40-39 at the intermission.

"We settled down in the second half and what really helped us do that was cutting the lead to one at the half," Hendricks said.

Coach Connie Stover admitted that the last minute spurt hurt his club. "If we could have gone in seven-up, it would have helped," he said. "But the surge kind of took it away from us."

One thing the Bees perfected in the second half was their 2-1-2 zone defense. Lewis scored 13 points and pulled in 11 rebounds in the first half. In the last half, he scored only two points and eventually fouled out with 3:38 left in the game.

"We were real nervous at the start," Hendricks said afterwards. "I couldn't understand it."

"But in the second half, the one game we had under our belts helped us."

The Bees' coach still feels his team has a lot of work to do. "We still have a lot to do on rebounding," he said. "And we have a ways to go on blocking out."

"We just went cold in the third quarter," moaned Stover. "We just couldn't hang in there. They are a good basketball club."

Bridgman made 36 of 75 field goal tries for a commendable 48 per cent. Berrien Springs capitalized on 30 of 70 floor shots (43 per cent).

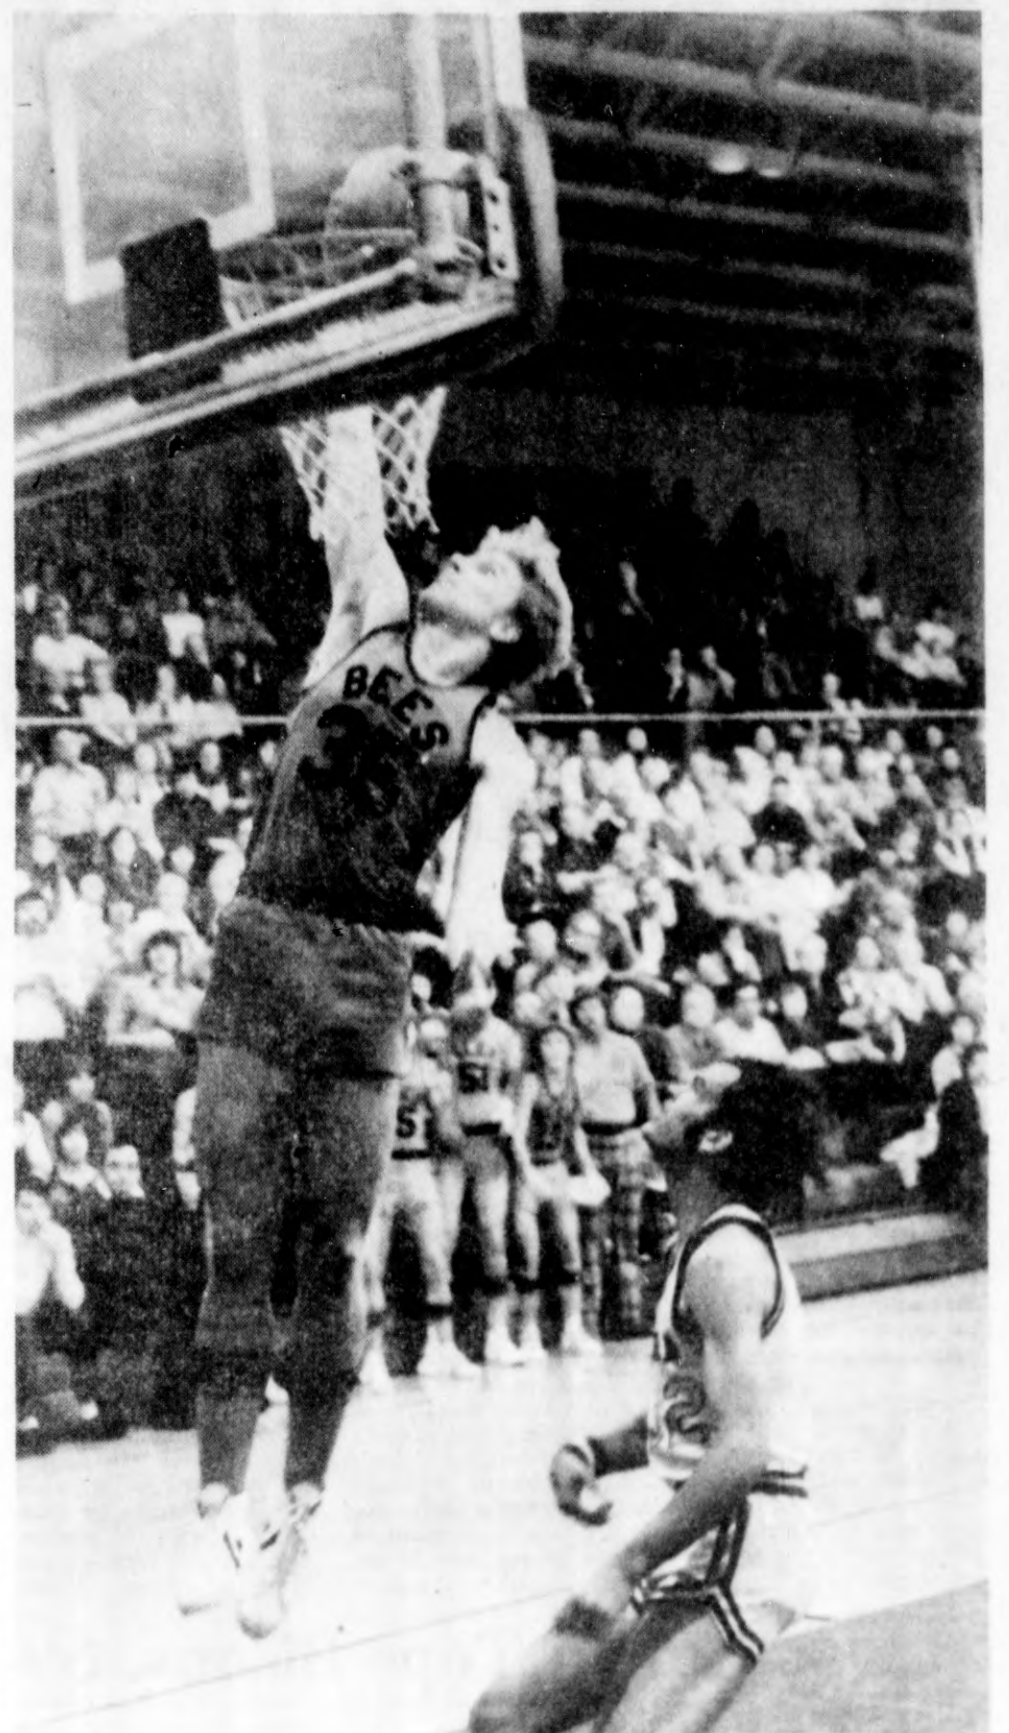

The back breaker, though, came in the second half when Bridgman made 67 per cent of its shots and Berrien canned only 35 per cent as the Bees outscored their foe 50-27.

Lewis led his team in rebounding with 17. Teammate Doug Ewalt came off the bench to snare nine.

Berrien Springs won the junior varsity game 69-66 with Bill Howard netting 25 for the Bees and Brad Layman 20 for the Shamrocks.

"The one thing about this sport is that you get to play everybody twice," Stover commented.

The good thing about that is, the Shamrocks will have a chance to avenge the loss. The bad thing is, they may run into a hot Bob Linke again.

LINKE DUNKS: Bridgman's Bob Linke dunks the basketball in first-quarter action Friday night at the Berrien Springs-Bridgman basketball game at Berrien Springs. The dunk, made legal again this season, came at 2:47 of the period and cut the Berrien lead to 14-13. Watching dunk is Tony Sammons. Linke hit 32 as the Bees won 89-67. (Staff photo)

No. 1 Pitt Defeats Penn State

Dorsett Sparkles Again

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Dorsett figures he'll have a lengthy stay in the NCAA record book, but Coach Johnny Majors remains mum on how long he'll remain at the University of Pittsburgh.

"It will take some dude to top me," Dorsett said Friday night after breaking two more of the NCAA's loftier all-time marks and leading top-ranked Pitt to a 24-7 victory over Penn State on national television.

Playing his last regular season game as a senior, Dorsett slashed for 224 yards rushing on 38 carries and scored touchdowns on runs of six and 40 yards.

"I don't begrudge him anything," said Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, whose 16th-ranked team fell to 7-4 with its first loss in 11 years to Pitt.

"It's good to see a runner like that," he added. "I don't particularly like him doing it against us, but I hope he gets 400 yards in the Sugar Bowl."

Dorsett's night gave him 1,948 rushing yards on this season, surpassing the old single-season record of 1,881 set by Ed Marinaro of Cornell, and he now has 356 career points, two more than the previous all-time record held by Glenn Davis of Army.

"But the main thing I'm celebrating tonight is that beautiful 11-0, a perfect regular season," said Dorsett, who holds or shares a total of 14 NCAA records, including the all-time career of high of 6,082 rushing yards.

"We knew we had to win this one to stay on top, and that's where we want to be when it's all over. No. 1," added the 5-foot-11, 190-pounder, whose Sugar Bowl performance against Georgia won't count toward his NCAA marks.

Penn State, which had won six in a row, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when fullback Bob Torrey carried a Chuck Fusina swing pass 21 yards for a touchdown.

Dorsett was held to 11 yards rushing in the first quarter and 51 yards on 16 carries through the first half, but he still managed a six-yard touchdown sweep in the second period to tie the score 7-7.

In the second half, Pitt went to an unbalanced line, and Dorsett bolted 40-yards for a third-quarter touchdown that put the Panthers ahead to stay.

"I've never seen a back with acceleration like that," said Penn State defensive end Ron Crosby.

"I was amazed," echoed linebacker Kurt Allerman. "He's sees daylight, swish, he's gone."

Pitt may lose Majors in equally abrupt fashion to his alma mater, the University of Tennessee, which covets him as a replacement for Bill Battle, who resigned under fire a week ago. Majors, who had steadfastly denied reports he planned to sign a $125,000-per-year contract with Tennessee, stood by that denial after the game in the noisy Pitt locker room.

"I have no plans because I haven't been contacted by anybody," he said in a hoarse voice, holding a broken victory cigar in one hand and a soft drink in the other.

Yet he once stopped short of saying he would definitely stay at Pitt.

"I really don't have any comment at this point," he said. "The main thing on my mind right now is this victory. It's the greatest thrill of my athletic life."

In a Friday afternoon game between two Big Eight powers, No. 8 Oklahoma defeated No. 10 Nebraska 20-17 on a two-yard scoring run by halfback Elvis Peacock with 38 seconds left. The triumph gave Oklahoma a three-way share of the conference title and sent another Big Eight team, 14th-ranked Colorado, into the Orange Bowl to meet No. 12 Ohio State.

Alex Agase Fired By Boilermakers

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue's Alex Agase, called "a victim of the times" by Athletic Director George King, is on the list of unemployed football coaches today.

Agase, 54, was fired on Friday, less than a week after he finished his fourth losing season at Purdue with a 20-14 loss to Indiana. His four teams compiled an 18-25-1 mark overall.

"I have no bitterness," said Agase, whose greatest moment in 14 years of college coaching was an upset of then-No. 1 Michigan three weeks ago.

"I had a great love for Purdue when I came here, and I leave with a great love for Purdue. I asked for four years and got it. Everybody tried to help, but we just didn't win enough."

King said he was "personally saddened" by Agase's dismissal.

"Alex happens to be a victim of the times as they relate to major college athletics today," King said. "Football serves as a financial base for the entire athletic program, and therefore the loss of revenue from booster club support and gate receipts has to be a major concern for any administrator."

Purdue went 40-10 in the five years before Jack Mollenkopf retired in 1969, beating Southern California in the 1967 Rose Bowl. But the Boilermakers have had just one winning season since then — a 6-5 record in 1972 under Bob DeMoss, now assistant athletic director.

Rumors of Purdue officials' dissatisfaction with Agase began last year when the Boilermakers lost their first five games. Purdue won four of its last six games in 1975, then three of its first five this season before a three-game slide started rumors flying again.

A 16-14 upset of Michigan gave Agase a temporary reprieve, but the loss to Indiana may have tipped the scales against him.

White Pigeon Rips Lawton In Opener

LAWTON — Steve Niblock pumped in 22 points to lead White Pigeon past Lawton 64-39 here in the season opener for both clubs Friday night.

Bob Hagner was the only other White Pigeon player in double figures, scoring 10, as 10 different cagers scored points for the winners.

Craig Rupp and Mike Webber each netted 10 points for the Blue Devils.

Lawton only trailed by a 7-6 margin after the first quarter but a 23-12 spurt by White Pigeon put it ahead by a 30-18 margin at the intermission.

White Pigeon then outscored Lawton 34-21 in the last half to put the game away.

Coach Bill Shaw of Lawton indicated that his charges had trouble making free throws. "We rebounded well, but we had a little trouble getting the ball inside," he said. "But when we did, we would get fouled and then couldn't make our free throws."

Lawton only made 12 of 49

Hawks Snap Road Streak

Pistons, Bulls Handed NBA Setbacks

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took a hastily called team meeting to get the point across, but yes, the Atlanta Hawks can indeed win on the road.

The Hawks snapped a 28-game road losing streak by beating the New York Knicks 108-105 at the Nassau Coliseum as John Drew scored 33 points, including 29 in the second half and 17 in the fourth quarter.

Atlanta had not won away from home since Jan. 27, 1976, when they eked out a 114-113 decision over the New York Knicks.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Boston Celtics 108-82, San Antonio edged Golden State

Cleveland raised its record to 13-4, best in the league, by winning at the Boston Garden and snapping the Celtics' five-game home winning streak. Swingman Bobby Smith led a balanced attack with 24 points and guards Austin Carr, Dick Snyder and Jim Clemons combined to add 46.

Ernie DiGregorio was the spark as Buffalo snapped a six-game losing streak. He scored 20 points, including 10-for-10 from the free throw line to raise his streak to 35 in a row; grabbed a career-high 13 rebounds, and handed out eight assists in his 40 minutes.

George Gervin's 12-footer with 13 seconds remaining gave San Antonio its seventh straight home victory before a crowd of 12,306, second largest in the franchise's history.

Larry Kenon of the Spurs led all scorers with 29 points.

Forwards Julius Erving and George McGinnis combined for 45 points for the Sixers, who led all the way and clinched it with a 14-point run in the fourth quarter. Erving had 24 points.

Indiana handed Milwaukee its eighth straight loss, building an 11-point first-quarter lead and riding Darnell Hillman's 25 points to victory.

Guards Ron Boone and Brian Taylor scored 26 points apiece as the Nuggets lost their third game in the last five starts, all on the road, despite 33 points by David Thompson.

Seattle posted its 27th straight home victory and 11th this year, while dealing the Bulls their 10th loss in a row, a team record. Leonard Gray scored 17 points to lead a balanced Sonics attack which negated 30 points by Chicago's Wilbur Holland.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 32 points and Lucius Allen a season-high 30 for the Lakers. It was the 10th straight road loss for the Blazers.

Buffalo Signs

Cage Standout

SEATTLE (AP) — Zaid Abdul-Aziz, former Seattle Super-Sonic, has signed to play with the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association, his attorney says.

Lawyer Robert Mussehl said Friday Abdul-Aziz reached agreement with Bob MacKinnon, the Braves' general manager, on a contract that includes lucrative playoff incentives.

The 6-10 Abdul-Aziz played for Seattle as Don Smith in 1971 and 1972, then returned to Seattle last year under his Islamic name. He is beginning his ninth pro season.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) —

The long and sometimes bitter National Football League rivalry between the Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears erupts Sunday for the 116th time. Noises coming from the Packer camp indicate there may be more bitterness than usual.

The Bears won the first meeting this year, 24-13 in Chicago Nov. 14, in the process sending Packer quarterback Lynn Dickey to the bench for the season with a shoulder separation.

Green Bay Coach Bart Starr said the injury came on a legal hit, but at least one of the Packers, defensive tackle Dave Roller, disagrees. And he has pledged to seek revenge on Bear quarterback Bob Axelinn.

"They were hitting Dickey way after he got rid of the ball," Roller said in a recent interview. "I'm going to take it out on Bob Axelinn the next time we play. It's one for one, and it's going to be Mr. Axelinn's time when we get them in Green Bay."

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm gonna throw out the rulebook when we play the Bears. Anything goes," he said. "If the refs catch it, fine, and if they don't, fine."

Dickey's injury gave second-year quarterback Carlos Brown his first NFL regular season start against Minnesota last Sunday. He completed 11 of 25 passes for 82 yards and had three interceptions as the Packers lost 17-10.

"I'm not disappointed with his performance as a whole," Starr said of Brown. "The first two interceptions, for example, were not his. They were deflections off a receiver's hands. There were some things we may have to scrutinize in making our game plan this week, I'm sure. But perhaps there are some things we can ask of Carlos that we didn't know we could. It works both ways."

White Roller and the rest of the Packer linemen chase Axelinn. Brown will be the object of a Bear pass rush which ranks second in the NFL in tackling quarterbacks for losses with 45.

On offense, the Bears' Walter Payton shows 1,048 yards rushing and a 4.3 per carry average, although the Detroit Lions held him to a season low of 40 yards in beating Chicago 14-10 last Sunday. Payton rushed 18 times for 109 yards in the earlier game against Green Bay.

Ollie Smith is to start at wide receiver for Green Bay instead of Steve Odom, who injured his right leg against Minnesota. Odom may play, but he won't start, Starr said Friday.

The Bears at 4-7 are eliminated from playoff contention, but a victory Sunday would give the Bears a 4-2 record against their three National Conference Central Division rivals: the Packers, Detroit and Minnesota.

The CanAm joint board at a meeting in Windsor, Ontario, set the weekend of Aug. 12-13 as the 1977 CanAm weekend.

Although it is traditionally held on the first weekend in August, the board selected the second weekend to avoid conflict with major sports tournaments scheduled for the first weekend in Canada, as well as Berrien county's Western Amateur golf tournament.

The board also decided to drop the winter games and to eliminate table tennis, diving, gymnastics and wrestling from summer competition.

Berrien games chairman Oliver Edwards said the board agreed to drop the games because of the high cost of competition. "In the winter games, we were competing in only one CanAm sport — hockey," he said.

"In 1974, we initiated the winter games in the hope of promoting hockey in Berrien county and in the expectation of a local facility."

"However, the cost of ice time outside our area has risen steadily, and our youth have not been able to develop sufficiently in this sport to give Canada a safe and competitive game."

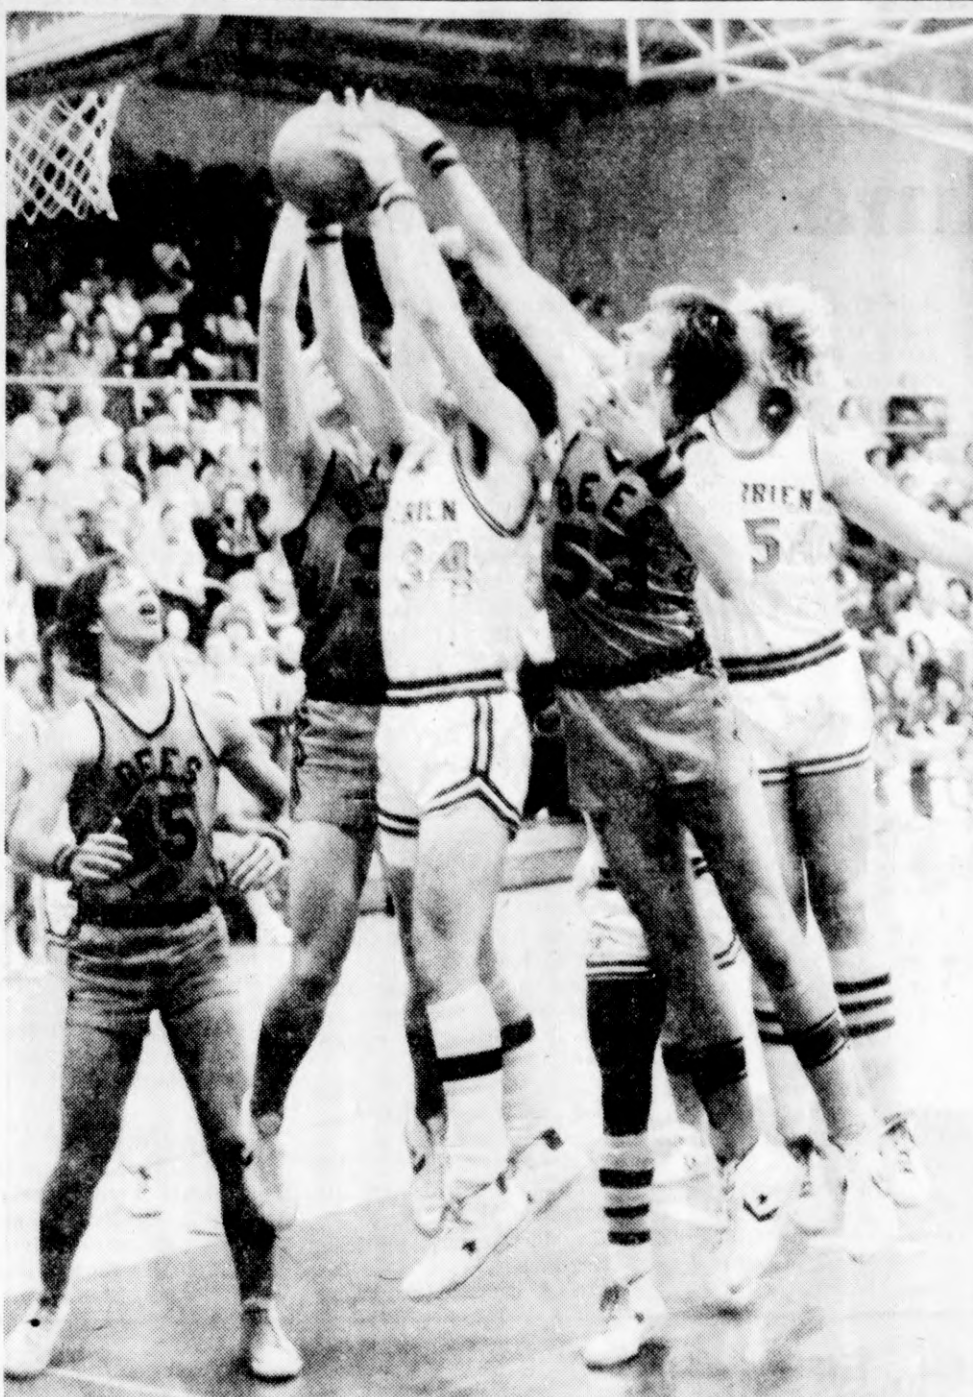

"Youth interest in diving, table tennis and wrestling has simply not developed in Berrien, despite our best efforts," commented Doug Reeves, chairman of the Brant delegation.

Edwards said that wrestling will continue as an Olympic sport in Berrien. The board will also vote on including diving, table tennis and gymnastics for competition at the Olympic level.

The CanAm sports which will continue are boys' and girls' bowling, chess, golf, swimming, tennis, track and field and basketball, plus boys' soccer and girls' softball and volleyball.

Hawks Snap Road Streak

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took a hastily called team meeting to get the point across, but the Atlanta Hawks can indeed win on the road.

The Hawks snapped a 28-game road losing streak by beating the New York Nets 108-105 at the Nassau Coliseum as John Drew scored 33 points, including 29 in the second half and 17 in the fourth quarter.

Atlanta had not won away from home since Jan. 27, 1976, when they eked out a 114-113 decision over the New York Knicks.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Boston Celtics 108-92, San Antonio edged Golden State

Cleveland raised its record to 13-4, best in the league, by winning at the Boston Garden and snapping the Celtics' five-game home winning streak.

Swingman Bobby Smith led a balanced attack with 24 points and guards Austin Carr, Dick Snyder and Jim Clemons combined to add 46.

Ernie DiGregorio was the spark as Buffalo snapped a six-game losing skid. He scored 20 points, including 10-for-10 from the free throw line to raise his streak to 35 in a row; grabbed a career-high 13 rebounds, and handed out eight assists in the 40 minutes.

George Gervin's 12-footer with 13 seconds remaining gave San Antonio its seventh straight home victory before a crowd of 12,306, second largest in the franchise's history.

Larry Kenon of the Spurs led all scorers with 29 points.

Forwards Julius Erving and George McGinnis combined for 45 points for the Sixers, who led all the way and clinched it with a 14-point run in the fourth quarter. Erving had 24 points.

Indiana handed Milwaukee its eighth straight loss, building an 11-point first-quarter lead and riding Darnell Hillman's 25 points to victory.

Guards Ron Boone and Brian Taylor scored 26 points apiece as the Nuggets lost their third game in the last five starts, all on the road, despite 35 points by David Thompson.

Seattle posted its 27th straight home victory and 11th this year, while dealing the Bulls their 10th loss in a row, a team record. Leonard Gray scored 17 points to lead a balanced Sonics attack which negated 30 points by Chicago's Wilbur Holland.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 32 points and Lucius Allen a season-high 30 for the Lakers. It was the 10th straight road loss for the Blazers.

Nine Lettermen Should Improve Gobles Record

GOBLES—The return of nine lettermen should give Gobles the experience it needs to boost its basketball record this season.

The Tigers went 6-16 last year, but they return four of their leading scorers and six players who started off and on during the season.

"I'm looking to improve quite a bit on that record," says Gobles coach Tim Barrone. "We have a lot of depth. We have 10 people who can play a lot for us this year. We don't have much height, but we do have better than average speed."

Top returning scorer is Bryan Clement, who tallied 197 points last year. Other starters back are Kendall Smith (163), who was honorable mention last year on the Southwestern Athletic Association team; Jeff Price (156); Ward Richards (89); Mike Erickson (82); and Randy Dylhoff (44). Dylhoff was sick and missed most of last season.

Juniors Dale Sunlin and Don Poffenberger are also expected to make contributions.

Barrone expects Marcellus and Decatur to offer the toughest challenges in the SAC this year. Gobles finished fifth in the SAC last year at 3-9.

Flames Continue NHL Hot Streak

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fred Creighton isn't giving out inoculations to stop his veterans from catching whatever is being spread by some of his Atlanta Flames.

"I think the rookies are adding a touch we haven't had," said the Atlanta coach Friday night after his team overpowered the St. Louis Blues 5-2 in National Hockey League.

Atlanta has lost only once in its last nine games. Last night's win was the fifth in that streak and allowed the Flames to hold second place in the Patrick Division—only four points behind the first-place New York Islanders.

In other NHL games, Pittsburgh defeated the Cleveland Barons 3-1 and Philadelphia remained one point behind Atlanta with a 4-2 triumph over Colorado.

Houston and Winnipeg remained tied for first place in the World Hockey Association's West Division by skating to a 11 deadlock. In other WHA action, the Minnesota Fighting Saints topped Quebec and Phoenix handled Edmonton by identical 4-2 scores.

"We stormed in there to start the game, then we got a bad break and we're down 1-0," said Cleveland Coach Jack Evans.

The bad break he was talking about was when a defenseman fell down and Pittsburgh's Wayne Bianchini stole the puck and popped in a goal just 45 seconds into the game.

Dave Burrow, added another Pittsburgh tally late in the period and after Cleveland rookie Glenn Patrick got his first NHL goal. Greg Malone made it 3-1 in the second period.

Jim Watson, Rick MacLeish and Bill Collins scored with 49 minutes at the start of the second period after the clubs had gone scoreless in the opening period.

Simon Lalet made the score 3-2 14 seconds into the final period, but that was all goalie Bernie Parent allowed the Rockies and Bobby Clarke made an empty net goal with 17 seconds to play.

Winnipeg's Peter Sullivan scored a power play goal for Winnipeg as his shot deflected off Gordie Howe's skate. It was only the third power play given up by Houston in 36 attempts.

Thirty-two seconds later Cam Connor tied the score as Houston extended its home undefeated streak to 14 and Winnipeg's winless streak reached four.

Danny Gruen broke a 2-2 deadlock on a 3-on-2 break at 7:24 of the final period and Mike Antonovich added an insurance goal with a 20-foot slapshot at 11:58 to give the Fighting Saints a four-game unbeaten streak, which includes three victories.

Tim Sheehy twice for Edmonton after Del Hall, Lauri Mononen and Mike Sleep had given Phoenix a 3-0 advantage. Ron Huston completed the scoring with an empty net goal three seconds before the end of the game.

Madlock Keeping Eye On Salaries

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Madlock's contract doesn't expire until Dec. 31. But he's keeping a sharp eye on the kinds of salaries this season's crop of baseball free agents are commanding.

"They're good ballplayers and have good records," says the Chicago Cubs' star third baseman. "I'm at least in the same class with them and I've done a couple of things they haven't."

Madlock, who led the National League in batting the past two seasons, says he wants to remain with the Cubs and won't ask for more money than he thinks he's worth.

"I want no more than the other guys get who play baseball and have records that compare with mine," he says. The problem for the Cubs is that there are few players with records like his.

Madlock batted .339 with 15 home runs and 85 runs batted in last season. By comparison, Joe Rudi hit .270 with 13 homers and 94 RBIs and Don Baylor batted .247 with 15 homers and 68 RBIs. Both signed with California, Rudi for a reported $2 million over five years and Baylor for a reported $1 million over the same period.

Madlock reportedly received $85,000 last season, his third full year in the majors, all with the Cubs. He played 21 games for Texas in 1975.

The Cubs don't have to worry about losing Madlock through the free agent system this year. After his one-year contract expires he is bound to Chicago for one season under the option clause. He would become a free agent if he is unsigned by next November. Madlock says he plans to talk with the Cubs' management next month.

Aided By Four-Corner Offense North Carolina Tops Wolfpack

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hold it a minute. Is that North Carolina in a Four Corner offense? Yes, it is—to Norm Sloan's consternation.

"I'm surprised that the No. 3 team in the nation—with all the talent they have—had to hold the ball," Sloan said sourly.

Exercising their familiar game plan Friday night, the Tar Heels put Sloan's North Carolina State team under their spell by a 78-86 score in the opening round of the Big Four Tournament.

North Carolina defeated the 15th-ranked Wolfpack after

Wake Forest inaugurated the traditional intrastate tourney in the Greensboro Coliseum with a tinging 81-80 victory over Duke.

While North Carolina faces Wake Forest in the Big Four finals tonight, several other tournament championships will be settled around the country.

Southern Illinois defeated No. 20 Missouri 68-55 Friday night and advanced to the finals of the St. Louis Arch Classic against Illinois, which defeated St. Louis University 68-65. St. John's, a 79-63 winner over Brown, defends its Lapchick Tournament title in New York against Fairfield, which defeated Northwestern 92-74.

State 74-64; No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas blasted Nevada-Reno 102-87; 10th-ranked Arizona stopped Arizona State 92-81 in overtime and No. 13 Alabama outscored Purdue 97-80.

Mike Glenn tossed in 17 points and led Southern Illinois' tightly-controlled offense to a surprisingly easy victory over Missouri in the St. Louis Arch Classic.

Audie Matthews propelled Illinois to an early lead and the Fighting Illini held on to beat host team St. Louis in the second game.

TEN OR MORE

At the halfway mark of the 1976 major league baseball season, 13 American League pitchers and seven National League hurlers showed 10 or more victories.

Surprising North Dakota Can Take Sole Ice Lead

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It may be hard to believe, but the University of North Dakota can take sole possession of first place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association tonight.

North Dakota, which has been the league's doormat in recent seasons, snapped a 2-2 tie late in the second period on defenseman Rob Mihulka's goal. Six players scored goals for the Sioux, now 7-2 in the league and 8-3 overall.

Clark Hamilton scored three goals to spark Notre Dame over Wisconsin. The defeat left the Badgers in third place, two points back of North Dakota and Michigan.

Florida State defeated Toledo 70-66 and Clemson crushed Yale 104-50 to advance to the championship game of the IPTAY Tournament in Clemson, S.C. The Spider Basketball Classic features a championship game between Richmond and George Washington. Richmond advanced to tonight's finals with a 56-49 decision over Navy and George Washington romped over Dartmouth 96-57.

Syracuse routed Harvard 75-48 and West Virginia hammered Massachusetts 89-77 to advance to the finals of the Hall of Fame Tournament in Springfield, Mass.

In other WCHA games, Notre Dame tripped Wisconsin 4-2. Denver routed Minnesota-Duluth 8-2 and Minnesota rallied to gain a 3-3 overtime tie at Colorado College. Michigan Tech is idle this weekend.

Denver and Notre Dame are both 4-5 in conference play. Bruce Lind's goal early in the third period clinched Minnesota's rally from a two-goal deficit. The Gophers, 4-3-2 in the league, retained a one-point lead over Colorado College for fourth place with the tie.

Tom Vonnelli scored one of the Minnesota goals in his first appearance since being accidentally struck in the eye by a stick at Michigan earlier in the season.

Bill Wheeler scored a pair of goals, including the go-ahead score early in the third period, to help Michigan defeat Rensselaer Polytech.

Islanders. In other NHL games, Pittsburgh defeated the Cleveland Barons 3-1 and Philadelphia remained one point behind Atlanta with a 4-2 triumph over Colorado.

Houston and Winnipeg remained tied for first place in the World Hockey Association's West Division by skating to a 11 deadlock. In other WHA action, the Minnesota Fighting Saints topped Quebec and Phoenix handled Edmonton by identical 4-2 scores.

"We stormed in there to start the game, then we got a bad break and we're down 1-0," said Cleveland Coach Jack Evans.

The bad break he was talking about was when a defenseman fell down and Pittsburgh's Wayne Bianchini stole the puck and popped in a goal just 45 seconds into the game.

Dave Burrows added another Pittsburgh tally late in the period and after Cleveland rookie Glenn Patrick got his first NHL goal, Greg Malone made it 3-1 in the second period.

Jim Watson, Rick MacLeish and Bill Collins scored with 4:2 minutes at the start of the second period after the clubs had gone scoreless in the opening period.

Simon Nolet made the score 3-2 14 seconds into the final period, but that was all goalie Bernie Parent allowed the Rockies and Bobby Clarke made an empty net goal with 17 seconds to play.

Winnipeg's Peter Sullivan scored a power play goal for Winnipeg as his shot deflected off Gordie Howe's skate. It was only the third power play given up by Houston in 36 attempts.

Thirty-two seconds later Cam Connor tied the score as Houston extended its home undefeated streak to 14 and Winnipeg's winless streak reached four.

Danny Gruen broke a 2-2 deadlock on a 3-on-2 break at 7:24 of the final period and Mike Antonovich added an insurance goal with a 30-foot slapshot at 11:58 to give the Fighting Saints a four-game unbeaten streak, which includes three victories.

Tim Sheehy twice for Edmonton after Del Hall, Lauri Mononen and Mike Sleep had given Phoenix a 3-0 advantage. Ron Huston completed the scoring with an empty net goal three seconds before the end of the game.

Flames Continue NHL Hot Streak

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fred Creighton isn't giving out inoculations to stop his veterans from catching whatever is being spread by some of his Atlanta Flames.

"I think the rookies are adding a touch we haven't had," said the Atlanta coach Friday night after his team overpowered the St. Louis Blues 5-2 in National Hockey League.

Atlanta has lost only once in its last nine games. Last night's win was the fifth in that streak and allowed the Flames to hold second place in the Patrick Division—only four points behind the first-place New York

Madlock Keeping Eye On Salaries

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Madlock's contract doesn't expire until Dec. 31. But he's keeping a sharp eye on the kinds of salaries this season's crop of baseball free agents are commanding.

"They're good ballplayers and have good records," says the Chicago Cubs' star third baseman. "I'm at least in the same class with them and I've done a couple of things they haven't."

Madlock, who led the National League in batting the past two seasons, says he wants to remain with the Cubs and won't ask for more money than he thinks he's worth.

"I want no more than the other guys get who play baseball and have records that compare with mine," he says. The problem for the Cubs is that there are few players with records like his.

Madlock batted .339 with 15 home runs and 85 runs batted in last season. By comparison, Joe Rudi hit .270 with 13 homers and 94 RBIs and Don Baylor batted .247 with 15 homers and 68 RBIs. Both signed with California. Rudi for a reported $2 million over five years and Baylor for a reported $1 million over the same period.

Madlock reportedly received $85,000 last season, his third full year in the majors, all with the Cubs. He played 21 games for Texas in 1973.

The Cubs don't have to worry about losing Madlock through the free agent system this year. After his one-year contract expires he is bound to Chicago for one season under the option clause. He would become a free agent if he is unsigned by next November. Madlock says he plans to talk with the Cubs' management next month.

Aided By Four-Corner Offense

North Carolina Tops Wolfpack

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hold it a minute. Is that North Carolina in a Four Corner offense? Yes, it is—to Norm Sloan's consternation.

"I'm surprised that the No. 3 team in the nation—with all the talent they have—had to hold the ball," Sloan said sourly.

Exercising their familiar game plan Friday night, the Tar Heels put Sloan's North Carolina State team under their spell by a 78-66 score in the opening round of the Big Four Tournament.

North Carolina defeated the 15th-ranked Wolfpack after

Wake Forest inaugurated the traditional intrastate tourney in the Greensboro Coliseum with a tinging 81-80 victory over Duke.

While North Carolina faces Wake Forest in the Big Four finals tonight, several other tournament championships will be settled around the country.

Southern Illinois defeated No. 20 Missouri 68-55 Friday night and advanced to the finals of the St. Louis Arch Classic against Illinois, which defeated St. Louis University 68-65. St. John's, a 79-65 winner over Brown, defends its Lapchick Tournament title in New York against Fairfield, which defeated Northwestern 92-74.

VMI and Virginia meet for the title of the Virginia Tip-Off Tournament in Charlottesville. VMI earned a berth in the finals by defeating Madison 85-77 and Virginia walloped Roanoke 88-48.

Florida State defeated Toledo 70-66 and Clemson crushed Yale 104-50 to advance to the championship game of the IPTAY Tournament in Clemson, S.C. The Spider Basketball Classic features a championship game between Richmond and George Washington. Richmond advanced to tonight's finals with a 56-49 decision over Navy and George Washington romped over Dartmouth 96-57.

Syracuse routed Harvard 75-48 and West Virginia hammered Massachusetts 89-77 to advance to the finals of the Hall of Fame Tournament in Springfield, Mass.

In other games involving ranked teams Friday night, No. 4 UCLA defeated San Diego

State 74-64; No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas blasted Nevada-Reno 102-87; 10th-ranked Arizona stopped Arizona State 92-81 in overtime and No. 13 Alabama outscored Purdue 97-80.

Mike Glenn tossed in 17 points and led Southern Illinois' tightly-controlled offense to a surprisingly easy victory over Missouri in the St. Louis Arch Classic.

Audie Matthews propelled Illinois to an early lead and the Fighting Illini held on to beat host team St. Louis in the second game.

Marques Johnson scored the last eight UCLA points as the Bruins fought off a late charge by San Diego State. Eddie Owens scored 20 points to pace Nevada-Las Vegas over Nevada-Reno. San Francisco trimmed San Francisco State behind Bill Cartwright's 24 points. Tim Marshall scored on a driving shot with two seconds left in overtime to lead Arizona past Arizona State. Reginald King scored 22 points, leading Alabama over Purdue.

His 'Underground' Dog Pound Has Citizens Howling

By JOHN W. REID
Associated Press Writer
BARRE, Vt. (AP) — When people howled that the dog pound was too close to their houses, City Manager Jay Hawthorne began moving it around to one secret location after another. Now he's being hounded by citizens who can't figure out where he's putting it.

"I just want to prove the simple point that when people don't know where the pound is — even if it's near their home — they won't complain about it," Hawthorne said in an interview.

He's kept his lips sealed for nearly two months. He said only he and the delinquent mutts know the secret.

The question has occupied Barre City Council meetings since the pound went underground. Irrate citizens have been demanding that Hawthorne reveal what he has done with the dogs.

"They're nearby," is his stock reply.

Even Barre Mayor Wilfred Fisher went sleuthing. Three times he thought he had found the kennels, only to come up empty-handed.

When residents accused Hawthorne of keeping public information private, he called for a vote of confidence. The council decided 5-2 that the city manager could keep his closely guarded secret until the end of November.

Hawthorne has promised to reveal the location at Tuesday's council meeting, ending his eight-week experiment to prove that the dogs are not really bothering people.

But he divulged some clues Friday.

"I've moved them around in the city, and they've been awfully close to the people who hollered the most about living near a dog pound," said Hawthorne. He said there have been no complaints since he hid the dogs.

"We've been under pretty close surveillance, too. Next to deer hunting, the most popular pastime in Barre is 'let's go look for the dog pound,'" he said. "But nobody has found it yet."

Hawthorne said he came up with the idea after opening a pound in a remote area of this city of 10,000. Strong opposition from about 20 nearby residents convinced the council to order that the kennel be moved.

"The people who complained lived more than 1,000 feet from the dogs," exclaimed Hawthorne. "And it's not like we have a zoo of 200 of them. Usually there are no more than five."

When someone reports a lost dog, Hawthorne shows up at the Barre police station with the kennel's population and helps the owner find his lost pet. Then the others are returned to the secret pound.

"I think people should know where stray dogs are, but I don't think we ever would have found an acceptable place for a pound if I hadn't done it this way," he said. "In this case, what people didn't know hasn't hurt them."

Going Back Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Nov. 27, the 332nd day of 1976. There are 34 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1942, during World War II, French navy men at Toulon, France scuttled 10 French cruisers, 28 destroyers and 14 submarines to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Nazis.

On this date — In the year 602, the Roman emperor Maurice and his five sons were beheaded at Chalcedon in Asia Minor.

In 1940, during World War II, Germany annexed the French province of Lorraine.

In 1945, Gen. George Marshall was named a special U.S. envoy to China to try to end hostilities between the Nationalists and the Communists.

In 1973, the U.S. Senate voted 92-3 to confirm Gerald Ford as vice president.

Ten years ago: Fighting dropped off sharply in Vietnam after the Communists proposed a truce over Christmas and New Years.

Five years ago: Prime Minister Indira Gandhi visited India troops who were fighting Pakistanis along the border of East Pakistan.

One year ago: Spain's new king, Juan Carlos I, celebrated his ascension to the throne with pomp and prayer.

Today's birthdays: Caroline Kennedy is 19. Broadway producer David Merrick is 64.

Thought for today: We may be willing to tell a story twice, but are never willing to hear it more than once. — William Hazlitt, English writer, 1778-1830.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, George Washington, who was at Newark, N.J., wrote to Gen. Charles Lee in New York's Westchester County and urged him to march to join the retreating Washington forces. Washington wrote: "I confess, I expected you would have been sooner in motion."

Dec. 31 Medicare 'B' Claim Deadline

Dec. 31, 1976 is the deadline for filing Part B Medicare claims for services received between Oct. 1, 1974 and Sept. 30, 1975, according to Harry Gelander, manager of the Benton Harbor Social Security office. Failure to file a timely claim can mean loss of Medicare benefits.

"If your medical expenses do not reach the $60 deductible until the last three months of a certain year, then the expenses which come in those last three months may be counted toward the following year's deductible," Gelander said. "The carryover rule helps people who might otherwise have to pay the $60 deductible twice in a short period of time — at the end of one year and at the beginning of the next."

Bills for covered medical services should be attached to a filled-out Request for Medicare Payment form and sent to Blue Shield of Michigan, P.O. Box 2201, Detroit, Mich. 48231. These forms are available at any Social Security office and many doctor's offices.

Medicare medical insurance helps pay for doctor bills and many other medical expenses of people 65 and over, of disabled people under 65 who have been entitled to Social Security disability benefits for at least 24 consecutive months, and many people with permanent kidney failure. For a full explanation of what Part B Medicare does and does not cover call or write the Social Security Office at Fairplain Plaza, Benton Harbor, Mich., and ask for a copy of the Medicare Handbook.

Balky Doors And CuresBy ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Somebody once said there are at least 20 reasons why a door won't close properly.

Since this is an article and not a book, let's look only at the few most common causes for a balky door.

The most likely reason a door refuses to close or does so with great reluctance is that it is sagging. The first place to examine is the setting of the hinges. Move the door back and forth and see whether any of the hinges move. You'll have to observe very carefully, since the movement is usually very slight, sometimes almost unnoticeable.

Even if you notice nothing, take a screwdriver and insert the blade into the slot of each screw, turning it clockwise. The screw should not move, not even a fraction of an inch. If it does, it means you have found either the source of present trouble or the cause of future ones.

Remove the screws that are not secure and fill the holes with wood putty or plastic wood. When the filler has hardened, reinsert the screws and drive them into place.

A temporary repair of this sort can be made by putting some steel wool or broken pieces of a toothpick into the holes, in which case the screws can be replaced immediately.

If all screws are tightly in place or if resetting them does no good, take out the screws that hold the lower hinge leaf on the door jamb. Put a thin piece of wood or cardboard under the leaf and reset the screws, making certain the screws go through the shim. If you can now swing the door back and forth easily, fine. If it moves easier than before but not quite perfectly, try using an extra thickness of shim.

Here's the Answer

Q. — I have to refinish some cabinets with varnish. A material I have never used before. The instructions for the refinishing say that the varnish should not be applied during humid weather. The trouble is that, it is always humid where I live. Is there anything that can be mixed with the varnish that will permit its application at any time?

A. — Nothing that I know of, but if you haven't yet purchased the varnish, get a polyurethane type. It will cost more, but it can be applied during periods of Sometimes it is the upper hinge plate that has to be reset. Deepen the mortised area under the plate, using a sharp chisel and working very carefully.

This will set the plate deeper into the wood and often take the sag out of the door. This upper hinge plate problem usually occurs on very heavy doors.

Another possible source of trouble, when the door sticks completely at the bottom, is that the threshold may have become loose or warped. If it moves, take out the loose nails and renail it.

In a severe case of a warped threshold, it will have to be replaced. Take it out, even if you have to cut it into two or more pieces, since you will have to use it as a pattern for a new one, whether you buy it to size or cut it to size.

Since most wooden thresholds are made of hardwood, be sure to drill pilot holes for the nails to prevent splitting.

You may have to remove the door and plane it to make it fit properly, but use this method only as a last resort. There is always the chance that a big gap may result when a change in weather dries out the wood.

If you do elect this procedure, be certain to paint or otherwise finish the planed portion to prevent the entrance of moisture, the principal cause of warping.

If a door is warped, it should be placed on two sawhorses or something similar with the bulged side up. Do this outside, preferably on a day when there is a forecast of clear, sunny skies for 48 hours or so. Place bricks or other heavy weights on the bulge. Inspect the door every 12 or 15 hours.

When the door appears straight, place a level on it to be sure it is, then remove the weights.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 3, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

EAST LANSING — If you have a black walnut tree in your yard, do not plant other landscape plants or vegetables within 60 feet of it, according to Michigan State University extension specialists. Black walnut tree roots contain a toxin that will kill other plants that come in contact with them.

The toxin doesn't spread through the soil, however, the MSU specialists say. Symptoms of black walnut toxicity include stunting, wilt and death of part or all of the plant.

BOARD OF REALTORS

Home financing through a mortgage is a complex subject not easily understood by most people. Nevertheless, it's a subject that almost all home buyers have to come to grips with.

The language of lending often proves confusing for most people who do not deal with financing professionally. What follows is a brief glossary of terms.

CLOSING — The completion of the real estate transaction. It includes such things as the signing of notes, delivery of deed, disbursement of money connected with the sale as well as other financial adjustments.

CLOSING COSTS — Costs paid at the closing by the borrower ordinarily including such things as the origination fee, title insurance, survey, escrow payments, attorney's fees and taxes.

COMMITMENT — An agreement to make a loan subject to conditions.

CONVENTIONAL LOAN: The most common mortgage loan. It is a loan that is not insured by the FHA nor guaranteed by the VA.

ESCROW PAYMENT — That part of the monthly mortgage payment held in trust to pay for such things as taxes, mortgage insurance and hazard insurance.

FEDERAL HOUSING AD-

MINISTRATION (FHA) — The agency of the federal government that insures mortgages meeting FHA standards and conditions.

FEE SIMPLE — Absolute and unconditional status of property ownership.

G. I. LOAN — A mortgage loan that is guaranteed by the Veteran's Administration.

MORTGAGE DISCOUNT — (Also known as points, loan brokerage fee, or new loan fee): These are equalizers in the mortgage field to make a loan more attractive to the lender. One point equals one percent of the mortgage amount. It is roughly equivalent to 1/8 of one per cent in terms of interest

NOTE — A document which acknowledges a debt and promises to pay it.

ORIGINATION FEE — A fee paid to the lender for costs involved in taking a mortgage.

PREPAYMENT CLAUSE — A clause permitting a borrower to repay a portion or the remainder of a loan before its final due date. Sometimes a penalty must be paid if this right is exercised.

QUITCLAIM DEED — A deed in which the person granting it relinquishes any interest he has in a property at that time.

SEARCHING THE TITLE (or title search) — An investigation to determine if a seller has all rights to the property he is selling and to find out if there are any liens or claims against it.

TITLE — A document indicating evidence of ownership.

TITLE INSURANCE — Insurance protecting the insured from any defects in a title. It also guarantees the work of a title company.

HOME BUILDING & OTHER CONSTRUCTION NEWS

HAZARD INSURANCE — Insurance purchased to protect property against fire, wind and other hazards.

HOME MORTGAGE LOAN — A long-term loan pledging the property purchased as security. There are three principal kinds. Loans insured by the FHA. Loans guaranteed by the VA and conventional loans.

LIEN — A legal claim held on property as security against a yield. For example, in order to get a lender to back an 8 per cent VA or FHA loan when the market rate is 9 1/2 per cent, the yield on the loan must be increased 1/2 of a per cent by a cash payment. That added cash payment is known as a mortgage discount. Federal law prohibits charging points to FHA/VA borrowers. However, lenders are allowed to charge a one per cent origination fee.

Housewife Fond Of Dome Home

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — "You'll move out inside a year," a friend told Eleanor Ligon when she moved into a dome home with her husband, Robert, and their two children.

Two years later Mrs. Ligon says her 39-foot-wide home in nearby Aapptos is "the best house we've ever had."

"It's light inside, the maintenance is easy and it's just a very easy house to live in."

Although they've been around since visionary architect R. Buckminster Fuller first designed one in the 1940s, domes have become appealing to consumers in recent years because of high construction costs for conventional homes, according to Tate Miller. He is general manager of Cathedralite Domes, a Santa Cruz firm that has sold more than 4,000 domes and claims to be the world's largest manufacturer of geodesic domes.

"If you build a geodesic dome side by side with a conventional home, getting the same square footage out of each one and using the same fixtures inside, the geodesic dome would run 15 to 25 per cent less per square foot," said Miller.

Domes also got a boost from the energy crisis, Miller said. Dome owners can save up to 50 per cent over conventional home owners on heating and cooling costs, he said.

Police Sgt. Cole Fired By Niles

NILES — Niles police Sgt. Max Cole, cleared in court last week of charges stemming from the alleged theft of a gun, was fired yesterday by order of the city's board of public safety. In a statement released yesterday, the board said that it authorized Police Chief Raymond Rudman to offer Cole "the opportunity to resign" and then dismiss Cole if he did not leave the force voluntarily.

City officials said Cole refused to resign.

The board's statement said Cole's dismissal was "due to... theft and/or embezzlement and conduct unbecoming an officer."

Cole, 43, was indicted by the Berrien county citizens grand jury. He was charged with larceny in a building and embezzlement over $50 by a public officer.

Judge John T. Hammond, Berrien Fifth District court, ruled that charges against Cole be dismissed because there was no larceny and the gun Cole was accused of stealing was not worth $50.

Judge Hammond said that if it were not for the issue of the value of the gun, he would have bound Cole over to Circuit court on the embezzlement charge.

Cole, who joined the force in 1958, was one of eight present or former Niles policemen indicted by the grand jury. Of the eight, five have been bound over to Circuit court.

Charges against two other officers have also been dismissed.

The safety board described conduct unbecoming an officer as, "...any conduct which adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the department... also any conduct which has a tendency to destroy public respect for municipal employees and confidence in the operation of municipal services."

Paralyzed Skier Becomes A Bride

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) — Jill Kinnmont, whose tragic skiing career and love affair were portrayed in the film "The Other Side of the Mountain," has married a man from this town on the edge of the mountains where she learned to ski.

Miss Kinnmont, 40, and John G. Boothe, 35, were married Friday before about 40 family members.

The bride and groom grew up here 300 miles north of Los Angeles but didn't meet until Miss Kinnmont moved back two years ago. Boothe works for a local trucking firm. She teaches remedial reading in the Bishop schools.

Miss Kinnmont was the nation's top hope for an Olympic gold medal in skiing when she took a bad spill at Alta, Utah, in 1955. Hitting a tree, she crushed three vertebrae and became paralyzed from the shoulders down.

A boyfriend, Dick Buck, prodded her into fighting for life. They had plans to marry — "but nothing definite," Miss Kinnmont says — when Buck, a flier, was killed in a plane accident in 1957.

The story of her accident and love affair with Buck was dramatized in "The Other Side of the Mountain," released in 1975 and recently re-released.

After recovering from the accident, Miss Kinnmont, still confined to a wheelchair, enrolled at UCLA; graduated and taught special reading classes in Beverly Hills from 1967 to 1974.

She met Boothe when she moved back to Bishop and rented a house from him. Her interest in local history helped spark the romance.

"John is from a pioneer family in the valley, and I was fascinated with the history and wanted to talk to him and learn about the old ranching families who lived here," she said. "His family runs a pack station in the mountains."

The wedding took place in the home of her closest childhood friend, Andrea Jo Baumgarth, a skier whose legs were paralyzed by polio two years before Miss Kinnmont's accident. Miss Baumgarth, who also was portrayed in the motion picture, is confined to a wheelchair.

A reception was held at the house of Dave McCoy. Miss Kinnmont's coach when she was honing her skills as a ski racer on the nearby slopes at Mammoth Mountain.

Miss Kinnmont said because of her age, she doesn't plan to have children.

Work on a sequel to "The Other Side of the Mountain" is to begin next February. It will deal with Miss Kinnmont's struggle to become a teacher and her romance with Boothe, who was divorced when they met.

Driver Sought By BH Police

Benton Harbor police said today they are looking for the driver of an auto that struck a tree off East Britain avenue, near Pipestone street, about 10:23 p.m. Friday.

Patrolman James Whiteside said the front end of the car was badly damaged, but the driver apparently left on foot. Whiteside said it appeared the auto was eastbound on Britain. It skidded onto a tree lawn and rammed the tree in front of the Erma Reynolds home, 487 Britain.

Whiteside said the car is registered to Willie Holmes, 393 Washington, Benton Harbor.

Two Indiana men were bound over to Berrien Circuit court on charges of armed robbery while two other men released in the same case were accused as a result of preliminary examinations in Berrien Fifth District court.

The four Indiana men and two others were charged with robbing two hitchhikers Nov. 14 in New Buffalo township. Dismissed were armed robbery charges against Robert W. Eaton, 20, and Alan Stakowski, 18, both of Union Mills, Ind. Judge Hugh Black said the charges were dismissed after testimony indicated Eaton and Stakowski did not participate in the robbery.

Court Rules One Slate At A Time

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Supreme Court says political parties each can place only one candidate per office on a general election ballot.

In its decision Friday, the high court ruled invalid two 19th century state Supreme Court decisions which allowed parties to run more than one candidate for each office.

The formal opinion, on a 5-1 vote, came on a request by Michigan's feuding American Independent Party to run two slates of candidates in this year's general election.

Shortly before the election, the Supreme Court overturned a Michigan Court of Appeals decision and said the two AIP factions had to agree on one candidate for each office. They failed to do so for most top offices, including President, Vice President and U.S. Senate, and wound up with candidates on the ballot only in minor races.

The Supreme Court said the appeals court ruling was wrong because the two state Supreme Court cases in 1891 and 1898 on which it based its decision no longer apply. That is because state election laws have been changed since then, the high court said.

Dissenting was Justice Charles Levin, who said the case should have been returned to a lower court for a hearing on the nature of the dispute between the factions. He said that court should also have decided whether either faction was rightfully in control of the party.

BH Firemen Clear Smoke From House

Benton Harbor firemen said an excess of oil in a furnace firepot resulted in smoke, but no blaze, at the home of Erma Gillespie, 1035 Bishop avenue, about 5:48 p.m. Friday.

Firemen said they cleared smoke from the home and stood by until the furnace cooled down. The furnace was shut off by the occupant when it began smoking, firemen said.

Court Rules One Slate At A Time

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Supreme Court says political parties each can place only one candidate per office on a general election ballot.

In its decision Friday, the high court ruled invalid two 19th century state Supreme Court decisions which allowed parties to run more than one candidate for each office.

The formal opinion, on a 5-1 vote, came on a request by Michigan's leading American Independent Party to run two slates of candidates in this year's general election.

Shortly before the election, the Supreme Court overturned a Michigan Court of Appeals decision and said the two AIP factions had to agree on one candidate for each office. They failed to do so for most top offices, including President, Vice President and U.S. Senate, and would up with candidates on the ballot only in minor races.

The Supreme Court said the appeals court ruling was wrong because the two state Supreme Court cases in 1891 and 1898 on which it based its decision no longer apply.

That is because state election laws have been changed since then, the high court said.

Dissenting was Justice Charles Levin, who said the case should have been returned to a lower court for a hearing on the nature of the dispute between the factions. He said that court should also have decided whether either faction was rightfully in control of the party.

Clear Smoke

From House

Benton Harbor firemen said an excess of oil in a furnace firepot resulted in smoke, but no blaze, at the home of Erma Gillespie, 1035 Bishop avenue, about 5:48 p.m. Friday.

Firemen said they cleared smoke from the home and stood by until the furnace cooled down. The furnace was shut off by the occupant when it began smoking, firemen said.

HE'S HERE: A gloomy day was brightened for hundreds of youngsters Friday when Santa Claus arrived at Fairplain Plaza. Santa had to change his plans and travel by police car because it

Gilmore May End His Fast

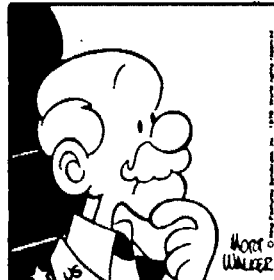

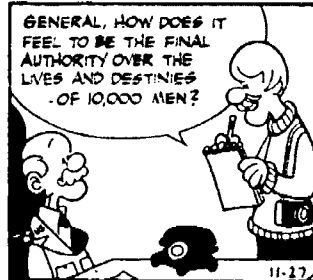

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Dismissing those who seek revision of his death sentence as "do-gooders," Gary Gilmore was reported considering an end to his week-long fast if he can learn more about his girl friend's condition.

The 35-year-old convicted murderer has refused anything but water and coffee with sugar since Nov. 19, when prison officials refused to let him telephone Nicole Barrett, 20. She was committed to the state mental hospital after she and Gilmore tried to kill themselves with drug overdoses.

NEWS OF MARKETS

DOW UP 7.82 POINTS

Easier Credit Move Gives Stocks Boost

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Steps by the Federal Reserve toward easier credit provided the inspiration for a moderate gain in stock prices this past week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 7.82 to 956.62 on top of a 21.11-point advance the week before.

By Friday's close the average had recouped all but 10 points of the 38-point loss it suffered in the initial selloff that followed Jimmy Carter's victory in the presidential election.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index posted a 1.23 gain to 103.15 for the week, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was up .72 at 55.31.

Big Board volume averaged 18.86 million shares a day, down from 21.24 million in the previous week.

The mood for the week was set late the previous Friday, when the Fed announced a reduction in the discount rate—the charge it sets on loans to its member commercial banks—from 9½ to 8½ per cent.

The move was taken as a clear signal that the central bank was seeking to push interest rates lower and stimulate the economy.

And Wall Streeters also saw it as a further indication of a prospective harmonious relationship between Arthur Burns, the Fed's chairman, and President-elect Carter.

The Fed followed up this past week with several transactions in the money markets that touched off declines in short-term interest rates.

That spelled clear sailing for the stock market on all but one of the week's trading days. The Dow rose 7 on Monday, fell back 6 on Tuesday, but added 11 on Wednesday before the Thanksgiving holiday, and picked up more than 5 on Friday.

Tuesday's setback was attributed largely to Chrysler Corp.'s reduction of its estimate of industry car sales for the 1977 model year—from the range of 10.8 million-11 million units to 10.5-10.8 million.

That news was followed by word of a less-than-1 per cent increase in auto sales for mid-November, and General Motors' disclosure of plans for the temporary closing of one assembly plant.

Not surprisingly, the auto issues came in for some selling pressure during the week while many other stocks were moving ahead.

A brighter note that helped the market bounce back on Wednesday came in a trade association report of a jump in sales of mutual fund shares last month.

With that increased buying, the flow of money out of common-stock funds slowed to its lightest pace since last December.

Old CB Radios

Will Be Bargains

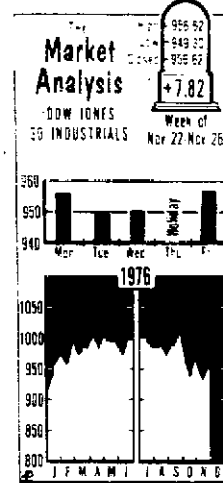

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Reports that 23-channel Citizens Band radios will be obsolete after Jan. 1 when 40-channel sets become available are inaccurate, an industry spokesman says.

Instead, said Craig Martin, president of Communications Equipment Distributors Association, purchasing a 23-channel model could prove to be a bargain "for people whose main purpose is highway safety."

from the funds of late has been a source of concern to market analysts, because it has reduced the amount of money the funds have available to buy stocks with.

At week's end, the market still faced the uncertainty of what pricing decision the oil-exporting nations would make next month.

The tally of NYSE-listed issues showed 1,332 gainers and 494 losers among the 2,075 traded.

New highs for the year totaled 204 against 31 new lows.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .43 to 100.52.

The Associated Press 60-stock average climbed 5.1 to 317.3.

In this instance, we are only talking about money and inconvenience. The next time it could be someone's life.

The main purpose of this letter is to bring a dangerous situation to your attention. I hope you will take this as constructive criticism, and, in the future, take steps to eliminate the possibility of a fatal accident marring the coming holiday season.

READER PRAISES DR. McDONALD

Reading the Editor's Mailbag last night, I got a joyful feeling and with all my heart as a Christian and patient of Dr. McDonald, I thank Rev. Robert Brown for speaking up for a man of integrity.

I was born and raised in the twin cities, had parents who were in business for fifty years, and was in business myself for ten years. When I was a little girl, Dr. McDonald had his clinic on Pipestone street. They were good, decent people and passed it on to three generations. Dr. McDonald sent two children to college and has had much heartache with his beautiful wife's health.

Only the people that follow Satan can judge. For we must remember God's love, kindness, and understanding. God says if a man judge another then he shall be judged. We want Dr. McDonald to know that my whole family is praying for him and will see him as us all.

RENTAL HOUSING IS 'DESIRABLE'

Editor, Your recent editorial spoke out strongly in favor of home ownership and its benefits to the community. There is little doubt that ownership increases care for the investment it represents.

But not all residents have the ability or inclination to accept the responsibility of home ownership, and all the burdens it brings. The recurrent job of painting, inside and out, the remodeling, the maintenance problems of stopped-up drains, faulty water heaters, malfunctioning heating and air conditioning, can be a mental strain. True, there is a choice between using the spare time and play the role of maintenance man, and having it done professionally. The one may hurt your back and the other your hip pocket.

Therefore it seems logical that a segment of our community prefers to avoid the mental strain and backaches, and pays for the privilege. It seems unwarranted to class them as less-desirable, or detrimental to the community only for that reason.

Adequate rental units are essential for our community, for they serve on a permanent basis, the senior citizens, and those who do not care for the homework. They are of great value to the temporary resident, who moves at his employer's demand. They provide an initial base of operations for the newcomer, who needs to become familiar with the area before deciding where to buy a home.

Therefore I disagree with the editorial and feel that increased availability of rental units is desirable. More competition will effectively control the rents charged. And the local government can exert its influence by specifying such requirements of rental units that they will be at least as much of an asset to the community as owner-occupied residences.

CHECK-WRITER'S TALE OF WOE

Editor, This letter is not written for selfish reasons, but to inform shoppers during the Christmas season of the possible awaiting humiliation.

My unfortunate experience was to have made selections appropriate for my youngster and other odds and ends, at Woolworth's in Benton Harbor and having written a check, I waited for the "manager's" approval. He not only refused the check, but went on with intent to harass and belittle me in the store. He said he had never heard of the town, Pullman, where I live and questioned the authenticity of its existence. He further refused to even check my identification, stating that he did not have to give reason for not accepting my check or anyone else's check. I had the cash to cover my purchases, but my humiliation and wounded self-respect would not allow me to accommodate the insult.

I am a 26-year-old school teacher. I have never written a check that I did not have funds to cover. I also have never had the experience of being spoken to quite so loudly or rudely in a place where I planned to spend my money.

I believe that even though checks may be turned down, the way and tone in which the declination is delivered has a lot to do with the outcome. I prefer not to shop where my money is used to pay the salaries of people who are rude, and degrading.

Thank you for reading this. I do appreciate being heard sometimes.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mike Kelly, assistant manager of the Woolworth's store at Fairplain Plaza, said he did not accept the check because it was drawn on a Kalamazoo bank and it is his company's policy not to honor checks over $10 from banks outside this area unless the bank can be contacted. Since the incident took place at night, he said, this was not possible. He said he did state that he had never heard of Pullman and that Ms. Thomas "got upset very quickly" but denied harassing her.

The Mayor asked for comments from the audience and the Commission heard a presentation by a representative of the architect, LeRoy Troyer and Associates, Mishawaka, Indiana and from Leonard Smith, the developer. After discussion Commissioner Hanley, seconded by Commissioner Selent moved that further consideration of the matter be postponed until the regular meeting of the Commission to be held November 29, 1976.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley, Selent and Smith. Nays: None. Absent: None. Motion declared carried.

The Mayor announced that he wished to appoint members to the Board of Directors of the Downtown Development Authority. Section 4 of Act 197 of the Public Act of 1975 provides that the Board shall consist of the Chief Executive of the municipality (Mayor) and eight members to be appointed by the Mayor subject to approval by the City Commission. At least five (5) members shall be persons having an interest in property located in the district, one (1) member shall be a resident of the district and members shall be appointed for staggered terms in the first instance and thereafter have terms of four (4) years. The Mayor then announced his selection of John Fellers, Ted Bestervelt, Ray Carlson and Leroy Hornack and George Keller as property owners and Richard Schanze, Clifford Emblong and Jack Sparks as non-resident members. The initial terms of these members shall be as follows: Fellers and Schanze, one year; Bestervelt and Carlson, 2 years; Emblong and Hornack 3 years; Attorney Keller and Sparks, 4 years.

Commissioner Selent, seconded by Commissioner Hanley, moved that the foregoing members and terms presented by the Mayor be approved. Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Hanley, Selent and Smith. Nays: None. Absent: None. Motion declared carried.

TOM SPARKS appeared before the City Commission and objected to the manner in which lot splits are handled by the Planning Commission, it being his position that such splits shall not be considered until proper notice has been given.

There being no further business to come before this commission, Commissioner Hanley moved to adjourn until Monday, November 22, 1976 at 7:30 P.M.

In this instance, we are only talking about money and inconvenience. The next time it could be someone's life.

The main purpose of this letter is to bring a dangerous situation to your attention. I hope you will take this as constructive criticism, and, in the future, take steps to eliminate the possibility of a fatal accident marring the coming holiday season.

READER PRAISES DR. McDONALD

Editor,
Reading the Editor's Mailbag last night, I got a joyful feeling and with all my heart as a Christian and patient of Dr. McDonald, I thank Rev. Robert Brown for speaking up for a man of integrity.

I was born and raised in the twin cities, had parents who were in business for fifty years, and was in business myself for ten years. When I was a little girl, Dr. McDonald had his clinic on Pipestone street. They were good, decent people and passed it on for three generations. Dr. McDonald sent two children to college and has had much heartache with his beautiful wife's health.

Only the people that follow Satan can judge. For we must remember God's love, kindness, and understanding. God says if a man judge another then he shall be judged. We want Dr. McDonald to know that my whole family is praying for him and will see him as us all.

RENTAL HOUSING IS 'DESIRABLE'

Editor,

Your recent editorial spoke out strongly in favor of home ownership and its benefits to the community. There is little doubt that ownership increases care for the investment it represents.

But not all residents have the ability or inclination to accept the responsibility of home ownership, and all the burdens it brings. The recurrent job of painting, inside and out, the remodeling, the maintenance problems of stopped-up drains, faulty water heaters, malfunctioning heating and air conditioning, can be a mental strain. True, there is a choice between using the spare time and play the role of maintenance man, and having it done professionally. The one may hurt your back and the other your hip pocket.

Therefore it seems logical that a segment of our community prefers to avoid the mental strain and backaches, and pays for the privilege. It seems unwarranted to class them as less-desirable, or detrimental to the community only for that reason.

Adequate rental units are essential for our community, for they serve on a permanent basis, the senior citizens, and those who do not care for the homework. They are of great value to the temporary resident, who moves at his employer's demand. They provide an initial base of operations for the new-comer, who needs to become familiar with the area, before deciding where to buy a home.

Therefore I disagree with the editorial and feel that increased availability of rental units is desirable. More competition will effectively control the rents charged. And the local government can exert its influence by specifying such requirements of rental units that they will be at least as much of an asset to the community as owner-occupied residences.

CHECK-WRITER'S TALE OF WOE

Editor,

This letter is not written for selfish reasons, but to inform shoppers during the Christmas season of the possible awaiting humiliation.

My unfortunate experience was to have made selections appropriate for my youngsters and other odds and ends, at Woolworth's in Benton Harbor and having written a check, I waited for the "manager's" approval. He not only refused the check, but went on with intent to harass and belittle me in the store. He said he had never heard of the town, Pullman, where I live and questioned the authenticity of its existence. He further refused to even

CLEAN SWEEP: Curly Gahagan prompts stares and chuckles as a professional chimney sweep perched on rooftops in communities north of Seattle, Wash. High fuel costs have increased the use of wood for heat and consequently the need to clean chimneys. (AP Wirephoto) check my identification, stating that he did not have to give reason for not accepting my check or anyone else's check. I had the cash to cover my purchases, but my humiliation and wounded self-respect would not allow me to accommodate the insult.

I am a 26-year-old school teacher. I have never written a check. I did not have funds to cover. I also have never had the experience of being spoken to quite so loudly or rudely in a place where I planned to spend my money.

I believe that even though checks may be turned down, the way and tone in which the declination is delivered has a lot to do with the outcome. I prefer not to shop where my money is used to pay the salaries of people who are rude and degrading.

Thank you for reading this. I do appreciate being heard sometimes.

Rebecca Thomas

Pullman

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mike Kelly, assistant manager of the Woolworth's store at Fairplain Plaza, said he did not accept the check because it was drawn on a Kalamazoo bank and it is his company's policy not to honor checks over $10 from banks outside this area unless the bank can be contacted. Since the incident took place at night, he said, this was not possible. He said he did state that he had never heard of Pullman and that Ms. Thomas "got upset very quickly" but denied harassing her.

BOYS ELECTROCUTED: Firemen and paramedics struggle to revive Kenneth Gunderson, 15, and Richard Legel, 16, after the boys accidentally touched a utility line with a long metal pole they were playing with at Carpentersville, Ill. Incident occurred Thursday afternoon in the backyard of Gunderson's home. Attempts to revive the boys were unsuccessful. (AP Wirephoto)

'Mock Hanging' Riles Lawmaker

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A state senator says he wants Army National Guard officials prosecuted for allowing a guardsman to have a noose tied around his neck in an incident that prompted the governor to fire a Guard officer.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said Friday that Gov. J.J. Exon had not responded adequately by firing Maj. Gen. Francis Winner, adjutant general of the Nebraska Guard, effective Jan. 1.

Exon acted after getting a report on an investigation into the incident, which he termed a "mock hanging." It occurred during a drinking party at a training session last May 31 at Fort Gordon, Ga., involving guardsmen from Nebraska and Mississippi.

Pvt. Dan Briscoe was quoted in the report as saying that he saved himself from choking only by placing his hands between the rope and his neck.

He later became upset and fell or thrust his fist through a barracks window and had to undergo surgery, the governor's report said.

Exon said his report found "no evidence that homicide was intended" against Briscoe, who is black. The governor said the incident apparently was a spontaneous prank. Chambers, only black member of the Nebraska legislature, said he would "explore every avenue to obtain criminal prosecution." He has previously claimed that the incident was racially inspired and has called for state and federal investigations.

Neither Winner nor other high officers of the Nebraska Guard were present during the incident.

In announcing the firing, Exon said "this was a despicable mock hanging incident — no more, no less."

Chambers called the incident "an attempted lynching" and criticized Exon for labeling it a "mock hanging." The state senator said "a hangman's noose was placed around the guardsman's neck, the rope was thrown over the limb of a tree, the other end attached to a pickup truck and the guardsman was then hoisted off the ground."

Steel Makers Sure Price Hikes Will Hold

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Despite the Ford administration's skepticism — and failure of the industry's two leaders to go along — some steel makers say they are confident that demand will support their new price increases. Four more steel firms increased prices Friday effective Dec. 1 on steel used in autos and consumer goods, bringing to six the number of companies to do so this week. The price hikes range between $15 and $20 a ton on various sheet products and have averaged about 6 per cent.

Conspicuously missing from the list were U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's No. 1 producer, and second-ranked Bethlehem Steel Corp. Their pricing policies could determine whether the increases will stand. Flat-rolled steel is used widely in the automotive and appliance industries. The increases could be passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices, but the nation's major auto makers, the largest buyers of sheet steel products, have not commented so far.

The four firms which joined in the hikes Friday are Armco Steel of Middletown, Ohio; Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. here; Youngstown Sheet and Tube of Youngstown, Ohio, and Inland Steel of Chicago. National Steel Corp. and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. touched off the round of price hikes Wednesday.

State Rejects Request For 2nd District Recount

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Secretary of State elections division has refused to accept Democrat Edward C. Pierce's petition for a recount of votes in the Congressional race he lost by a hair-thin margin.

Republican Carl D. Pursell beat Pierce by 341 votes in the November election to capture Michigan's 2nd District U.S. House seat.

The elections office told Pierce and his attorney, Thomas Downs, on Friday a 1974 opinion by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley prevents the state from recounting congressional races.

Kelley made a similar ruling against such a recount two years ago, on a request from Republican Clifford Taylor, loser of a close election to Democrat M. Robert Carr in the 6th district.

After Friday's ruling Downs, one of the top election attorneys in the country, said he is considering further action on Pierce's request, but refused to say what that action might be.

"We think the people of the state of Michigan have a right to be sure of an accurate recount on this race as much as on any other to guarantee the purity of the election," said Downs.

Michigan election law specifically says that any candidate who feels aggrieved about election results is entitled to a recount. But another section of the law dealing with congressional candidates mentions recounts only for primary returns.

Kelley's opinion was based on a 1907 state Supreme Court decision which gives the federal government the responsibility for congressional recounts. A spokesman for Kelley said his opinion on the law would be no different now than it was in 1974.

However, a 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision specifically allows states to do their own recounts in congressional races.

One alternative Downs has is filing a court suit to challenge the Michigan law. He said Friday another possibility is rushing a bill through the legislature during the final two weeks of this year's session to amend the election law and allow congressional recount.

State Elections Director Bernard Apol said his office made no attempt to have legislation introduced to fix the problem because another close congressional race was not expected soon after 1974. Other items, like campaign reform legislation, had a higher priority, he said.

BOYS ELECTROCUTED: Firemen and paramedics struggle to revive Kenneth Gunderson, 15, and Richard Legel, 16, after the boys accidentally touched a utility line with a long metal pole they were playing with at Carpentersville, Ill. Incident occurred Thursday afternoon in the backyard of Gunderson's home. Attempts to revive the boys were unsuccessful. (AP Wirephoto)

State Rejects Request For 2nd District Recount

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Secretary of State elections division has refused to accept Democrat Edward C. Pierce's petition for a recount of votes in the Congressional race he lost by a hair-thin margin.

Republican Carl D. Pursell beat Pierce by 344 votes in the November election to capture Michigan's 2nd District U.S. House seat.

The elections office told Pierce and his attorney, Thomas Downs, on Friday a 1974 opinion by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley prevents the state from recounting congressional races.

Kelley made a similar ruling against such a recount two years ago, on a request from Republican Clifford Taylor, loser of a close election to Democrat M. Robert Carr in the 6th district.

After Friday's ruling Downs, one of the top election attorneys in the country, said he is considering further action on Pierce's request, but refused to say what that action might be.

"We think the people of the state of Michigan have a right to be sure of an accurate recount on this race as much as on any other to guarantee the purity of the election," said Downs.

Michigan election law specifically says that any candidate who feels aggrieved about election results is entitled to a recount. But another section of the law dealing with congressional candidates mentions recounts only for primary returns.

Kelley's opinion was based on a 1907 state Supreme Court decision which gives the federal government the responsibility for congressional recounts. A spokesman for Kelley said his opinion on the law would be no different now than it was in 1974.

However, a 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision specifically allows states to do their own recounts in congressional races.

One alternative Downs has is filing a court suit to challenge the Michigan law. He said Friday another possibility is rushing a bill through the legislature during the final two weeks of this year's session to amend the election law and allow congressional recount.

State Elections Director Bernard Apol said his office made no attempt to have legislation introduced to fix the problem because another close congressional race was not expected so soon after 1974. Other items, like campaign reform legislation, had a higher priority, he said.

'Mock Hanging' Riles Lawmaker

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A state senator says he wants Army National Guard officials prosecuted for allowing a guardsman to have a noose tied around his neck in an incident that prompted the governor to fire a Guard officer.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said Friday that Gov. J.J. Exon had not responded adequately by firing Maj. Gen. Francis Winner, adjutant general of the Nebraska Guard, effective Jan. 1.

Exon acted after getting a report on an investigation into the incident, which he termed a "mock hanging." It occurred during a drinking party at a training session last May 31 at Fort Gordon, Ga., involving guardsmen from Nebraska and Mississippi.

Pvt. Dan Briscoe was quoted in the report as saying that he saved himself from choking only by placing his hands between the rope and his neck.

He later became upset and fell or thrust his fist through a barracks window and had to undergo surgery, the governor's report said.

Exon said his report found "no evidence that homicide was intended" against Briscoe, who is black. The governor said the incident apparently was a spontaneous prank. Chambers, only black member of the Nebraska legislature, said he would "explore every avenue to obtain criminal prosecution." He has previously claimed that the incident was racially inspired and has called for state and federal investigations.

Neither Winner nor other high officers of the Nebraska Guard were present during the incident.

In announcing the firing, Exon said "this was a despicable mock hanging incident — no more, no less."

Chambers called the incident "an attempted lynching" and criticized Exon for labeling it a "mock hanging." The state senator said "a hangman's noose was placed around the guardsman's neck, the rope was thrown over the limb of a tree, the other end attached to a pickup truck and the guardsman was then hoisted off the ground."

Steel Makers Sure Price Hikes Will Hold

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Despite the Ford administration's skepticism — and failure of the industry's two leaders to go along — some steel makers say they are confident that demand will support their new price increases. Four more steel firms increased prices Friday effective Dec. 1 on steel used in autos and consumer goods, bringing to six the number of companies to do so this week. The price hikes range between $15 and $20 a ton on various sheet products and have averaged about 6 per cent.

Conspicuously missing from the list were U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's No. 1 producer, and second-ranked Bethlehem Steel Corp. Their pricing policies could determine whether the increases will stand. Flat-rolled steel is used widely in the automotive and appliance industries. The increases could be passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices, but the nation's major auto makers, the largest buyers of sheet steel products, have not commented so far.

The four firms which joined in the hikes Friday are Armco Steel of Middletown, Ohio; Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. here; Youngstown Sheet and Tube of Youngstown, Ohio, and Inland Steel of Chicago. National Steel Corp. and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. touched off the round of price hikes Wednesday.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR LIONEL HAMPTON, jazz musician

Now that you're in your 60's, what's your future, and what is the future of jazz?—C.J., Gary, Ind.

● If you mean, am I thinking of retiring, the answer is "No!" Even though I've played for four Presidential inaugurations, toured the world 20 times and average almost 200 concerts a year, I'm just warming up. I think jazz is getting reborn. Kids today seem to enjoy dancing to a band with a different beat, and new expressions for jazz are developing in areas of rock music. I play more college- and high-school gigs than ever before. There's a demand for the big-band sound.

FOR JACK NELSON,

1976 women's Olympic swimming coach

What adjustments will the U.S. women swimmers have to make if they hope to challenge the East Germans in the 1980 Olympics?—S.V., Huron, S.D.

● They'll have to accept the fact that they need to get stronger. In order to do that, they must concentrate more on training with weights. There can be strength without huge bulk, and the women must have faith that after their competitive career is over, they will be able to get back to normal body shape within three to six months.

FOR GOV. ELLA GRASSO (Conn.)

Although you're often seen with your husband, you never seem to be with your children. Any reason for this?—Anna Micando, Prospect, Conn.

● Because he's retired, my husband is free to accompany me to many official functions. Susanne and Jim join us whenever their schedules permit, but photographers aren't always around when they do. Whether or not our children are with us publicly, they've always been our associates in the great and wonderful adventure of public service.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER, comedienne

Why weren't you on the worst-dressed list this year? Did you bribe Mr. Blackwell—or get a new wardrobe?—Mary Brackley, Amherst, Ohio

● My designer of 15 years was finally sent to the rubber home for the terminally bewildered. Her last set of sketches left no doubt in my mind that she had really come down out of a tree.

FOR HANS HOLZER, authority on the occult and ESP

What has been your strangest supernatural experience?—M.B., Pine Bluff, Ark.

● While staying at an Austrian castle my wife and I woke simultaneously in the middle of the night. We saw a valet in a green uniform staring at us. As the vision disappeared, Catherine and I had a curious desire to pray. The next morning we learned that in the early 19th century, one of the masters of the castle was killed by a peasant, and the body was discovered by his valet, who wore a green uniform. We had slept in the victim's bed!

FOR LOUIS L'AMOUR, author

As a prolific writer of Westerns, are you an avid reader of them, too?—E.M., Cumberland, Mo.

● No. Not because I don't like them, but because I don't want to be influenced by any other Western writer's way of thinking. In fact, I never read any kind of fiction. When I pick up a book, it's always nonfiction.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON, singer

What was your proudest moment?—C.R., Bloomfield, Conn.

● When the Catholic Actors Guild named me Woman of the Year. All on their own, my kids (Barbara, Joseph, Robert and Elizabeth) took space in the souvenir program and said wonderful things about me. All four wrote long statements. They were so touching that it was all I could do to stop from crying my eyes out.

FOR MELISSA SUE ANDERSON

of "Little House on the Prairie"

Are you anything like your TV character, "Mary Ingalls" in real life?—E.M., Grand Island, N.Y.

● I guess I am a lot like Mary in real life. Mary likes school, and so do I. Mary gets straight "A" report cards, and so do I. Mary likes to read books, and so do I. But in real life, I'm much more outgoing than Mary, and I think I have more fun in life.

FOR JAMES BEARD, gourmet

What was the first dish you ever made?—L.R., Yuma, Ariz.

● Mud pies on the beach when I was four. I wondered how they tasted and sampled all of them.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

What is the feud between Helen Reddy and Rod Stewart all about?—Lynn Anthony Oliver, San Antonio, Texas

● We checked with Helen, who gave us this report (by the way, she and Rod have never met): "Whenever my husband Jeff and I go to Hawaii, we always stay in the same suite at the Kahala-Hilton. On one occasion, about two years ago, Rod and Britt Ekland were in 'our suite' and were overstaying their reservation dates. Our booking had been confirmed earlier. It seems they decided to stay an extra couple of days. When Jeff went upstairs to find out what was going on, Rod refused to vacate or switch to the comparable accommodations offered by the management elsewhere in the hotel. In no way did we evict them. Rod did go, but, before doing so, left the room a wreck. I was shocked that anyone could behave like that. Since then, our paths have not crossed."

A COACH'S FORMULA FOR PRODUCING WINNERS

Indiana University's Bobby Knight believes in talent, discipline and sacrifice. His no-compromise philosophy has created a team of national champions.

Inspired by Gen. George Patton and other military leaders, Bobby Knight has sent his Hurryin' Hoosiers to victory in 63 out of 64 games in the last two years. In his career, his teams have won 225 of 295 games, and he is the youngest coach to have won 200 major college games.

As the wild cheering of basketball fans splits the air, the handsome young coach with the plaid jacket and prematurely gray-streaked hair seems close to exploding with energy and excitement.

Bob Hammel, sports editor of the Bloomington, Indiana Herald-Telephone, is a veteran observer of Indiana U. basketball and the author of Knight With The Hoosiers (Josten's Pub.) and NCAA Indiana All The Way (Indiana U. Press).

His eyes blaze, his face strains and his arms are constantly in motion as he shouts commands. He suffers with each minor setback, reacting instantly to errors and substituting players without a second's hesitation. Throughout the game, he is a picture of agonized concentration.

That's what it was like last season, and if history repeats itself, this coach may go so far as to hurl a chair to the floor, or angrily seize a player by his jersey, or turn and forcefully reprimand the crowd for unsportsmanlike conduct. And if the fans slacken in their enthusiasm, the coach is likely to turn cheerleader, to face the crowd and pound the air with his fist until he has the stands worked up to where they are showing a suitable measure of devotion. That means nothing less than 100 percent fanatical loyalty, for high on the long list of things coach Bobby Knight can not and will not tolerate, must be placed fans who fail to appreciate fully the team that is virtually an extension of himself—Indiana University's Hurryin' Hoosiers.

Bobby Knight is today the most highly regarded coach in college basketball, and assuming he doesn't pop a blood vessel shouting at a referee, he seems well on his way to the Basketball Hall of

And then there is the quotation from Patton which Knight has hanging in his office:

"You have to be single-minded, drive only for one thing on which you have decided. . . and if it looks as if you might be getting there, all kinds of people, including some you thought were your loyal friends, will suddenly show up doing their hypocritical [best] to trip you, blacken you and break your spirit."

Central to Bobby Knight's philosophy of winning is the principle that you don't get ahead by compromising.

"There are a lot of places where a kid can do his own thing," Knight says, "but Indiana is not one of them. And I tell them that the first time I meet them."

"I don't give them any rules after they get here. I tell them before we recruit them: 'If you come to Indiana, you're not going to do your thing, you're going to do MY thing. If you can't do that, then let's get an understanding right now that you're not going to consider Indiana because I'm not going to change.'"

"I believe if we recruit a boy this way, he knows exactly what to expect because I think we're very demanding. I think we probably expect more of our basketball players than most schools do. We expect them to perform better. I don't think we can compromise in any way when we start recruiting.

"There are places where a kid can do his own thing. Here you do MY thing."

"And I really don't think we turn very many off with that. I think kids want somebody who's honest with them, who's going to discipline them—somebody who lets them know exactly where he stands."

Knight's players aren't the only ones who have to contend with his demanding nature. He once ordered a red-faced university vice president out of the gym during practice because the official had violated Knight's rule that requires total silence during the two hour sessions. The sessions, moreover, are generally off-limits to everyone but participants.

Knight is also uncompromising on the subject of recruiting violations. He feels the player, as well as the coach who made the offer, should be penalized. (The boy should lose his eligibility at all schools, the coach should lose his job, and the school's schedule in that sport should be suspended for a year.) Knight adds that he would have no compunction about turning in a fellow coach, and he even warns alumni to stay away from his recruits. "We just don't want you interfering," he stresses to them. "We'll recruit. . . We know the rules; you don't."

In addition to being a single-minded disciplinarian and moralist, Knight is a clever strategist who is fond of quoting from the ancient classic, The Art of War. Among his favorite passages are:

and then wait for an opportunity of defeating the enemy."

"Just as water contains no constant shape, so in warfare there are no constant conditions. He who can modify his tactics in relation to his opponents and thereby succeed in winning may be called a heaven-born captain."

"Regard your soldiers as your children and they will follow you wherever you may lead. Look upon them as your beloved sons and they will stand by you even unto death. If, however, you are indulgent, unable to make your authority felt, kind-hearted but unable to enforce your commands, then your soldiers must be likened to spoiled children. They are useless for all practical purposes."

Knight is a strong father figure to his players and sees that they live in dorms or fraternity houses until they are seniors. Last season, when senior Quinn Buckner began to lose his stamina, Knight determined that the cause was too much junk food. He began supervising Buckner's meals, and the player's endurance returned. He also goes to considerable trouble to save his seniors the hassle and expense of using agents when they are negotiating contracts with professional teams.

On the other hand, he can rip into a player ferociously, as he did once last year during a tense moment when he shook one of his players by the jersey in front of 17,500 fans, an incident that received wide press coverage and briefly subjected Knight to sharp criticism for being overly zealous.

Mike Krzyzewski, who in 1969 captained a team at Army (where Knight became head coach at age 24) and now coaches there, said potential recruits always asked about Knight's temper. "I'd always tell them, 'He's gonna push you, and you're not going to like it sometimes, but overall you're going to like it because you never lose respect for him. You always know that nobody does a better job of preparing you for a game, making you a better player—and that nobody would do more for you.'"

This year may be Knight's most challenging as a coach. Gone from last year's national championship team are Scott May (1976 College Player of the Year), Quinn Buckner, Bobby Wilkerson—all first round selections in the pro draft—and Tom Abernethy—a third round selection. But with All-America center Kent Benson as a nucleus and a highly talented group of recruits and last year's reserves on hand, Indiana will probably be in the thick of the fight for the national championship again in 1977.

A year ago, the 12-year reign of John Wooden, the quiet, low key professional coach of the UCLA Bruins, came to a close with his retirement. In Bloomington, Indiana most everyone believes that the Bobby Knight era has already begun and that some day it may equal Wooden's remarkable record. Hoosiers, as well as more objective observers, agree that Knight's ability to attract gifted players and to mold them into a disciplined, highly efficient team is what makes him the most likely successor of Wooden atop the ranks of college basketball coaches.

BASKETBALL: NOW IT'S TURNING WOMEN ON

Olympic star Harris (45) led Delta State to two national titles, averaging a phenomenal 31 points a game

By Larry Bortstein

After the game, boys and girls clamored around the towering basketball player, begging for autographs in time-honored fashion.

The game last spring had decided no less than the national collegiate championship and the team with the explosive offense had finally succumbed to the deliberate passing and persistent timing of its taller opponents. The players were all women, and the 6'3" star surrounded by fans was Lusia Harris of Mississippi's Delta State College. The 22-year-old senior had just led her team to victory over Immaculata College of Philadelphia and was now being hailed from many quarters as the finest female basketball player in the world. Whether she is or not, it's indisputable that the country has finally noticed women's basketball, and towns and cities everywhere are catching the fever.

Cathy Rush, Immaculata coach and a leading figure in women's basketball, remarks, "The interest is phenomenal, in colleges, high schools and even many junior high schools. There's a greater awareness that sports are good for girls, and basketball is one of the best."

Indeed, there seems no limit to how far women's basketball can go. Major colleges are diverting large amounts of money from men's athletics to women's programs, and there is even a popular women's professional team ("The Red Heads") which tours the country playing local men's teams. Interest was fired even more by last summer's Olympics, which included women's basketball for the first time. The American squad, led by Lusia Harris, surprised everyone and captured the silver medal.

"I think more girls will now play basketball because of our success," predicts Billie Moore, coach of the U.S. Olympic team. Ms. Moore is eager to develop tall players able to take on giants like the U.S.S.R.'s Luliya Semenovova who at 7'2" stood 10 inches above the tallest U.S. player and led the Soviets to the gold medal.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women and other groups are encouraged by the interest the sport is receiving. The Las Vegas Convention Center, for example, is hosting a four-team tournament December 3-4, featuring four top women's teams—Delta State, Immaculata, Long Beach State and the University of Nevada. This will be the country's first regular-season tournament exclusively for women's basketball teams.

"We need to play in the big arenas around the country," says Rush, "to let people see our product and how good our players really are. Madison Square Garden was the first major arena to invite us to play, and women's basketball always will be grateful for that opportunity."

The Garden, New York City's basketball mecca, offered its first women's game in February, 1975, as the first game of a Saturday afternoon college doubleheader. About 12,000 fans were present for the game, which pitted New York's Queens College against Immaculata.

"I don't want to overestimate this," says Rob Franklin, a spokesman for the Garden, "but after the Queens-Immaculata game, about half the crowd left rather than stay for the second half of the doubleheader, which featured a men's game between two traditional Eastern rivals. There's definitely a market for women's basketball, so next March 6, we'll have our first women's doubleheader."

NANCY WALKER: "I'm a Great Listener—So I Know Who Not To Waste My Time With"

A lovable, laughable professional clown thinks the world may be too full of fools.

By Helen Dorsey

Like many professional clowns, in private Nancy Walker is a rather melancholy sort who regards the Hollywood circuit with the same disdain which Rosie (the TV pitch lady for paper towels) does for bumbling customers. Nancy once said, "I'm probably one of the shyest, most introverted ladies who ever walked, but the part of me that works is like the women I play."

In her personal as well as professional life, things are going splendidly for this 53-year-old Wunderkind. There is also no doubt about Nancy's priorities in life: her husband of 25 years, David Craig (one of Hollywood's most successful vocal coaches of musical-comedy performers, including Rock Hudson, Alexis Smith and Jean Simmons), and their married daughter, Miranda.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Is it true you're an excellent listener?

NANCY WALKER: I listen very hard, but I don't tune in to everybody. Haven't you heard people who just rattle on? That's why I listen—so I know who not to waste time with. I find most people are really not that interesting.

FW: You've said that you can be hostile with people. What brings out this trait?

NANCY WALKER: Time wasters, who are also energy sappers. We live in a world of such fools. Take politicians, for example. I can't read or listen to them any more. I'm really quite scared to death because we live in such a world of fools. The world is 99 percent filled with energy sappers! I am not going to let people I met just once, more than 10 years ago, come up to me and act as if I just left them and let them talk and talk. No, I'm not using my energy to dredge up a false relationship that never existed in the first place. And these people know full well I don't remember them. I want to say, "Get out of here." It's just so tiresome. I don't have time for acquaintances, only my friends and family. About the only free time I have these days I spend with my husband, and so often that's tired time, and that's not good.

FW: Why have you always said, "Comedy is so personal"?

NANCY WALKER: Because, for example, my way of opening a door is not like Bea Lillie's way of opening a door. Once Director Richard Brooks asked me how I account for the comedy in my work. I told him I have always thought people like Bert Lahr, Bea Lillie and me do everything like other people, except that our bones are off one-eighth of an inch! I may think I'm crossing the room like anyone else, sometimes in grand style, but then everyone goes ha-ha. Richard said, "That's what comedy is all about. It's about life being a certain way because your bones are set differently from the rest of the world. It's probably an illusion of the psyche, but it affects everything you do in life." I don't know who set my bones the way they are, but I just know the way our psychic bones are set affects our behavior every minute of our life, even though we aren't aware of it.

FW: Have you ever thought of yourself as different from other people?

NANCY WALKER: Yes, but I'm me, and that's a good thing to be—I finally found out. As a young girl, however, it upset me terribly when people seemed to be laughing at me and not with me. This isolated me from other people. I didn't realize then that isolation is a very big privilege. I'm thrilled to have been born one of the "privileged few" like Bert Lahr and Bea Lillie.

FW: Who finally convinced you that you are truly funny?

NANCY WALKER: My set-designer friend, Oliver Smith, took me aside one day and said, "Don't you know that being a comedienne is one of the greatest gifts in this world? Why do you hide in corners?" He was the first person to sense the pain I was going through. He tried to knock some sense into my head. Some of it sank in, and, eventually, my head began to grow!

FW: Does your husband help you in your career?

NANCY WALKER: He's a highly intelligent gentleman and someone I listen to a great deal. You can listen more gently to someone you love and have lived with a long time because you know his style and can take comfort in it. His dialogue changes every day, but his style doesn't.

quarter of a century ago, a great domain — nearly one-fourth of the earth and nine times vaster than the Roman Empire at its zenith — lay under her scepter.

Now, as Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth the Second, prepares to celebrate her Silver Jubilee, she is Queen of fewer lands, but not of fewer hearts. In her person The Crown remains a human link among a quarter of the world's peoples. The symbol of mutual cooperation that stems from a common history. The heritage of an Empire on which the sun never set. The focus of an allegiance given through love and respect but never through compulsion.

Heiress of a thousand years of history

By the Grace of God, Queen of the United Kingdom, its territories, and more than ten other independent Nations, she reigns but does not rule. Head of the Commonwealth of more than thirty realms and republics, she presides but does not direct. Yet, hers is a voice which is heard. The advocate of a happier, more just, and more gentle world for her peoples and the whole of the human family.

Truly an anchor in the tempest of the modern age, the Queen is heiress to noble ideals as timeless as the Coronation Ceremony at which she — like her predecessors since William the Conqueror in 1066 — was crowned at Westminster Abbey. A Coronation which, as in every age, affirmed the people's acceptance of their Sovereign, and the Sovereign's dedication to the people.

An unprecedented philatelic event

It is therefore fitting that to celebrate The Queen's Silver Jubilee in 1977, more than forty members of the Commonwealth will preserve the pageantry and meaning of the Coronation in an international series of nearly eighty different stamps.

Significantly, the scope and concept of this collection are unparalleled in philatelic history. For, never before have so many Nations cooperated to issue a series of individual stamps which, when viewed as a complete collection, captures an event of this magnitude.

And, never before has there been a collection which traces step by step the events of the Coronation. Or portrays the individual Crown Jewels and Coronation Regalia in all their beauty.

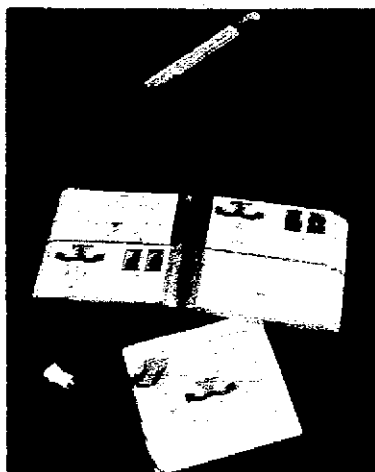

Individually designed by the Commonwealth's most prominent artists — perhaps the greatest assemblage of talent ever gathered to a single purpose — each issue will be a masterpiece of the philatelic art. Together capturing with uncommon sensitivity the glittering panoply of tradition, religious rite, and chivalrous pageantry just as it happened nearly twenty-five years ago.

Ascension Island opens this timeless story with the golden State Coach departing from Buckingham Palace pulled by eight perfectly matched Windsor Greys enroute to Westminster Abbey.

In Montserrat's issue, the actual moment of crowning by the Archbishop of Canterbury seems to echo within the Abbey's hallowed walls.

And, vividly portrayed by the issues of Turks and Caicos Islands, loyal subjects cheer the Queen and Royal Family as they wave from the Palace balcony following Coronation.

From beginning to end, this great ritual unfolds. Inspired by a thousand years of history. Recorded in painstaking detail by official stamps of Canada, Barbados, New Zealand, Hong Kong, Australia, Gibraltar, and others. A collection worthy of The Queen's Silver Jubilee, and an inspiration for our times.

Available to you: the First Editions

The unprecedented character of this tribute to The Queen's Silver Jubilee makes your opportunity today to acquire first editions all the more significant. For it is a collection certain to command the attention of collectors and historians for many years to come. And the first editions... First Day Covers... will be but a small fraction of the total number of stamps sold to the public.

First Day Covers of the individual stamps marking The Queen's Silver Jubilee will be available only on the exact date the stamps are first issued, and never again. In many countries, the First Day of Issue will be February 6, 1977: the precise twenty-fifth anniversary of Her Majesty's accession to the Throne.

Applied as part of lavish Jubilee ceremonies attended by leading officials and citizens of each Nation, the coveted, one-day-only, First Day of Issue postmark will indelibly certify the First Day Cover for posterity and guarantee its authenticity and limited edition character.

The superb, limited edition of the Westminster Collectors Society

Appropriately, the Westminster Collectors Society will issue The Queen's Silver Jubilee in one complete collection of over forty official First Day Covers. Of special importance to collectors, this is the first collection ever authorized by the Society, which was established under the auspices of Fleetwood, America's oldest purveyor of First Day Covers, to encourage a greater appreciation of British and Commonwealth culture, history, and tradition.

As befits a collection of this importance, each First Day Cover will be lavishly engraved. Each will bear the Coat of Arms or Emblem of the issuing Nation, as well as the imprimatur of the Society. And each will be made of a special paper exclusively created for The Queen's Silver Jubilee.

This exquisite collection will be issued solely for subscribers, with an absolute limit of one collection per subscriber. And the total number will be forever limited to the exact number of original subscriptions, postmarked not later than February 6, 1977. The collection will not be available after that time except from collectors who acquired it at the time of issue.

A deluxe collector's album will protect and display your collection

Collectors who take advantage of this limited opportunity to acquire the Official First Day Covers of The Queen's Silver Jubilee will receive, without additional cost, a lavishly bound collector's album. To enhance the historical and educational value of the collection, an authoritative reference guide will be included. And, specially prepared information will accompany each issue.

A convenient plan of acquisition

Each subscriber will receive the First Day Covers of The Queen's Silver Jubilee at the convenient rate of three per month, beginning in March, 1977, and concluding in early 1978. The original issue price of $3.25 per First Day Cover will be guaranteed for the entire collection. In view of the high denomination of the stamps, it is an exceptional value.

As a convenience, moreover, collectors may pay for the first month's shipment now, or charge it to their credit card account.

A collection for all seasons

A modern world which has split the atom and put man on the moon has found itself starved for the color, the romance, the chivalry, and most of all the sense of history which The Queen's Silver Jubilee Collection will preserve for the future. For you, and for future generations of your family, it will be a source of great satisfaction and inspiration.

Subscription Deadline: February 6, 1977

Please remember that this is the only time that this collection can ever be issued. To take advantage of this historic opportunity, postmark your application no later than February 6, 1977. Applications should be mailed directly to Fleetwood, 1 Unicover Center, Cheyenne, Wyoming 82008, under whose auspices the Society was established.

Don't let your fingers be bare just because you don't want to spend $1,000 a carat (or more) for a diamond ring. Our Gemfires are so elegant only a diamond expert, or someone with a powerful magnifier can be really sure they aren't natural diamonds.

Gemfires are polished and precision-faceted by master diamond cutters to bring out their full fire and brilliance. They are then set by master craftsmen, by hand, in expensive-looking, open-back mountings so the base of the stone is exposed for maximum reflection of light.

You don't have to be afraid that Gemfires will be phony-looking plastic or paste jewelry. They gleam like diamonds formed deep within the earth by tremendous heat and pressure. Yet they are free of the imperfections found in most natural diamonds. There are no cracks, no flaws, no spots of impurities to mar their sparkling beauty. We invite you to wear a Gemfire. If you, your family or your friends can tell the difference between it and a natural diamond return it to us within 30 days and we'll gladly send you your money back.

You're in good company when you wear Gemfires. Today, even millionaires wear simulated diamonds and keep their precious jewels hidden away in bank vaults to prevent them from being lost or stolen.

Gemfires make a lifetime gift — and the gift of a lifetime.

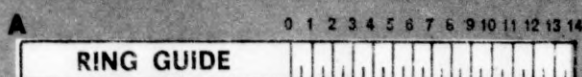

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.

2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot on the strip where it meets the end.

3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

SMART COOKING / By Marilyn Hansen

"After Thanksgiving, Let's Make Turkey Soup"

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen suggests a delicious (and thrifty) dish you create from the "third helpings" of turkey no one could eat.

TURKEY NOODLE SOUP

Leftover cooked carcass from a 15- to 20-lb. turkey

- 5 qts. water
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped celery leaves
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 7 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 1 cup fresh, frozen or canned peas
- 1 cup sliced carrots
- 1 cup cut green beans
- 4 cups (8 ozs.) fine egg noodles
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour

1. In 8-qt. kettle or Dutch oven, place turkey carcass, water, celery, celery leaves, onion, bouillon cubes, salt, pepper and bay leaf. Heat to boiling; lower heat; cover and simmer 1 hour. Remove carcass and let cool.
2. Add parsley, peas, carrots and green beans to soup; heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes until vegetables are just tender.
3. Remove meat from carcass, return pieces to soup. Discard bones.
4. Heat soup to boiling, add noodles, cook, uncovered, 10 minutes.
5. Melt butter in small frying pan; stir in flour. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until flour is browned. Stir into boiling soup. Return to boiling and stir. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes.

Makes 5 qts.

APPLE CIDER UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

- 3 medium-sized tart apples
- 1 cup apple cider
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 pkg. (18 1/2 ozs.) spice cake mix
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1/4 cup wheat germ
- Sweetened whipped cream, whipped topping or vanilla ice cream, optional

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Lightly grease a 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan.
2. Pare and core apples; slice thinly. Simmer apple slices in cider over medium heat until just tender. Drain, reserving cider.
3. Combine 2 tablespoons hot cider, butter and brown sugar in prepared pan and stir until butter melts. Sprinkle with walnuts.
4. Prepare spice cake mix according to package directions. Then stir in vanilla extract and wheat germ.
5. Pour batter over walnuts and cider mixture.
6. Bake at 350° F. for 55 to 60 minutes.
7. Invert pan onto large cake platter and let stand for one minute; remove pan. Cut into squares. Serve warm with sweetened whipped cream or soft vanilla ice cream. Heat any remaining cider mixture and serve as a sauce.

Makes 12 servings

What's Smart: Here's a recipe for five quarts of rib-sticking soup. A bargain meal for only $1.48. (The turkey carcass isn't included, since it has been already figured into the cost of Thanksgiving dinner.) One ingredient, the egg noodles, adds immeasurably to the good taste and nutrition of the dish.

SMART COOKING / By Marilyn Hansen

"After Thanksgiving, Let's Make Turkey Soup"

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen suggests a delicious (and thrifty) dish you create from the "third helpings" of turkey no one could eat.

TURKEY NOODLE SOUP

Leftover cooked carcass from a 15- to 20-lb. turkey

- 5 qts. water
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped celery leaves
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 7 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 1 cup fresh, frozen or canned peas
- 1 cup sliced carrots
- 1 cup cut green beans
- 4 cups (8 ozs.) fine egg noodles
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour

1. In 8-qt. kettle or Dutch oven, place turkey carcass, water, celery, celery leaves, onion, bouillon cubes, salt, pepper and bay leaf. Heat to boiling; lower heat; cover and simmer 1 hour. Remove carcass and let cool.
2. Add parsley, peas, carrots and green beans to soup; heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes until vegetables are just tender.
3. Remove meat from carcass, return pieces to soup. Discard bones.
4. Heat soup to boiling, add noodles, cook, uncovered, 10 minutes.
5. Melt butter in small frying pan; stir in flour. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until flour is browned. Stir into boiling soup. Return to boiling and stir. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes.

Makes 5 qts.

APPLE CIDER UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

- 3 medium-sized tart apples
- 1 cup apple cider
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 pkg. (18 1/2 ozs.) spice cake mix
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1/4 cup wheat germ
- Sweetened whipped cream, whipped topping or vanilla ice cream, optional

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Lightly grease a 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan.
2. Pare and core apples; slice thinly. Simmer apple slices in cider over medium heat until just tender. Drain, reserving cider.
3. Combine 2 tablespoons hot cider, butter and brown sugar in prepared pan and stir until butter melts. Sprinkle with walnuts.
4. Prepare spice cake mix according to package directions. Then stir in vanilla extract and wheat germ.
5. Pour batter over walnuts and cider mixture.
6. Bake at 350° F. for 55 to 60 minutes.
7. Invert pan onto large cake platter and let stand for one minute; remove pan. Cut into squares. Serve warm with sweetened whipped cream or soft vanilla ice cream. Heat any remaining cider mixture and serve as a sauce.

Makes 12 servings

What's Smart: Here's a recipe for five quarts of rib-sticking soup. A bargain meal for only $1.48. (The turkey carcass isn't included, since it has been already figured into the cost of Thanksgiving dinner.) One ingredient, the egg noodles, adds immeasurably to the good taste and nutrition of the dish.

IS THIS HOME REALLY SAFE FROM BURGLARS?

With crime rates in the suburbs rising faster than those in big cities, it's a good idea to scrutinize your house the way a professional burglar would.

bother me anywhere near as much as the thought of strangers going through my house. I felt so vulnerable, so violated. It took me weeks to calm down."

Joanne's reaction isn't uncommon. And, unfortunately, her experience isn't either.

Burglary rates are edging up everywhere. And the victims aren't just big-city dwellers any more. In 1975 burglaries were up 10 percent in the suburbs, eight percent in rural areas and seven percent in the cities.

Most burglars now work days. In fact, more than 50 percent of home burglaries now occur during the day.

"It's very well organized," explains Sheriff Bill Lombard of Monroe County, N.Y. "A burglar will stake out a whole suburban subdivision and ring every doorbell. If someone answers, he'll ask for a fictitious person and then move on. Burglary is one of the most difficult crimes to investigate, but we could prevent more of them if people would just call the police when they see suspicious activity or strangers about."

Few American homes are truly burglarproof. In addition, an astonishing number of people don't even lock their doors.

If burglars can't walk right in, they've got other means at their disposal," says Lombard. "Even the amateurs can slip a lock with a credit card, screwdriver or knife."

Police say the first line of defense against intruders is a good deadbolt lock. But there's no point in installing one of these on a flimsy door or near a glass panel. A Government-sponsored study recommends that all exterior doors be at least an inch and three-quarters thick.

The National Sheriff's Association suggests equipping all your windows with key locks. Garage and basement windows are best nailed shut.

Try to see your home with a burglar's eyes, and you'll get an idea of how vulnerable you are. How would you break in? Does the shrubbery provide good cover for an intruder trying to pry open a door or window? Is there a gap between a door or window frame big enough for a crowbar? Can you enter the house from the garage? Are all entrances illuminated at night? Do the lights cast concealing shadows? Could a burglar get into a second-floor window from a tree?

You can burglarproof your home fairly cheaply. If it seems an unnecessary nuisance, consider the fact that a burglary is committed every 13 seconds. In 1975 there were 1,526 offenses per 100,000 inhabitants, and residential losses totaled $925 million. And police estimate that nearly half of all residential burglaries aren't even reported. So why not take the precautions police suggest: install strong locks (and use them!), shore up windows and doors, trim back shrubbery.

Police across the country also have been enlisting citizens in community crime-prevention efforts. The biggest, "Neighborhood Watch," is administered by the National Sheriff's Association. "Neighborhood Watch" goes by various names—"Block Watch" in Seattle, Phoenix and St. Louis, "Home Alert" in Oakland and "Neighbor Help Neighbor" in New Orleans. The program is essentially the same everywhere: a block-by-block organization of citizens who are trained by police to secure their own homes and to watch out for burglars. Incidentally, "Neighborhood Watch" reduces burglary rates. Some police departments report that the mere presence of orange and black "Neighborhood Watch" decals on windows seems to deter criminals.

One of the most successful "Neighborhood Watch" programs is in Monroe County, N.Y., where Bill Lombard reports that "the number of calls coming through our dispatchers is going up, but the volume of crime has been going down." In another nationwide program, "Operation Identification," valuable possessions are engraved with the owner's social security or driver's license number which police keep on file. Participants get an "Operation Identification" decal for their windows or doors. Marked goods are difficult to fence, and the burglar knows that if he's caught with marked property, he's as good as convicted. Another advantage is that you get marked property back if the police recover it. Otherwise, you're usually out of luck unless you've got theft insurance. As a rule, if you can't prove that stolen property is yours, you can't get it back from the police. Moreover, six months after "Operation Identification" was initiated in Minnesota, the likelihood of a burglary in member homes had dropped by 78 percent.

Although theft insurance is available under most homeowner policies, in some areas of the country it's virtually impossible or prohibitively expensive to buy. Coverage is so hard to get in 15 states—most of them along the East Coast—that residents are eligible for Federal Crime Insurance, which provides a maximum of $10,000 worth of coverage for about $100 a year. However, you're not eligible unless your doors are equipped with vertical deadbolt locks.

Police say two things will deter a skilled burglar: a barking dog and an electronic alarm system. Most family pets can be relied on to bark at strangers, but your dog may take a liking to an intruder. Attack dogs are a different story. The rising crime rate has sent hundreds of thousands of Americans rushing to kennels for trained dogs. But even the best animal may fail to discriminate among a burglar, the milkman, the mailman and a curious child. A lawsuit by a victim could cost much more than a burglary.

Unfortunately, fancy electronic alarm systems are expensive. There are two basic kinds: a local alarm designed to frighten off burglars and a silent alarm that signals police headquarters or a security service from which guards may be dispatched. Silent alarm systems can cost up to $600 to install, plus a regular monitoring charge.

The least costly alarms, "contact devices," are mechanical switches attached to doors or locks. The contacts form an electrical circuit which, when broken, sounds an alarm. Contacts cost as little as $2, but you would need one for every point of entry to be completely secure.

One New York man credits the arrest of a burglar to his "Touch Tone" phone. After awaking to the sounds of an intruder, he feigned sleep when the burglar looked in on him. Then, while his house was being rifled, he silently phoned for help. The police caught the intruder in the act.

Police warn against ever trying to apprehend a burglar yourself. And they frown on keeping guns around. More people are shot accidentally than are hurt by burglars. And shooting a burglar or a prowler is sometimes a crime.

The odds are that you'll never encounter a burglar face to face. Most of them will clear out fast if they realize they've broken into a house they thought was empty. So your best protection is to make your house appear as if you are home. That, plus deadbolt locks, strong doors and good neighbors should be all the burglar-proofing you'll ever need.

You don't have to live in a fortress to be safe. But your house should present enough obstacles to send a burglar elsewhere.

Ernie Calloway

By Polly Dranov

Joanne Martin still gets the shakes when she thinks of that night. The house was a shambles. Papers and clothes were strewn everywhere, and it took hours to figure what was missing. The television, of course, and the stereo. All her good jewelry and Bill's cameras. Clothes, too—all of his suits, her fur coat. Then, there were the binoculars, the pocket calculator, the portable typewriter, the clock radio and the $160 in cash in the desk drawer.

"They sure knew what they were doing," Joanne says bitterly. "They just took the good stuff. But that didn't

PEOPLE AND YOU

How to Fight With Someone You Love

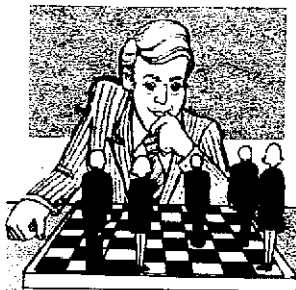

"All people who live together fight from time to time," says psychiatrist David Viscott in his book How to Live With Another Person. Dr. Viscott points out that most men and women don't know how to have a "good argument" that clears the air and helps make future battles less likely to occur. He suggests: 1) Decide beforehand what you want to accomplish. Are you just exploding emotionally or are you trying to make a point? 2) Pick a time and place where you both can talk comfortably. If you choose a setting where you have all the advantages, the other person will know it and may be so furious that he will refuse to accept your point of view. 3) Don't try to win by overwhelming. Dr. Viscott explains, "In some instances it may be permissible to overpower people, but not in marriage relationships." Equality must be the essence of that relationship. 4) Never argue in bed in the dark. You need to see the other person's face and reactions, which often tell a great deal about what your partner really means. 5) Try to begin arguments with the expectation of resolving them and making up.

How to Read an "Invisible" Corporate Power Chart

2) Who has social contacts with top executives? Social connections may have been achieved through long-standing friendships or through a spouse with good connections or through activities in some political, community, athletic or religious organization. However gained, they give that person an edge in company power. 3) Which long-time employees have quietly cornered power by taking on the authority to initial memos or plans? Even if their initials on the project really mean nothing, by making themselves a part of the chain, these senior employees can delay or kill a project by leaving it quietly on their desks. That's negative power. But it's power. 4) Which co-workers have relatives or former bosses in the executive hierarchy? They may have realistic expectations of promotions that will turn them into powerful people eventually. 5) Who is currently involved in an office romance? Some day, it's true, the romance may be over. But at the moment, they're a duo commanding power from two directions in the organization. Once you understand the real power structure, you'll know how to get results and who is really important to your future with the company.

—S. R. Redford

Every business organization has two power charts, the official one and the real one. The official organization chart is there for anyone to study. The real power chart is invisible, and you can understand it only by persistent observation. Since the power chart affects who gets promotions and raises, who stays and who is elbowed out, it's well worth your while to learn about it. Things to watch for: 1) Who supplies the reliable information? A decision-maker or someone having close access to the real decision-maker is the source of such information.

2) Who has social contacts with top executives? Social connections may have been achieved through long-standing friendships or through a spouse with good connections or through activities in some political, community, athletic or religious organization. However gained, they give that person an edge in company power. 3) Which long-time employees have quietly cornered power by taking on the authority to initial memos or plans? Even if their initials on the project really mean nothing, by making themselves a part of the chain, these senior employees can delay or kill a project by leaving it quietly on their desks. That's negative power. But it's power. 4) Which co-workers have relatives or former bosses in the executive hierarchy? They may have realistic expectations of promotions that will turn them into powerful people eventually. 5) Who is currently involved in an office romance? Some day, it's true, the romance may be over. But at the moment, they're a duo commanding power from two directions in the organization. Once you understand the real power structure, you'll know how to get results and who is really important to your future with the company. —S. R. Redford

BOBBY CLARKE
Diabetic and Athletic

November is National Diabetes Month: Mary Tyler Moore is severely diabetic. She gives herself two insulin shots a day and insists: "I'm healthier because of my handicap. I've been forced to take very good care of myself." Bobby Clarke, the Philadelphia Flyers' hockey star, has been diabetic since the age of 17. He had only this to say about it: "Maybe I've been lucky. But anyone—diabetic or not—has to have a lot of perseverance to get what he wants out of life." You're probably aware that diabetics can lead nearly normal, healthy—even athletic—lives. But if you think diabetes is a rare disease, you're mistaken. It's now one of the most common ailments in America. In the last 10 years, known cases have increased by more than 50 percent. At this rate, an American born today and living an average life span (70 years) has greater than a 1-in-5 chance of developing the disease. Diabetic patients face the possibility of a shortened life and serious medical complications. If they overlook or neglect their disease, it can lead to heart attack, blindness, kidney disease or gangrene. Yet diabetes is easily detected, and some of its complications may be prevented if caught early and treated properly. Some symptoms: excessive thirst, extreme hunger, rapid weight loss, frequent urination, drowsiness, general weakness, blurred vision (or a change in vision), skin boils or infection. See your doctor if any of these symptoms persists or recurs. As a plan of prevention, it's simple enough: 1) Have an annual medical check-up. 2) Maintain normal weight and follow good health practices. 3) Support those who are working to conquer diabetes. Write to: American Diabetes Association, 600 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020.

GUESS WHO? You might think a young cavalry officer known as the "Little Beauty of the Regiment" might be due for a difficult career. He was light and weak and always needed too much sleep. He probably had a latent case of tuberculosis. He had a soft, pretty, girlish face with a rosy complexion, small delicate hands and a soft, melodious voice. He was ridiculously modest and would never bathe along with the other recruits. He was a soldier who couldn't stand the sight of blood or injured animals and couldn't touch meat unless it was almost burned. He only cursed once (when someone mistreated his horse). His military career was as poor as one might predict except, of course, for winning the Civil War. He and his wife are buried on a pleasant hill overlooking the Hudson River, in Grant's Tomb. From Famous Flaws by Alice Loomer (Macmillan $9.95).

IT'LL HAPPEN TO ALL OF US

We asked: "How do you feel about growing old?"

The fickle fates of show business have traditionally favored the young and beautiful. Is it especially tough to grow wrinkled in the spotlight? FAMILY WEEKLY checked with a group of celebrities and got some surprising answers: MARLO THOMAS: "I'm not scared of losing my looks, or my shape. What frightens me is the thought that I might become incapable or lose control of my mind." YUL BRYNNER: "I have no fears. In fact, I'm all for maturing. It's as comforting as a security blanket." RONA JAFFE: "My horror is growing stiff. I don't want all those little aches and pains that people collect as they get on in years. I'm terrified at being unable to do all the physical things I could when I was young." DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: "I'm looking forward to it. I'm curious about how the years will treat me. I expect to improve with age—just like wine. Life's first half is a cocoon; the second is the butterfly." FREDA PAYNE: "A young attitude is important, and I'm holding on to mine. There'll be no hair dyes and face-lifts. I'll age gracefully and be glad I have the kind of intelligence no 20-year-old could have." DON RICKLES: "Considering the alternative, it's enticing."

PICK A PAIR
The inside story on twins

You're expecting a baby and looking forward to taking home an addition to the family. How would you feel if it turned out to be two? One in about every hundred pregnancies in the U.S. results in twins. If you're over 35 and have had children, you're about three times more likely to produce fraternal twins than a woman under 20 having her first baby. Whatever your age, the more children you've had, the greater your chance for twins the next time. Also, once you've had a simultaneous pair, you're three- to 10-times as likely as non-twin first-time mothers to have still another set. According to Amran Scheinfeld, probably the foremost authority on twinning, these facts apply mainly to fraternal twins. Identical twins, he says, are most likely the result of inherited tendencies and are rarer than fraternal. Most twins are the same sex, with slightly less than a third of twin births being boy-girl combinations. Twins tend to be born on an average of three weeks early. Up to 60 percent are premature and small, compared to 7 or 8 percent of singletons, but once they've come through prenatal and birth ordeals, they can be expected to be just as healthy and big as loners.

QUOTE: "If you have headaches, it may be small consolation to know that you are in good company. Some of the most brilliant and celebrated people in history were tormented by migraine to such an extent that their creative productivity is a source of wonder. The worst victim may have been Friedrich Nietzsche, philosopher of sorts and the intellectual parent of Superman. Nietzsche's headaches were so frequent that in their peak period they were coming about every 72 hours. Notables who suffered from migraines were Thomas Jefferson, Ulysses S. Grant, Sigmund Freud, Madame Pompadour, Karl Marx and Charles Darwin." UNQUOTE: From The Conquest of Pain by Samuel Mines (Grosset & Dunlap, $7.95).
